OGDEN NEWS. OGDEN, UTAH, - JULY 5, 1901. CHILD SEVERELY BURNED. Little Four-Year-Old Son of H. G. Smurthwaite Frightfully Injured. Tragic Death of Ed. Whalberg at Kemmerer - Funeral of Little Blaine Hestmark-Hortleulture Board.

The funeral services over the remains of little Blaine L. Hestmark, the seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hestmark, who was killed in Ogden canyon by being thrown under a wagon on Monday evening, and dragged to death, were held at the family residence, No. 666 Twenty-third street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Appropriate and sweet vocal music was furnished by the church choir. Rev. Wm. E. Maison of the Episcopal church officiated and delivered a very touching and consoling address. The casket was covered with beautiful floral designs, as tokens of sympathy. The house was crowded, as was also the large lawn in front of the house, with sympathizing friends. A large funeral cortege followed the remains to the city cometery, where they were laid to rest in the family burlal ground.

CHILD SEVERELY BURNED.

The little four-year-old son of H. G. Smurthwalte was quite severely burned yesterday morning. The boy awoke about 6:30 in the morning and went to his mother's bedside and turned on the elected. Built electric light, awakening her. She feeling weary did not set up immediately, and the little fellow went to the kitchen, got some matches, and went out to the rear of the house in his night clothes and set a pile of paper on fire. He turned to go to the house when his night dress caught on fire, and his screams brought help. His night dress was torn from his body, but not until his right side from the ankle to the shoulder, also his stomach, was badly Dr. Rich was summoned an zave the boy every possible relief, and hopes that he will recover from his ins, but his condition is quite seri-u The boy is resting as peacefully as can be expected under the circumstances.

EGYPT'S OLDEST MAN.

A New and Curious Mummy Now in the British Museum.

The Egyptian gallery at the British museum has just come into possession of the mummy of a man which may well be the oldest known body of any human being. The facts concerning It are briefly summed up in the following inscription reproduced from the case containing the mummy:

"Body of a man who was buried in a shallow oval grave hollowed out of sandstone on the west bank of the Nile in upper Egypt. Before burial the body was treated with a preparation of bitumen and was arranged in the posture in which it now lies, on its left side, with the hands before the face and the knees drawn up nearly on a level with the chin. The grave (which has been rough-ly imitated by the model here exhibit-ed) was covered with slabs of unworked stone, and in it beside the body were disposed flint knives and a number of vases partly filled with the remains and dust of funeral offerings. The man probably belonged to a fair skinned, light haired race, which may be regarded as one of the aboriginal stocks of Egypt, whose settlements are usually found on the west bank of the Nile The style of the flint implements found in the grave indicates that the man lived in the later neolithic period of Egypt, that is, in remote ages long be-fore the rule of Menes, the first historial king of Egypt.

The grave was first seen by a wan-dering Arab; he reported his discovery to a British official, who immediately sent a couple of Egyptian soldiers to guard it day and night until it could be safely removed. The body was not a munimy of the ordinary historic Egyp-tian period, such as that of Rameses II, the father of the Pharoah of the Exobitumen, the Arable word for which is past even Menes, the earliest king to which Egyptian records made refer-ence, who, according to Mariette, ruled about 5004 B. C. Then we are among two prehistoric races, one the conquer-ors and the other the conquered, out of which even a the Ference at the second

To

Dozens of three-volume novels might be written about any one of the Derbys since Dlomed won the initial event over a hundred and twenty years ago. The winning of this world-famous race is so coveted by all classes of race horse owners, and such huge fortunes have frequently depended upon the success of certain animals, that it is small wonder extraordinary romances are bound up in the history of the Blue Riband of the Turf. Yet, once the event of the year is over, the fickle-minded public rarely troubles itself about the fate of the champion. A remarkable end was that of Blue

Gown, the tremendously popular favor-ite of 1863. The public backed its opinon dead in the face of the owner, Sin John Hawley, who supported his two other representatives, Green Sleeves and Rosicrucian, for a very large sum. Blue Gown, after being sold for £5,000 eventually found a purchaser in a wealthy sporting American, who was, however, too parsimonious to insure his valuable ton of horse flesh against the erils of the voyage across the Atlantic He had cause to regret this, as heavy tey weather was encountered, Blue Gown unfortunately succumbed to oneumonia, and was buried with due honors at sea. Silvio, who fetched the then enormous price of £7,600, broke his leg and had to be shot. A half share of Klarikoff was sold to the plunging Marquis of Hastings for 6,000 guineas, and during the journey to Epsom the horse's box caught fire and the valuable race horse was with much difficulty rescued. The horse seemed to be born unlucky. In the race won by Kettledrum his head was turned the wrong way when the start-er's flag fell, and it is an extraordinary fact that on the return journey this un-fortunate horse's box again took fire, and on this occasion the poor animal was burnt to a cinder. The friendly bullet has been requisttioned to terminate the existence of many famous Blue Riband winners. It will be fresh within the memorie of many readers that Holocauste, the famous French thoroughbred, had to be that on Epsom Downs, owing to an ac ident met with in the race. In the notorious race won by Running Rain-af-terward disqualified, owing to the disovery that he was a 4-year-old-Leander fell and was shot. To make this scandalous Derby worse, it was ascertained that Leander was a year over the age limit .- London Daily Mail.
