At the Antietam national cemetery, dedicated to-day, the military and Masonic bodies escorted the President and party to the cemetery, where an immense throng was gathered. Gov. Swann, on assuming the chair, tendered a welcome to the President and the Governors of other States. The President invoked the Almighty to speedily restore harmony to the country. The Grand Master Masons, M. D., laid the corner stone. Then followed Ex-Governor Bradford's oration. After referring to the distinguished persons present, he gave the history of the battle of Antietam at great length, referring to the circumstances preceding the battle, the public anxiety consequent upon previous disasters, how the army was reorganized and won the victory. He concluded with invoking adherence to the Constitution come peril to it from what source it may, from State rights, or from consolidation. In the name of the men who made it, by the memory of the men who died for it, he appealed to the people to preserve and protect and defend it.

After a few remarks from President Johnson and others, the poem was delivered, and the services were closed with benediction, and the Presidential party escorted to the station.

The women and three children, captives, have been delivered up by Spotted Tail.

An Omaha letter says an officer arrived from Big Horn River estimates the hostile Indians north at 22,000, the most of whom are under Red Cloud, chief of the Upper Brule Sioux. Several hostile tribes have concentrated between Forts Phil. Kearney and Smith. Red Cloud is reported to have said that he does not want peace.

There was a serious Fenian riot to-day, and several persons were killed and wounded. the peace commissioners at North Platte, to secure peace, are failures, except a treaty consummated with small bands of Brule and Ogallala Sioux. Pawnee Killer, a Cheyenne chief, left the council in a rage.

St. Louis, 22.

The Republican's special says the council at North Platte accomplished nothing conclusive. The Indians frankly stated the cause of trouble. Sherman's answer was sharp and explicit. The railroads must be built; the Indians must not interfere with the government. He supposed the road was agreed upon by the Cheyennes four years ago; military posts and stations were not then considered a cause of war; if the Indians are damaged, they will receive compensation; they should have no powder nor lead, until a definite treaty is made; they had attacked a railway train and killed unarmed men bringing goods to feed the Indians. He submitted a proposition to the Indians to accept homes on new reservations; they are given till the 1st of November to answer, at a council to be held at the same place; in the meantime they could hunt on the Republican Fork. The General represented that we are building costly roads, and they could not be stopped, no more than the sun or moon; if they did not stop hostilities, they would all be killed.
