Meeting of Railway Officials.

NEW YORK, 11.—The executive officers of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railway Companies have been in session in New York to day, discussing the points of difference between their companies; the meeting has been most harmonious and a basis for a permanent arrangement between the companies will be submitted to their respective boards of directors within the next ten days.

Recovered at Last.

NORFOLK, Va., 11. — Captain Brown arrived here to-day, in charge of the iron safe of the United States man-of-war Cumberland, which was run into and sunk in Hampton road, by the confederate ram Virginia, in 1862. Divers had been at work on the wreck ten years having in view the recovery of the safe. The lucky man had only been at the wreck forty-eight hours when he found the safe. The water at that place is seventy-eight feet deep.

WESTERN.

Republican Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO, 11.—The republican State convention met at Sacramento yesterday afternoon; Sargent presided. The convention adopted strong anti-railroad resolutions, which were supported by Gorham in a vigorous speech, denouncing the Central Pacific. Pacheco has withdrawn as a candidate for governor. T. G. Phelps was nominated by acclamation; Joseph M. Cavis was nominated for Lieut. Gov., and O. H. Hallatt for Secretary of State; for Controller, J. J. Green; Surveyor, R. E Gardner; Treasurer, Wm. Beckman; Attorney General, E. D. Sawyer; Clerk of the Supreme Court, Grant J. Taggart; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Ezra C. Carr. The convention is considered a piece of stupid trickery, which deceives no one.

FOREIGN.

CANADA.

The "Vicksburg."

MONTREAL, 11.—The steamship Vicksburg was an iron vessel and considered the best ship of the Dominion line. She was about 2,500 tons. Her value is stated at $325,000, fully insured in England. Torrance & Co., agents of the Dominion line, say that the Vicksburg had only fifteen steerage passengers on board.

Warned the "Vicksburg."

OTTAWA, Ont., 11.—A passenger from the Dominion steamer Quebec, who arrived in this city yesterday, reports that the vessel spoke the Vicksburg just as the latter was about encountering the ice, and the captain of the Quebec warned the captain of the ill-fated vessel not to risk a passage, as it was only with difficulty that the Quebec was enabled to get through.

A Crisis in Greece — The Central Asian Question.

The Daily News reports that a crisis is imminent at Athens, which may result in the abdication of the King. Five Turkish men-of-war have been ordered to cruise in Greek waters. The Russian minister has advised the king not to abdicate without securing the rights of his heir to the throne. The possibility of the intervention of foreign powers is discussed at Athens.

A special from Berlin to the Morning Post, referring to the rumors of the friendly understanding between England and Russia on the Central Asian question, says it is reported that the suggestion of a neutral zone has been revived, and it is favorably received on both sides.

Hard Glass.

The subject of hard, elastic and malleable glass is beginning to attract considerable attention, and has several times been referred to in our columns. Some experiments made by Dr. A. Bauer, in Vienna, have recently been made public, and will, no doubt, prove of interest to our readers. He remarks at the outset that the plates of glass prepared by him do not differ essentially in external appearance from ordinary glass; when struck they have a peculiar ring, and may frequently be thrown on the ground without breaking; but when they do break, unlike other glass, they break into a multitude of small fragments with very sharp corners, which is a great disadvantage of this glass. They stand scratching well, but, like those made in France, they break when struck hard. Dr. Bauer prepared his plates in this way: An ordinary sheet of glass was heated until it began to bend, and was then dipped into a bath of melted paraffin at a temperature of 200 degrees C. (392 degrees F.) The principal object was not to cool the hot and soft plate steadily and slowly, as is usually done, but to cool it suddenly to a certain temperature and then to allow it to cool slowly. If the cooling takes place in this manner it is no longer possible to cut the glass with a diamond, and it is easy to prove by the ordinary scale of hardness that its hardness is greatly increased. The thickness of the glass has also increased with its hardness; the ordinary glass used by Bauer in his experiments was 2.429 to 2.438, which, after hardening, became 2.460 to 2.468. It cannot be denied, says Bauer, that this glass will be useful for many purposes, and also that there are many uses to which it cannot be applied on account of its breaking into such small pieces when it does break. There are also difficulties met with in preparing this glass on a large scale, especially in introducing hollow glass and large plates quickly and uniformly into the bath.

It is not as yet possible to explain the cause of the glass being hardened by this method of cooling. The phenomenon involuntarily reminds one of the well known Boulogne flasks and the Prince Rupert drops, but the breaking of the latter cannot be sufficiently explained, since we know that this does not happen if the ends are eaten off instead of being broken. We are also reminded that when cooled slowly the constituents of the glass separate to a certain extent, which can only be prevented by a rapid cooling. It was formerly believed that glass was a perfectly homogeneous and amorphous substance. In 1852, however, Prof. Leydolt proved by etching that all our glass, which apparently shows no signs of crystallization, consists of a mixture which is in part crystalline. When glass is heated to fusion, or even to softness, and then slowly cooled, it easily happens that the constituents separate and form crystalline groups. Reaumur made this experiment in the last century, hoping to make porcelain out of glass, and the product was called Reaumur's porcelain. Siegwart and others, a few years ago, although with a different view, made experiments on this change. These experiments showed that this separation takes place very easily if the glass is slowly cooled, and that sometimes the crystaleine portion becomes visible, and when this takes place the glass is said to be devitrified. From these new experiments we may conclude that fused glass in a fused state forms a tolerably homogeneous mass, which separates more or less on cooling. If it is cooled rapidly to a certain point, the separation does not go so far, and the glass remains more homogeneous, which may be the cause of its hardness on the one hand, and of its peculiar way of breaking on the other.—Journal of Applied Chemistry.
