Low Figures in Divorce
Hearing.

WILL SUE TO ANNUL TITLE.

Ringle Case Develops Startling Testimony of Unusual Nature—Defendant Must Pay Alimony.

After establishing the fact on cross-examination in divorce court yesterday afternoon that Mrs. Agnes Ringle, a handsome middle-aged woman, had stolen a deed from her father-in-law, R. L. Ringle, while he was thought to be on his death bed, and had it recorded in the name of her husband, William Ringle, deputy game warden, a summons in a civil suit was served upon her as she stepped from the witness chair. The suit to annul the deed and to thwart her scheme to obtain an interest in the property will be filed today.

Her medical tactics, which almost divided the family against itself, were aired before Judge Morse when Ringle, whom she is suing for a divorce, was called to show cause why he should not pay alimony while the suit was pending. In her testimony she said that Ringle had $700 which he had recently drawn from the bank and property, which was valued at $1,000. This property, it developed, was bequeathed to her husband in his father's will and was not to be recorded until the father's death. She admitted that she found the will in a drawer and without the knowledge of her husband or the consent of his father, had it recorded. Then when she filed suit of a divorce she asked for an interest in the property.

When Ringle took the stand he admitted that he had recently drawn $700 from the bank, in fact it was the day she filed her suit for divorce.

"It was a great relief to me," he said, "to have the money. I am a cripple, my honor, having lost an arm and a leg in an accident, and I will need it in my old age, now being a man passed middle life. It is probable that I will lose by position next month and I am unable to do manual labor."

KNEW NOTHING OF DEED.
"As to the deed," he continued, "I did not know it was in existence until my father sued the city for damages caused by a flood in 1905. When the case came to trial he was not notified because the property was recorded in my name. My wife admitted to me that she found the deed and had it recorded. As a result of this, my wife, who followed me separated."

Despite his plea, Judge Morse ordered him to pay his wife $15 a month alimony until the suit was settled. Mrs. Ringle was a widow when Ringle married her in Salt Lake on Oct. 3, 1903. Since they separated Mrs. Ringle has lived at 247 West Sixth street, having boarded in order to provide for herself. She has a young and pretty daughter by a former marriage, who is a stenographer in the Western Pacific railroad office. In her office she alleges that Ringle aided her wife's names and forced her to leave his house.

JURISDICTION LACKING.

Although her husband, John B. Felber, has a lucrative business in Cleveland, Ohio, and is worth several thousand dollars, Mrs. Felber, who was granted a divorce by Judge Morse, is unable to obtain support from him because he is not within the jurisdiction of the court. For the past three years, Mrs. Felber, who is an elderly woman, has worked faithfully in spite of failing health to provide for herself and two children, Alexander, 5 years old, and Hope, 4 years old. They live with friends at No. 231 North West Temple street. The couple was married here on July 2, 1906. In September 1906, Felber deserted her without any cause leaving her in destitute circumstances.

A SOLDIER OF FORTUNE.

Albert Friedel, the son of a wealthy Pittsburgh family, had to choose between the alternative of being punished for contempt of court by Judge Morse or signing an order to his wife, who is suing him for a divorce, for his last $5. After consulting with his attorney, William H. Leary, he signed the order and then borrowed fifty dollars from his lawyer to obtain a meal and a place to sleep last night.

Friedel is contesting the case to obtain possession of Alameda, his one-year-old child, whom he wants to take back to his family in Pittsburgh. When he was 19 years old, he gave himself up to a wanderlust and left home. He joined the army and was transferred to Douglas in 1906. While he was there he met the young woman he married. As soon as he informed his family about the marriage and they learned that he had not married a Catholic, his father repudiated him and threatened to disinherit him. After the baby was born and their responsibilities grew heavier, the couple met with a position and had no money to provide for his wife, she returned to her mother. He has made several efforts to get her to live with him again, but she refuses to do it. It ended in a quarrel with his mother-in-law, and then his wife sued him for a divorce on the grounds of non-support and asked for the custody of the child. His father heard of the separation, and he refused to give him a check for $250 and his brother-in-law a check for $150, but he returned both checks, stating that he would take care of himself. For the last four months he has been employed at the Utah Clothing store at $25 a week. A month ago the court ordered him to pay his wife $15 alimony, but on account of his children, most of his wages was attached, and he had hardly enough to live on.

BRIDE FOR FOUR MONTHS.

Mrs. Helen Berger, who declared that she does not believe in divorce, was granted a decree from John B. Berger, a machinist. After deserting her four months after their marriage in January, 1908, she says that he has interfered with her business and hampered her in every possible way. Once she had him arrested when he broke into her apartments in the Eagle flats on East Second street and stole her watch after breaking up the furniture and destroying her music.

JEPSON WAS CRUEL.

After resorting to the police and the criminal courts for protection from her husband, George H. Jepson, who threatened to kill her, Mrs. Helga Josephine Jepson was granted a divorce by Judge Morse, on the grounds of cruelty. They

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Per-na caused to disappear.

The following notice is being sent out today by local commission houses to the retail trade over the city: "We find at the present time, that we must change our credit system, as the extension of time on payments upon our class of goods has already gone to the limit, until we are unable to carry a sufficient stock to supply the demand. Our money is outstanding so long here that it is returned that we have therefore introduced a system of weekly collections. We are pleased to say that a large number of our customers are conceding to this plan, as they themselves find that this indiscriminate credit is demoralizing their business."

FIRE DESTROYS OPERA HOUSE.

Beautiful Building Eaten Up By Flames Yesterday.

Fire destroyed the beautiful Opera house yesterday, entailing a loss of $28,000 to the owner, C. H. Hampton. A mercantile business was conducted on the ground floor and it was here that most of the loss occurred.

The blaze was discovered about 2 o'clock by Dr. E. W. Snedley. Soon a large crowd gathered and strenuous efforts were made to remove the merchandise stored in the building, but the building could not be saved. It was with difficulty that the flames were prevented from spreading to other buildings.

As soon as he was apprised of the fire, Chief Glone of the Salt Lake department sent Captain William T. Ayland and Amos Moreton and a number of men to the scene. An engine and hose wagon were loaded onto flat cars at the Salt Lake & Ogden Railroad company's depot, and a quick run was made to the place, steam in the firehoses being generated in the meantime. It was found, however, that nothing could be done to save the all but consumed building, and the structure was not unloosed.

The building formerly belonged to the People's Opera house and Mercantile company, passed later into the hands of J. J. Fisher and finally was secured by Mr. Hampton. It cost $16,000 and the stock of merchandise carried by Mr. Hampton was valued at a like figure. Building and stock were insured at about 90 per cent of value.
