SENATOR NYE.—The Philadelphia Times of April 26 thus discourses of "Jim" Nye, the quondam brilliant senator from Nevada—

"In 1860 the name of James W. Nye became a household word. His speeches in the memorable campaign that gave the first national victory to the Republicans, attracted the attention of the country, and were highly appreciated by Mr. Lincoln, who appointed Mr. Nye to the Governorship of the then new Territory of Nevada, previously known as the Washoe gold region. Genial, kind and generous to a fault, Governor Nye was soon a favorite with the pioneers who were founding new empires, and in a few years he came to the National Capital, with the baptism of the new born State, to take his seat as Senator. In the heat of the desperate political battles which were fought during the decade following 1860, Governor Nye was ever foremost in the conflict, and his thrilling eloquence and infinite jest quickened Senates and enthused the masses from the hustings. But time, with its swift mutations, brought a different control to his little State, and, as age dimmed his eye and bowed his once erect form, power, place and friends deserted him, and sorrows came—'not single spies, but in battalions.' There were no applaudits to welcome him in his mountain home. Other altars had been erected, and his worshipers had wandered in their devotion. The man of gold had climbed into his place, and his work was done. The painful story of his mental aberration first came out as he strayed from a railroad train in Virginia, and was found in helpless childishness groping his way he knew not whither; and now in the Bloomingdale Asylum rests the brilliant Senator and orator to whom the intellect and culture of the nation but yesterday paid tribute. Thus man 'frets his hour upon the stage, and then is heard no more.'"

ANATHEMA.—The Pope uses vigorous language when denouncing those whom he considers his enemies. In his letter to the Swiss Catholic clergy, denouncing the "old Catholics," whom Germany has just placed on a footing with the more orthodox Catholics as to Catholic cemeteries and Catholic revenues, his Holiness says—

"Already we have censured and condemned this deplorable sect, which has drawn from the arsenal of old heresies so many errors about the leading principles of Catholic faith. It assails the very foundations of the Catholic religion; it audaciously rejects the dogmatic definitions of the Vatican Council, and by every means in its power labors for the ruin of souls. Let Catholics avoid their religious ceremonies; their instructions, the pulpits of pestilence which they have had the hardihood to erect in order to betray from the consecrated doctrines of Catholicity."

That Black Hills Platinum Mine.

NEW YORK, April 22, 1875.

To the Editor of the Herald:

I enclose herewith a letter just received from General Van Vliet, a highly intelligent officer of the United States army, formerly and for many years stationed in this city, which furnishes additional information upon a subject which is attracting public attention. Truly yours,

THURLOW WEED.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE MISSOURI, OFFICE OF THE CHIEF QUARTERMASTER, FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 17, 1875.

Thurlow Weed, Esq.:—

MY DEAR SIR—I read with great pleasure your remarks on our old friend Father De Smet. Over twenty years ago my home was on the prairies. I passed several years between the Missouri river and the Rocky Mountains, and it was while leading that life I became acquainted with Father De Smet. I only refer to this in connection with the precious metals in the Black Hills. One day, in 1851, at the dinner table of our friend, Colonel Robert Campbell of St. Louis, the conversation turned on our wandering in the mountains, when Father De Smet related the following incident, which occurred in the Black Hills beyond the Cheyenne: One day while among the Indians a chief came to him and showed him some pieces of metal which he had in his bullet pouch. As soon as the father saw it he recognized it as platinum. In company with the chief he visited the place and discovered a large mine of this metal. He said it was of great extent and untold value. He made the Indian promise never to divulge the secret, for if he did the white people would clear the Indians out of the country. He also promised to keep the secret. He told us that he had carefully described the location of this mine, and that when he died the secret would be with his church.
Father De Smet could not have been deceived, and I firmly believe that there is a valuable platinum mine between the Yellowstone and the Cheyenne. As this metal is worth $115 per pound avordupois and silver only $18, you will understand the fortune that awaits some lucky man. Yours truly.

STEWART VAN VLIET, U.S.A.

THE SECRET.—Those who prize a beautiful head of hair, (and we know our lady friends all do,) will thank us for a few words on the invaluable qualities of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR as a dressing. In our own case it heals a humor, keeps the head free from dandruff and scurf, stops the tendency of our hair to fall, and heightens its beauty. A slight teaching with it removes the coarse and dry appearance which neglected hair puts on, imparts a rich gloss, and makes us resentable in the most fashionable company. Such rare qualifications, presented in a single preparation, create for it an enduring value; but add to these the faculty of restoring to gray locks their youthful color, and maintaining our good looks with so small an expenditure of time and attention, and you stamp it prime favorite with the public, and ensure its permanent and enduring popularity.—Huntsville (Ala.) Republican.
