Sad Death of Young Man—Lafayette B. Goble, aged 23, a more than usually promising young man, died at Helper, Jan. 13 last, from Bright's disease, and was buried on the 16th inst at Manti. Mr. Goble had been operated upon for relief, but instead, it resulted in convulsions which terminated fatally. He was about to be married to an estimable girl, and had built him a house at Sterling when death took him away. A peculiarly sad feature of his demise is the fact death took him away. A peculiarly sad feature of his demise is the fact that this was the second prospective husband death had taken from the unfortunate young woman

Song Recital at Y. M. C. A.—Miss Rosina Godbe was presented in song recital last evening, at the Y. M. C. A. before a crowded house. Miss Godbe acquitted herself with credit. She has a sweet mezzo soprano voice which has been well developed, and the numbers selected were well adapted to her voice. The number witning. the numbers selected were well adapted to her voice. The number winning special applause was "Rest, Little Rosebud," a lullaby composed by Mrs, King, a pretty and meritorious bit of melody. The fair debutante was deservedly well received. Miss Judith Evans gave two piano numbers in her usual excellent form, and was enthusiastically encored. Miss Burns was the accompanist. the accompanist.

Funeral of Little Girl—The funeral of little Rose Charlotte Stelter was held from the First ward meetinghouse this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, there being a large attendance of sympathizing friends. The child died Monday, after an illness dating from before the holidays. On Christmas she was presented with a beautiful dell, but was too sick to give it more than a passing glance. Day by day she became gradually worse, and all that could be done by skillful physicians and tender nursing was undertaken in her behalf, but to no avail. The little patient battled heroically for life, but for several days before The little patient battled heroically for life, but for several days before the end came, it was evident that death would claim her. She was born at Milwaukee, Wis., April 21, 1898, and was the daughter of Henry A. and Mary K. Steiter. Rose had been a pupil at the Hamilton school, and was a bright and lovable child.

She Says She Doesn't Care What is Done to Her-Brown's Picture On Cell Wall.

A graphic pen-picture of Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, by Miss Ada Patterson, is going the rounds of the eastern press. The writer was at one time a newspaper woman in Salt Lake, and is now paper woman in Salt Lake, and is now following a similar profession in New York. Of Mrs. Bradley, her physical and mental condition and the efforts that are being put forth to save her life, Miss Patterson says:

"In their offices high above the roar of the city street six keen-eyed lawyers, with the law books piled in high barricade of disarray about their desks, and reams of paper covered with laborious notes, are plauning their subtle campaign to save a woman's life. The mettle of youth and the mellowness of experience are united in the battling lawyers.

"In Washington the four young men who constitute the firm of Wells, Hoovwho constitute the firm of Wells, Hoover & Wells, are working with all the brilliancy and fervor of youthful spirits engaged in a cavalry charge. In Salt Lake City two men with silvering hair, judges both, are working assiduously, with zeal tempered and vision broadened by legal and judicial experience of many verse all to the same end and all many years, all to the same end and all with equal confidence.

'They assert that they will save the life of Mrs. Annie Bradley, the woman who a month ago killed a former United States according to the life of Mrs. who a month ago killed a former cont-ed States senator, and who lies brood-ing, half unconscious and wholly indif-ferent to her danger, in the shadow of the grim gallows where Guiteau, the murderer of President Garfield, and 200 others who had taken lives went to their death. their death.

COUNSEL SANGUINE.

"The lawyers are confident that they can save their client. 'No American jury will be out five n.inutes before acquitting her,' declares Robert Wells. From Salt Lake City comes the assurance of Judge Orlander W. Powers, the ance of Judge Orlander W. Powers, the most eloquent pleader in the intermountain region: 'I had given up the criminal branch of the law, and am returning to it only in this case because I know it will be a great victory. It will be the crowning achievement of my life.' my life.'
"In strange, sad contrast to this legal vigor, determination and enthusiasm, is the listless spirit of the little prisoner in the United States jail at Washington in the United States jail at Washington—the small, piteous center of contention in what will be one of the most celebrated trials for murder in America.

"Mrs. Annie Bradley, turning dark, lusterless eyes upon her questioners, answers wearily: 'I don't care what they do with me. It doesn't matter. I am too tired to think of that. I can think only of the past. I don't believe there was any other woman in his life. Did he not say to me a thousand times: "Doily, you are the only woman I ever loved?" He could not change in a moment. There were bitterness and contention in our lives, but they always loved?" He could not change in a mo-ment. There were bitterness and con-tention in our lives, but they always ended in the same way. He kissed my tears away and said, "Dolly, I love you," and I believed him. I believe him now."

"She lies on the cot in her cell and turns a wan little face and stretches thin, piteously small arms toward a newspaper clipping pinned upon the rough plaster of the wall encircled by a holly wreath sent by her sister at Christmas.

"The newspaper clipping is an excellent picture of Senator Arthur Brown of Utah. The face is fean, strong featured and intellectual. The eyes are deep-set and have the steady, penetrating gaze of an incisive mind. The curve the jaw is bold and strong. The ing gaze of an incisive mind. The curve of the jaw is bold and strong. The forehead is broad, full and high. It is the mouth that discloses the dominating trait of the man. It is a straight line, thin-lipped, cruel—such a mouth as is framed for sardonic smiles.

"Strange gods we humans set up for worship. This sinister-faced man of nearly twice her age was the god of Mrs. Bradley's worship; is still the god of her worship.

SLOWLY DECLINING.

"Every morning the young woman looked paler and thinner. Always of fragile frame, she has wasted away in her six weeks in prison until she weighs scarcely 80 pounds. The lassitude that is upon her, the indifference to her fate, may be the lassitude and indifference that presage dooth. The prison physician visits death. The prison physician visits her twice a day. The warden, Capt. Harris, stops longer than usual on his rounds to try to cheer the pathetic little prisoner. The matrons prepare special food for her. Her prison mates shower attentions and kind words upon her, but beyond a wan little smile and a murmured 'thank you,' she does not show any consciousness of what is going on about clousness of what is going on about her. To a friend who visited her prison she said: 'I don't think I will live until the trial. Thank you. Thank everybody. But it really doesn't matter. Nothing matters. I think of matter. Nothing matters. I think of nothing but Arthur. I wonder if he has forgiven me. I wonder if I had been more patient, if I had waited a little longer, if he would not have married me after all."

"George P. Hoover, one of the counsel for the defense, has returned from Salt Lae City with 200 letters written by the senator to Mrs. Bradley. He has asked her to arrange and cataloghe these letters, and that is her dally task when she is strong enough to leave her cell. The first sight of the latter flung her into an enough to leave her cell. The first sight of the latter flung her into an agony of grief. Afterward she count-ed them as the beads of the rosary of her unhappy love. Every night

"In Salt Lake City, where she has lived since her childhood, and where Senator Brown's career reached its fullness, there is profound sympathy for the unhappy woman. It is recalled that on last Memorial day Arthur Brown rose early and went to the cemetery to lay a wreath upon his wife's grave. To Mrs. Bradley he said of this visit

"I stood beside the grave and thought how I had made my first wife suffer. I thought how wretched

I had made you. And I realized that I was the strangest man in the world,
I knew that everybody hated me."

RAILROAD NEWS.

The Salt Lake Route has opened a bureau of information with booklets and pamphlets on places and people of southern California.

A map showing all government irriga-tion projects west of the Missouri river has been issued by the Southern and Union Pacific railroad companies,

The Southern Pacific is considering the advantages of using oil burning engines in as many divisions as possible. The regular fall and winter shortage of coal is becoming a serious one, and is especially troublesome in subsequences.

J. E. Oglesby, commercial agent of the Rock Island, and Mrs. Oglesby will spend a couple of weeks in California where Mr. Oglesby hopes to recover his health which has been in a wretched condition, owing to a cold he caught during the recent sheep convention.

L. S. Hills, for years treasurer of the Utah Light & Railway company, has resigned that position, and George S. Gannett has been named as his successor. D. A. Swan has resigned from the position of cashier and that office will be abolished, throwing its duties man Mr. Gannett. These changes are mon Mr. Gannett, These changes are

H. C. Bush, traffic manager of the Colorado-Midland, accompanied by his daughter, W. Nichols of the Allis Chalmers company and Mr. Nichols' sister, passed through Salt Lake City enroute to Tahita, where they will spend a 30-day vacation. While in this city they were in charge of L. H. Harding, local agent of the Colorado-Midland.

C. O. Whittemore is home from Bull-C. O. Whittemore is home from Bullfrog and visits to other camps in Nevada. Mr. Whittemore succeeded in his adjusting right of way and closing affairs in controversy between the Brock road and the Las Vegas & Tonopah Railroad companies satisfactorily. He says work on the Las Vegas branch will now go ahead rapidly. "All camps are booming and the weather is ideal," says Mr. Whittemore.

William Spears, a telegraph operato William Spears, a telegraph operator from this city, has struck it rich in Nevada, and is said to be worth in the neighborhood of $70,000, with much valuable ground still in his possession. A number of small bones were removed. Mr. Drake has not been kept from his desk, although the operation was exceedingly delicate and painful.

Mark B. Kerr, a brother of Kenneth Kerr and general manager of the Montana-Tonopah Mining company, has been selected as chief engineer and manager of a new railroad and lumber project in Nevada. The men constiproject in Nevada. The men consti-tuting this company have purchased the railway, rolling stock equipment, and timber lands of the Bodie Lumber and timber lands of the Bodie Lumber & Railway company, and backed by Tonopah, San Francisco and Eastern capital, are arranging to build a connecting railroad so as to get the shortest possible route between the terminus of the Bodie company's line and the Tonopah and Goldfield railroad. A route has already been surveyed from Warm Springs, on Mono Lake, to Mina, a distance of 61 miles, and two survey parties are now running anothsurvey parties are now running another line from Warm Springs to the station of Bassalt, on the C. & C., which route is the most feasible will be determined. The Bodle company's railway is a narrow gage, 34 miles long and equipped with several locomotives and all necessary rolling stock. The company also transferred to Knox and associates its sawmili, which has a capacity of 30,000 feet a day. It is the present plan to broadgage the Bodie road, and it is calculated that the connection with the Tonopah & Goldfield railroad will be made by next September.

The Fairview Miner announces initiatory steps are to be taken shortly towards the construction of a railroad to tap the Fairview, Wonder, surrounding districts and the Austin mineral belt. A bill is to be introduced before the state legislature granting a right of way for a steam and electric railroad from Austin to Chalk Mountain, thence to Winnemucca, Reno and Tonopah, with branch roads to Wonder, Fairview and other camps of the district, "It is planned to make Chalk Mountain the central point, the main line connecting and other camps of the district. "It is planned to make Chalk Mountain the central point, the main line connecting with the Western Pacific at Winnemucca and Reno. From Austin it is planned to carry the road across the state and into Utah," says the Miner, "the project will be financed by local mine owners and eastern capitalists who are interested in the districts which the new road will tap," Chalk Mountain will be the main distributing point, owing to its central location in the district. Electric lines will run to the surrounding camps for the purpose of transporting the ore to the main line and to furnish freight and passenger service. An electric plant is to be installed at Chalk Mountain. This will supply the surrounding camps with light and power. The promoters of this scheme nave kept their plans quiet, but have paved the way for the passing of the bill and no opposition is expected when the bill to grant the company a right of way and other privileges is introduced.
