Ogden, June 5.—The concert given last evening at the Ogden tabernacle under the auspices of the Ogden Press club was a most successful affair, especially from an artistic standpoint. Seldom if ever before were so many professionalists heard in one evening. Prof. Willard Andelin of Provo sang several solos. He possesses a most wonderful bass voice, rich in quality, and especially powerful on the lower notes. His voice pleased all who heard him, and they were not satisfied until he responded with an encore. Prof. Willard Weihe of Salt Lake once more charmed the people of Ogden with his masterly touch on the violin. He was down for but a number on the program, but the audience continued its applause until he responded with another selection.

PILGRIMAGE OF THE UTAH PIONEERS SIXTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1847.

At 5 o'clock a. m. the thermometer stood at 51 degrees in the pioneer camp. The morning was calm and cloudy; some slight showers of rain fell during the day. "We resumed our journey," writes Orson Pratt, "and soon entered the dry bed of a stream, and continuing on the same for some distance, till at length we reached a copious stream of water, which a short distance below was lost in the sand. We followed this stream to its fountain, where it issues from the left bank. The name is 'Warm Spring,' the water is not so cold as one would expect. The quantity is nearly sufficient to carry a common flour mill, being very clear. By our road it is 15 miles from the junction of the Laramie river and North Fork. Its latitude as determined by a meridian observation of the sun is 42 degrees 15 minutes 6 seconds. While our cattle were grazing here, a small company of Oregon emigrants, consisting of 11 wagons, came in ahead of us, having taken another branch of the road leading from Laramie, and intersecting our road a short distance above the spring, and on the opposite side, we saw an old line kin, where probably time had been procured for the use of the foot. The bluffs in its neigh-hood were principally of a soft limestone formation, and on the right bank it rose to a considerable height. In the afternoon we traveled 10 1/2 miles and encamped about half a mile west of the little company of Oregon emigrants, on Cottonwood creek. Day's journey, 17 miles. From the left bank of the creek, by the side of the road, issued a clear and cold spring of water. The grass is very good; timber much more plentiful than below Laramie. It consists of ash, cottonwood, willows and box elder in low places, with mountain cherry, wild currants, pine and cedar thinly scattered on the bluffs. The wild sage grows in great quantities, and increases in size as the country increases in elevation. The wild rose bushes in great abundance. The principal herbs and plants of this elevated region are highly odorous, permeating the atmosphere with their fragrance. A thunder shower passed over just after sundown.
