Special Correspondence.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—With election day only a month away, Republican and Democratic campaign headquarters here show signs of new life and preparations are being made for a whirlwind campaign, which it is hoped will partially make up for the comparative inactivity of the earlier months. At the same time new issues are coming to the front, foremost among which is the movement for the conservation of the natural resources of the country. Political emissaries report that in the case of the doubtful congressional districts this issue is the deciding factor in the line-up and that the so-called "progressive" candidates are making the most headway, regardless of party. This is said to be particularly true in states where the wasteful exploitation of timber and mineral resources has begun to tell on the visible supply to such an extent that there is danger of exhaustion unless active steps are taken to check the waste. According to figures based on departmental reports at Washington, our annual consumption of lumber is three times the annual growth and the latest official estimate puts the total present timber supply in the United States at less than enough to last for 30 years more, at the present rate of use. Much of this is waste for as many trees are consumed by forest fires each year, due to carelessness and lack of precautions, as are felled for lumber or pulp. These and other facts are being brought out in the campaign speeches and candidates who have pledged themselves to support legislation to stop this public waste state that they find a growing sentiment in their favor that is not to be accounted for by party affiliations. This sentiment is being strengthened all the time by the vigorous campaign which is being waged by the Conservation League of America, the headquarters of which are in this city. Backed by President Roosevelt, and having the active support of both Bryan and Taft who are honorary officers, this organization is trying to awaken interest in the critical state of the national resources as a result of a hundred years of waste and unscientific methods. One of the latest discoveries of the league is the fact that over a billion cubic feet of natural gas is escaping every day from oil wells, flumebores and pipe lines, for lack of the simple precautions which would save it at turn of account.

SPARE THE ROD, SPOIL BOY.

Spanking has suffered a relapse of public favor for the Chicago school boys, and the chastening rod is urgently recommended from various quarters as a cure for the rebellious spirit, now rampant because of the war of extermination being waged on the city streets. The president of the school board, though a countryman of Froebel, recently declared for good, old corporal punishment—not a section of the hand, but a good, firm, old-fashioned strap or slipper. "I think the proper attitude of the parent and good citizen to those boys who were reported as loafing around the front of their 'frat' houses, smoking briar root pipes, would have been to go there, wag on them with them, and then if they still rebelled I think the next step would have been to find a good elastic barrel stave somewhere and whittle it off at one end until a good handle had been secured, and mix with them for a few minutes in a way that would have a tendency to re-establish parental respect, authority and sovereignty." The advocate of "the hand, strap or slipper" added: "And I would add to that the committing to memory of several chapters of the Book of Proverbs, which deal with parents and children, and have the training up a generation of future anarchists."

COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY.

Color photography, for which scientists and artists the world over have groped for 50 years since the old daguerrotype process proved that it was possible, has been solved under heroic conditions by an American, Henry Reval, who has lived for 20 years in the City of Mexico. An exhibit of his work, which the Salama-gundi club of New York was instrumental in having brought to this country, and which it gave an enthusiastic recognition, has been hung in Thurbur's galleries here, an event considered a milestone in the progress of photography. Like many important discoveries, it was made after a grim fight, for Reval's success was in spite of temporary blindness and the resulting poverty. Twenty odd years ago he had made his home in New York, and was a painter and a magazine illustrator. He won some distinction by his Mexican pictures, a fact which took him to Mexico 20 years ago. He saw early years he painted Mexican subjects and made copies of old masterpieces for the mural paintings of cathedrals and churches. Then an attack of dengue fever left him suddenly practically blind, and all the brilliant scenes that he revealed in reproducing blotted out by a seemingly hopeless darkness. After some years of distress, eyesight returned enough to enable him to choose his subjects for photography. Reval's new process of color photography may be distinguished as "a painter's method" of combining and using the camera and brush, to obtain all the painter's "qualities" of a good picture—color, tone, texture, composition and correct drawing and this new method has commanded the serious attention and admiration of the art world because it required the technical training and skill of the orthodox brush and pencil, the results depending as much upon the ability of the manipulator as the quality of a painting depends upon the skill of the artist.

onets and pennant hopes "than Norman blood" (apologies to Tompkins) in Chicago last week during the painful, neck-and-neck race between Chicago and New York in the National and Chicago and Cleveland in the American league, thousands of staid business men greeting one another during the afternoon by asking "What's the score?" Elevator operators in office buildings conferred earnestly with millionaires as the cages shot up and down, while they both waited for news from the battlefields. Messenger boys were called into the office to receive telegrams to report the latest bulletin and get a quarter. It was a period of tense anxiety beside which the recent financial flurry was unimportant. Crowds surrounded down-town score boards for hours and rich and poor were fused into true democratic brotherhood by the weight of possible disaster and hope of victory. One Chicago roofer for the White Sox received through the mails a postcard from Detroit in which was pinned a dollar bill, the price of admission to two games. The card was inscribed:

"Hard times, they say, never have a good old baseball game."

FIRE INSURANCE TROUBLES

The new militant mood of the country's fire insurance interests is said to make a meeting of the Fire Underwriters' association of the north-west, in Chicago, Oct. 7, something of a milestone in fire insurance history. "Patience has ceased to be a virtue," they say, the import of the remark being best understood by the fact that in nearly every state of the Union the fire insurance companies are made the target for one of 37 varieties of proposed legislation, most of it being aimed at any mutual interchange of experience to enable each company to adapt their rates to the comparative hazard of the classes of property. "Anti-compact," bills, so-called. The fire losses in recent years have been so enormous that the insurance companies have been wiped out. The profits of a score of years, mostly made in the investment of the big sums of money in their hands and not from underwriting, which has not been profitable. A scientific re-adjustment of rates is being advocated as the remedy. The deduction of the $5,000,000 court house of Cook County, October 9—Chicago day—will be a large, busy building occasion. It all the invitations to civic organizations and clubs should be accepted the $1,420,000 cubic feet of space in the building would not be enough, and an overflow meeting in the streets, for half a mile or so would ensue. As many orators on that occasion will proudly declare, it is the largest county building in the United States, more than twice the size of the one it replaced. Probably no tactless allusions will be made to the fact that the cost was less than half the cost of the other, owing to the economies of early day politics and the spoils thereof. The caissons under the structure extend 116 feet downward to solid rock, and contain twice as much concrete as the Auditorium tower. Next door, Chicago's dingy city hall is dwindling under the hands of the wrecking gang. Another year and the megaphone man on the "rubberneck wagon" will point to a twin structure beside the court house, as the "new city hall." The county is in much better shape to build a home than was the city. Its revenues are not to be sneezed at, being almost $4,500,000 a year from taxes and over $1,000,000 a year from the earnings of the fee offices. The regular expenses, however, are in proportion, the salary list totaling over $2,500,000 a year.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE.

Rev. Dr. Parkhurst Gives Reason For Its Falling-Off.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—At the installation of the Rev. William T. McElveen, as pastor of First Congregational church last night, the sermon was preached by the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst of New York city, the noted elv reformer. "The falling off of church attendance in the large churches," said Dr. Parkhurst, "is because of the inability or the failure of the pulpit to talk to the people of their day and to try to make them have a religious experience. While the richer and wider dissemination of knowledge by the press is responsible to a degree for the laxity of church attendance, the real cause lies in the fact that the pulpit has assumed authority for itself. "The church of today should not give the people a knowledge of the Bible, it is fettered by the traditions of the Bible. I do not mean to be understood that the time of the prophets should be cast aside, but we should not let them keep us from the project of new thought. The man who stands still is the only one who never needs to revise his ideas of things."

GOVERNMENT FORESTRY SERVICE

Various Views of it Are Fully Aired at National Irrigation Congress.

PROBLEMS OF RECLAMATION

Many Technical Papers on Subject
Read—Several Places Fighting
For Next Convention.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 1.—There was a renewal at this afternoon's session of the National Irrigation congress of yesterday's discussion of the forestry service, when Will C. Barnes, an inspector of grazing on the national forests, replied to the attack made on him by D. C. Beaman of Colorado, yesterday.

Mr. Beaman had sharply criticized Barnes for writing magazine articles laudatory of the chief forester while on the government payroll. Mr. Barnes, who has been a prominent cattle grower in New Mexico and Arizona for many years, vigorously asserted his right to give his views through the medium of public speaking, or magazine writing.

President Goudy, in a brief speech, took up the defense of the rights of the people of the San Luis valley in Colorado against an attack made yesterday by W. W. Felton, consulting engineer of the boundary commission, who asserted that the Colorado people had the right of usage of the waters of the upper Rio Grande.

Dwight B. Heard of the Arizona Cattle Growers' association defended the forestry policy, asserting that the cattle growers of Arizona were satisfied with the condition of the Arizona forests.

William W. Wheeler, assistant secretary of the department of commerce and labor, delivered a short address as the personal representative of President Roosevelt.

The day's sessions were devoted chiefly to the reading of papers on irrigation and agriculture, all of a technical nature, and discussion of problems of reclamation.

The resolutions committee today voted down a resolution favoring the removal of restrictions from foreign immigration proposed by C. B. Schmidt of Chicago, and adopted a plank supporting protection of American sugar. The committee will recommend to the congress the creation of the office of foreign secretary, and in the event of adoption of the plan, Dr. E. McQueen Gray of Carlsbad, N. M., will be chosen. Dr. Gray was active in securing the large representation at this congress. The committee will also propose a plan submitted by W. A. Bard of California, to create a governing board within the executive committee, which board will consist of six or seven members.

The committee on permanent organization, at its meeting today, decided to recommend George H. Barstow of Texas for president, Harry D. Love of California for first vice president, R. B. Twitchell of New Mexico for second vice president, and A. B. Fowler of Arizona for secretary. Unless unexpected opposition develops this program will be adopted at Friday's session.

The selection of the next meeting place will take place Saturday, the fight having narrowed down to Pueblo and Spokane. Both cities claim to have a majority of the delegates.

Among the speakers today were Dr. William Saunders, director of experimental farms of Canada; George C. Anderson of Colorado; Dr. George L. Smith of Arizona; Prof. L. C. Carpenter of Colorado; Aaron Gove of Colorado; Gov. Kibbey of Arizona and Senor Lourenco Baeta, chief engineer for the Brazilian government.

The attendance of delegates today was small, many being attracted to the exposition, where a special program of military drills by regular troops and militia Indian dances and stunts were presented for their amusement.

Tonight C. J. Blanchard, statistician for the reclamation service, gave an illustrated lecture in convention hall on "Home-making by the Government."

A feature of the closing night of the congress will be a presentation in fireworks at exposition grounds of pictures of great reclamation projects at Elephant Butte, in New Mexico, and the Salt River valley.

ETHEL BARRYMORE DENIES ALLEGED INTERVIEW

New York, Oct. 2.—Charles Frohman has received the following telegram from Miss Ethel Barrymore, denying the interview credited to her in a St. Louis paper:

"Last week in Detroit I received a telegram from your advance agent asking if I would give an interview to a St. Louis paper. I wired him that I would do so and on my arrival here I arranged to see a young lady from the paper, after the mature performance yesterday. I was horrified to read in the morning issue of the paper that I was cruelly and wrongly quoted. The American society women were never touched upon and those who know me realize too well my love and admiration for my American sister, and not for worlds would I utter or make a statement in New York so abusive and low as quoted in the paper of this day. I have made no reply either to the St. Louis paper or to the many telegrams from papers from New York and elsewhere. I have referred them all to you, and want you to show them in the strongest manner the absolute falseness of that statement. I feel terrible about it. Do your utmost and place me right before my friends and the public."

GIRL MAKES DESPERATE EFFORT TO SAVE FATHER

Laurens, S. C., Oct. 2.—In an effort to save her father, on trial for the murder of her sweetheart, Miss Garrison, while on the witness-stand yesterday, tore up a letter of sympathy she is alleged to have written the victim's mother and offered in evidence by the prosecution. J. Henry Garrison killed J. Louis Williamson last July, and the former's defense is the "unwritten law." Miss Garrison, who was the only witness, testified that on the night of the tragedy she and Williamson, to whom she was engaged, were in the parlor of her home when her father appeared at the window and shot her fiancée. Williamson died three hours later.

The prosecuting attorney asked Miss Garrison to identify a letter she is said to have written after the shooting, and she promptly tore it into bits. Owing to her state of hysteria, she was not re-called by the court. The trial was not concluded.
