THE EPIZOTIC.

And the Best Mode of Treatment.

The prescriptions embodied in the most efficacious of any that were tried SEW G in all the various Eastern cities where the epizootic has prevailed:

I hear that you have, in America, a disease amongst horses, and, as I believe, from the accounts I have received from friends residing there, that it is of an inflammatory character, will you allow me to suggest a remedy, which, in similar instances of the human frame, I have found to arrest and cure, and which, by making public in your influential journal, might mitigate the ravages of the disease, and be the means of saving your horses' lives and mitigating their disease, when given at the first indication of it? The following remedies will be found as simple as efficacious, as well as inexpensive:

Give the horses a drench, three times The board of directors of the Oregon | a day, of one or two drachms of pure half of water. The horses should have cool gruel mashes, not hot ones, as these also aggravate the disease, and instead of hay or hard corn, this latter alone should be used well ground and made moist for easy mastication and deglutition. Their drinking water might also be acid. The Orleans Princes, to-day, for the ulated with the sulphuric acid, and after a time they like it best, the same as human patients in similar circumstances, that is with inflammatory actions or fevers, like acidulated drinks, such as lemonade, &c.

A little practical experience in these remedies will soon show your yeterinary surgeons that they can in the worst cases' increase the doses, both of the sulphuric acid and of the opium, with benefit. But, above all things, I would desire you to impress upon ev erybody's mind that all natural purging is to be stopped as soon as possible, and it will be thus inferred that all purgative medicines are most injurious.

By making this generally known as Rome, 20.—In the Chamber of Dap- early as you can, you would confer a great boon on your countrymen, and save your horses.
