POLICE JUDGE SNOWBOUND.

Mayor Brewer has appointed John E. Hagley, police judge pro tem, to serve during the absence of Judge Murphy in Nevada. Shortly before New Year's Judge Murphy went to Nevada to look after some mining property. The trip necessitated about a hundred-mile trip which was made without incident but the return trip proved to be different. When within a few miles of the stage station the snowstorm became so heavy that the road was impassable and Ogden's police judge was snowbound. Fortunately the telephone line was in working order and a message was sent to the railroad station where it was later transmitted to Ogden friends of the judge, telling them of his predicament. The judge's return to Ogden is expected daily.

Judge Hagley held a short session of police court yesterday morning and disposed of a number of minor cases, the defendants being those who inhibited too freely on New Year's day. All cases in which the city and state are concerned will be held until the return of Judge Murphy.

MOTHER IN SAD FLIGHT.
