The town of Driggs has a bright prospective future. Some new residences have been erected the last season, and more contemplated in the spring. A young men's hall is in course of completion, and a large modern rustic dancing pavillon is now being constructed. Business is good considering the fallure in crops last year. One attending the parties in this vicinity and at Haden would imagine he was in an older community to see the great numbers of young people that fill the halls. About fifty numbers were sold at Haden Christmas night and some had to go away as there was hardly standing room. The same with Leigh and Pratt wards, all are growing. and the rising generation swarming like bees. If they would only turn out to Mutual Improvement associations like they do to parties we would have a greater success in that line than at present, but we hope for better things in the future.
