Promptly at 1 o'clock Saturday, on the invitation of Miss Briggs, a small but select gathering of the friends of the latte lamented feline met in the ofthe latte lamented feline met in the of-fice of the sales manager to pay their respects to the memory of their depart-ed friend. Gorline (presumably a built dog) was refused an invitation on gen-eral principles, but upon reconsidera-tion priviledge of attendance was granted owing to his having previously adopted one of the kittens of the de-funct cat. Miss Ronney was accorded an invitation upon the same grounds. Foreman Snyder sat astride an empty nail box and stolidly chewed tobacco nail box and stolidly chewed tobace while Miss Murray played an opening prelude on Miss Briggs' typewriter, Mr prelude on Miss Briggs' typewriter Mr. Folsom, as an authority on cats, was called to the floor and in a few well chosen remarks extolled the virtues of the departed from which it would appear that it was her habit to mew only at lunch time, thereby calling attention to the attenuated appearance of her thoracic region, which Miss Briggs had persistently but ineffectually attempted to conceal beneath an adipose covering made up principally of bread crumbs and dried beef. Further remarks disclosed the fact that the departed had always exhibited the most kind and gentle disposition towards all and had never been known to exhibit even the never been known to exhibit even the customary cruelty towards mice, doubt-less owing to their total absence from the premises. Miss Retnsceimer, of the secretary's office, then sang a touching solo entitled "Red Wings," followed by solo entitled "Red Wings," followed by a tender requiem upon the multigraph by Miss Lillian Berrum. A few appropriate remarks were made by Messrs. Ross and Wardrup, while the features of the ninth assistant secretary, Cameron, bore a suspiciously red and moist appearance as he dubiously mopped his face on his wife's silk hankerchief. Miss Sulliyan expressed the optains of all sullivan expressed the opinion of all present in that a dog, though a buildog, that would wantonly killi a cat, should be banished from civilization. Mr. Ensign was of the opinion that the dog merely followed his natural instinct and accordingly was not to blame. Mr. Cox, as an any witness to the transfer. as an eye witness to the tragedy, expressed the opinion that the dog committed the deed with murderous intent and with malice aforethought and in direct defiance of his verbal request not to do it. The total opinions of those present was then summed up on the Burrough's adding machine by Miss Grether, of the accounting department, whereupon the gathering was dispersed to enjoy the half holiday granted, SCRIPSIT VALE.
