MR. BLAIN'S CONTRIBUTION. Presidential candidates, as a rule, are not depended upon for large sub-scriptions, the only exceptions, the are not depended upon for large sub-scriptions, the only exceptions, the writer believes, having been Mr. Tilden and Mr. Blain. The former is said to have spent over half a million dollars in the campaign of 1876. A tale hangs to Mr. Blain's contribution to the cam-paign of 1884. At the outset of that campaign Mr. Blain drew his check for $25,000, and sent it to the commit-tee as his share of the campaign ex-penses. In the closing days of the cam-paign when the effects of the Bur-chard incident and the Field banquet were making themselves felt, the members of the national committee in direct charge of the Republican cam-paign became badly scared over the re-sult in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut and decided as a last des-perate expedient to save their candi-date that it was necessary to at once raiso $150,000 to be used in New York City and in two or three of the larger New Jersey towns. New Jersey towns. Mr. Blain was informed of the emergency and the difficulty the commit-tee was having in raising the necesgency and the dimiduity file constitu-tee was having in raising the neces-sary funds. Assurances were given to the candidate for the presidency that the money would be collected and re-paid later if he would advance a hund-red thousand dollars. In this way the required sum was made up and promptly placed where it was thought it would do the most good. But when the Republicans were defeatd further subscriptions could not be obtained and the national committee closed up its affairs leaving the $100,000 due Mr. Blaine unpaid and un-provided for. And it was thus that to the sting of political defeat was added chagrin at a pecuniary loss which was without remedy. There are many who believe that this loss was the cause of Mr. Blaine's reluctance to again become a that this loss was the cause of Mr, Blaine's reluctance to again become a candidate in 1888, when the prospects of heavy expenditures were as certain as in 1884, while the outlook for sucseemed a good deal more uncertain than it did in the former campaign

FIVE SALOONS ALREADY.

FIVE SAL-JONS ALREADY.
These property owners and tenants occupy every 'oot of ground along the south side of the street, with the exception of the ground occupied by the Utah Electric concern and the following saloons: The Germania, 79 west First South, wholesale and retail, a Salt Luke Brewing company beer station; the New Family Resort, 53 west First South, a Fisher station; the Fed Top Res. A, 59 west First South, a Fisher station; the Fed Top Res. A, 59 west First South, a Salt Lake Brewing station. As can be zeen, the west half of the block is plentifully supplied, this is on the south side, only, too. It can be seen that a big sum of taxes collected by the city comes from the men who are asking a small favor—such a small favor—from the city. All they want is to keep the neighborhood from having to tolerate the odor of more beer stations. As business men and business institutions, they are asking that women and children can continue to reach their place of business without having to no pass dives. There is row but one path left free of these, and an application is now before the council to open a beer distributing station in the clean neighborhood. If, as explained, the council says "Yes," it will be a slap at dozens of the city's biggest business men and taxpayets.

MAYOR AND THE SALOONS.

Mayor Bransford, when asked for a statement in regard to the saloon ques-tion generally, said: "In my opinion there are not too many saloons in Sait there are not too many saloons in sait Lake, providing they are kept under proper control, considering the popula-tion of the city and the number of sa-loons usually found in cities of similar size in the country. I suppose appli-cations for saloon licenses will continue to be granted as long as conditions seem to justify men in going into the seem to justify men in going into the saloon business. The city has no au-thority to grant one man a license and refuse a license to another man. It would be unjust in my estimation to re-quire one man to close his saloon and allow another man to keep his saloon open.

ONLY ONE SOLUTION.

"There are many," continued Mayor Bransford, "who advocate cutting down the number of saloons in the city to a dozen or so, by imposing a high license tax. This in my opinion, would be a condition much to be de-sired, as it would eliminate many places now a source of constant trouble to the police. But the council cannot grant one man a license to run a saloon and refuse another man the same privilege.

JEWELL WAS A WONDER.

The importance of influence of having representative men in the several states at the head of the finance committee is a well settled fact and the appointment of such men has developed some very successful and shrewd beggars of money for campaign purposes. Republican veterans, when in a rem-iniscent mood delight to talk about the late Marshall Jewell, who as a collector of campaign funds never had his equal. When others failed Jewell al-ways succeeded, and it is told of him ways succeeded, and it is told of him that in Boston in/a single day he raised $170,000. As a beggar his methods were most winning, and it was seldom, in-deed, that he left a business office or counting room empty handed. Had he been as skillful in the use as he was in the collection of campaign funds he would have ranked first among the great political generals of his time. Zach Chandler was a good deal of a diamond in the rough, but he knew pretty well what cords to strike in order to make men generous. He was chairman of the Republican national chairman of the Republican national committee in 1876, and there was no lack of funds in that campaign. Ste-phen W. Dorsey, who managed the Republican campaign in 1880, never attempted to collect much money him-self, but he was surrounded by men who raised it for him, and he used it, as results showed, with consummate skill. In 1884 B. F. Jones and Stephen B. Elkins contributed liberally to the Re publican campaign fund, and were very successful in inducing others to do the
