

FURTHER MOVEMENTS OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.

On the morning of October 12th, notwithstanding the fatigue of the previous day, the Prince with his suite left the Fifth Avenue Hotel at about 10 o'clock, to visit the New York University. As he was entering his carriage an incident occurred that created some little excitement among the crowd that had gathered in front of the hotel. A crazy Englishman had taken a position near the front door, and became quite boisterous, shaking his fists at the Prince, and threatened to shoot or kill him. He declared the Prince would never be king of England if he lived to be a hundred years old—that the democracy of England would never allow it. He was immediately seized and taken before a magistrate, but was subsequently discharged.

The party, after the excitement had subsided, entered their carriages, accompanied by Superintendent Kennedy, Inspector Leonard and General Sandford, and drove to the University, where the Prince was received by Chancellor Ferris, who delivered quite a lengthy but appropriate address on the occasion, welcoming the Prince to the University. The several departments of the University were visited, including the Woman's Library and Law School, and then the Astor Library, Cooper Institute and the Free Academy, each received a visit from the royal party. A visit to the Central Park was next made, and then they were driven to the residence of Mayor Wood, where about one hundred of the most distinguished and wealthy citizens, who had been invited to be present that they might have an unrestrained view of His Royal Highness, were in waiting to receive him and his suite. Ex-President Fillmore, William B. Astor, George Law, ex-Governor Fish, Judge Roosevelt, Bishops Hughes and Potter, and Col. Burnham were among the number of the favored guests. Music and lunch had been prepared in princely style. The musicians performed their part admirably, and the dejeuner received due attention, in proceeding to which the Prince took the arm of the Mayor, and Miss Fish—the most favored lady present—the arm of the Duke of Newcastle. At the Mayor's mansion a merry hour was spent, but no speeches were made.

After the repast and visit at the residence of Mayor Wood had been concluded, the Prince and suite went to the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, and a host of vehicles, containing those that had been of the party at the Mayor's mansion, followed, but were not permitted by the police on duty to drive through the gate leading to the asylum, the Mayor having given them orders not to admit any but the four carriages conveying the royal party, which order was strictly obeyed, to the great disappointment of those notables who had been driving like Jehu in order to keep up with royalty—the object of their attention—and an interesting scene followed. One after another of the disappointed officials and millionaires, composing the volunteer cortege, expostulated with the faithful sentinels to no purpose; the closed gate was not opened for them to pass, and many imprecations were uttered against the Mayor and the stern police officer on duty, whose action so suddenly terminated their hopes in that direction.

An excursion on East river followed the visit to the asylum, and the party did not arrive at the hotel on their return till 7 o'clock in the evening.

The ball at the Academy of Music in the evening was a most magnificent display. Millionaires and notables only were there. The Prince arrived in a private carriage, dressed in citizens clothes, a little after 10 o'clock, unobserved by the multitude that was thronging the streets. While the ceremony of salutations was progressing, and before it had hardly commenced, the floor gave way in the center of the hall followed by screams and rushing, and had to be repaired before dancing commenced, which took till about 12 o'clock. The dance over, the Prince kept his room the next day till noon, then visited Brady's Photograph establishment, the Museum, General Scott's residence and other places, and witnessed the great torchlight procession of the New York firemen in the evening, which is reported to have been a very splendid turn out.

On Sunday, October 14th, the Prince attended Trinity Church in the forenoon, and, accompanied by some of his suite, he visited Calvary Church in the evening. To the latter he went incog. The next morning about 10 o'clock the Prince and suite left New York on the Harriet Lane for West Point, and arrived there at half-past two in the afternoon. They were received at the dock by Col. Delafield and escorted to his residence, where General Scott was in readiness to receive them. A survey of the premises was next made, a review of the Cadets followed, then a visit to Fort Putnam, a remnant of revolutionary memory, situated a short distance back of West Point. The party put up at Cozzens' Hotel, where they remained till the next morning at 11 o'clock, when they took passage for Albany, on the steamer Daniel Drew, arriving at about 5 p.m.

The Mayor and City Council went down the river on the steamer Young America, and were taken on board the Daniel Drew at Stuyvesant. The Mayor made a brief address of welcome to Lord Renfrew, who received it in silence, making no reply.

Upon the arrival a procession was formed, with ten companies of military, and some civic societies. The Prince rode in an open brougham, with Mayor Thatcher, the Duke of Newcastle and Lord Lyons. It is stated, that at least fifty thousand people were out to witness the arrival of the Prince. A short visit to the capitol was made, and in the evening the royal party dined at Governor Morgan's. Several invited guests were present, and among them the Hon. William H. Seward. After dinner the party returned to Congress Hall, which had been fitted up for the reception of the Prince and his attendants. The city was illuminated in the evening, and the Prince was serenaded.

On the 17th, about nine in the morning, the Prince and suite left Albany in a special train for Boston, where they arrived at 4 p.m., and were received by Mayor Lincoln near the confines of the city, accompanied by a deputation of city officials, and escorted to the Revere House. Tens of thousands of people were on the look out, along the route and in the city, on their arrival, anxious to get a glimpse of the royal visitor, if no more, and much enthusiasm was manifested on the occasion. There had been nothing of the kind witnessed in the "Hub of the Universe" for a long time.

The next day there was a grand military review on the Common. Some three thousand men, including artillery, cavalry, and infantry were reviewed by Governor Banks, the Prince and a brilliant staff; Ralph Farnham, the last of the Bunker Hill veterans was introduced to the Prince in the morning.

After the review on the Common, the military force marched through several of the principal streets, the Prince and suite, the Governor and others occupying carriages. The display was the most imposing ever seen in New England, and was witnessed by tens of thousands. A collation followed at the State House, given by Governor Banks, at which there was a social and informal interchange of good feeling. At about 5 o'clock the Prince and suite were escorted to the Music Hall, where he was welcomed by twelve hundred school children. The exercises consisted principally of singing, and seemed to afford the distinguished visitors much gratification. The festivities of the day wound up with a grand ball at the Academy of Music.

The royal squadron that was to convey the Prince back to England, arrived at Portland, Maine, on the morning of the 16th, consisting of the Hero, Adriadne and Flying Fish.

SNOW STORM.—Monday last was a boisterous uncomfortable day. During the forenoon the wind was blowing heavily, moving the dust in clouds wherever any existed. At about two p.m. rain commenced falling, mixed with sleet, and was soon followed by a storm of snow, which continued till evening, when the clouds dispersed at about the time of the change of the moon.

Yesterday the weather was beautiful and most of the snow in the valley disappeared, but the mountains have a thick covering which will probably remain unaffected by the sun for some time to come, and perhaps till the return of spring.

DECLARED NAVIGABLE.—A flat boat has been floated down from Utah Lake lately, to be used as a ferry boat on the Jordan west of the city, while the new bridge is being put up. It took ten or twelve days to get the boat down, but the men engaged in the business have declared the Jordan navigable.

LATEST BY PONY EXPRESS.

LINCOLN ELECTED PRESIDENT.

An express from Fort Kearney, on Wednesday, the 7th at 12 m., arrived at 3h. 50m. p.m. on Sunday with a dispatch from W. H. Russell, president of the Pony-Express Company, to Mr. Bell, the agent in this city, announcing that New York had given Lincoln fifty thousand majority, and that his election was conceded.

The Express from the West, which arrived on Monday evening at 6 o'clock, 15 m., brought a telegram from Carson city, stating that California had gone for Lincoln by two thousand majority.

On Tuesday, at 11h. 10m. a. m., the Express which left St. Joseph on the 8th, at 8 a. m., arrived with dispatches confirming the election of Lincoln and the complete triumph of the Republicans in each of the free States.

From the Daily Gazette of November 8th, with the perusal of which we have been kindly privileged by a friend, we glean the following in relation to the election. New York for Lincoln 40,000 majority over the fusion ticket. Pennsylvania 50,000 to 70,000 plurality. Vermont, 30,000 majority. Wisconsin 10,000. Ohio, 30,000. Massachusetts, 70,000. Maine, 25,000. New Hampshire, 10,000. Rhode Island, 5,000. Connecticut, 10,000. Indiana, 25,000. Iowa, Minnesota and Michigan, increased Republican majorities.

New Jersey and Illinois were for a time considered doubtful, but the latest dispatches from St. Louis announced that Lincoln had carried all the free States. Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee had gone for Bell. Maryland close between Bell and Breckenridge. Delaware and all the States south of Tennessee for Breckenridge. Missouri had probably gone for Douglass, though the Bell vote was large as it was also in several of the cotton States.

The official canvass would of course change some of the reported majorities, but the election of Lincoln was universally conceded.

"A dispatch from Columbia, South Carolina, dated November 7, says the Legislature has postponed action on the Governor's suggestion to arm the state until it is ascertained Lincoln is really elected. There is an overwhelming majority in favor of calling a convention for sending commissioners to Georgia."

Arrival.

Col. Benjamin Davis, of Missouri, successor to Dr. Forney, as Superintendent of Indian Affairs for this Territory, accompanied by Mr. Edwards, who, we understand, is to act as his clerk or secretary, arrived in this city on Sunday morning last, in sixty days from the Missouri river, as we are informed, with carriage and baggage wagon—traveling leisurely emigrant fashion.

From report, the Colonel intends to do up things on a different plan from that pursued by his predecessor, but what the proposed change will effect, time must disclose.

President Young's Trip South.

We have been favored with the following brief account of the late excursion of President Young and others to Manti, by a scribe who was one of the party:

On Wednesday, October 24th ult., Presidents B. Young and D. H. Wells, accompanied by Elders Joseph Young, Jesse C. Little, Robert T. Burton, John T. Caine, Geo. D. Watt, A. M. Musser, Theodore McKean and Albert Dewey, left G. S. L. City and rode to Lehi, where a meeting was held in the evening, Prest. B. Young and Elder H. S. Eldredge preached.

On Thursday the company proceeded to Pleasant Grove, where two meetings were held; one at half-past 2 p.m., at which Presidents Wells and B. Young preached; and the other in the evening, which was opened with prayer by Prest. B. Young, after which the people were addressed by Elders J. T. Caine, A. M. Musser and Joseph Young; concluding remarks by Prest. B. Young.

On Friday, 26th, the company proceeded to Provo, and while there were joined by Elders Geo. A. Smith and R. L. Campbell.

Saturday, 27th.—The Saints at Provo met at 11 a.m. Elder Orson Hyde opened the meeting by prayer. Elders Dan. H. Wells and O. Hyde preached.

Afternoon, the congregation was addressed by Elders Joseph Young, George D. Watt and Prest. B. Young.

Evening, the Seventies had a meeting, and Prest. Joseph Young, Elders A. M. Musser, Dominicus Carter and James W. Cummings preached.

Sunday, 28th.—The meeting hall was crowded by 10 a.m. Several from Lehi, American Fork, Pleasant Grove and Springville, were present. Prest. Brigham Young preached.

Afternoon, Prest. D. H. Wells and Elders Robert L. Campbell, John T. Caine, A. M. Musser, Joseph Young, Geo. A. Smith and Prest. B. Young addressed the meeting.

Early in the evening the wind commenced blowing from the north. The brethren from the settlements north of Provo, in Utah county, as they were returning home were met by the storm on the Provo bench, where they were brought to a halt, their animals refusing to proceed, but after a protracted, and, at times, doubtful contest, the parties reached Pleasant Grove.

On Monday morning the mountains east of Provo appeared to have received a "light impression." About noon, the President and party started south, encountering a slight snow storm. Bishop Henson Walker and Louis Robison joined the company, which arrived at Payson about 5 p.m., where Presidents Joseph Young, D. H. Wells and Elder Geo. A. Smith preached. Here Prest. Heber C. Kimball joined the company, having rode from G. S. L. City in two days, and encountered a severe storm, while in feeble health, which was the cause of his not starting with the company; he was accompanied from American Fork by Bishop L. E. Harrington.

Tuesday, 30th.—Morning clear and cold, ice half an inch thick on the water courses. Brigham Young, jun. arrived at 8 a.m., having left G. S. L. City on Monday at 5 p.m.

The party, joined by David Fairbanks, left Payson about 10.30 a.m., and arrived at Nephi about 4 p.m., after a pleasant ride. In the evening Presidents Young, Kimball, Wells, and Elders Geo. A. Smith, G. D. Watt and Robert L. Campbell addressed as many of the Saints as could get within the walls of their small meeting-house.

Wednesday, 31st.—The Presidency and party left Nephi about 11 a.m., and arrived at Moroni at 4 p.m. Weather mild.

Evening, Presidents Young, Kimball, Wells and Elder Geo. A. Smith preached to a large assembly of Saints.

Thursday, Nov. 1st.—Hard frost during the night. The company proceeded to Manti; held meeting in the evening, when Elders Joseph Young and Geo. A. Smith preached, and Elder Orson Hyde related a dream.

Friday, 2d.—Pleasant day, cool. Presidency and company visited their old acquaintances, and tried to find what improvements had been made there.

In the evening, Elder A. M. Musser delivered a lecture on the manners and customs of the Orientals inhabiting Hindostan, and was followed by Prest. Brigham Young, who made some appropriate remarks. Prest. Kimball, through indisposition, did not attend the meeting.

Saturday, 3d.—At 10 a.m. the Manti meeting-house was crowded, and many were unable to gain admittance. Presidents Joseph and Brigham Young preached.

In the afternoon, Prest. Wells, Elders Robt. L. Campbell, Geo. A. Smith and Prest. Brigham Young preached. Prest. Kimball's health did not admit of his being present.

The Seventies met in the evening, having extended a general invitation to the Saints to attend. Elders Joseph Young, Lewis Robison, John T. Caine, Wm. Bench, D. H. Wells and Orson Hyde preached.

Sunday, 4th.—Prest. Kimball's health improved. The Presidency and party, accompanied by many from Manti, returned to Fort Ephraim, where a large stone meeting-house, 60 feet by 44 had been inclosed, and the floor laid.

This was the only meeting-house south of Provo, which comfortably convened those who were eager to hear and see the Presidency and party on the journey.

At 10 a.m. meeting was called to order by President Brigham Young who opened by prayer, dedicating and setting apart their spacious hall to the use of the Saints. Presidents B. Young and H. C. Kimball preached, much to the edification of all present.

Afternoon, the congregation was addressed by Elders D. H. Wells, Geo. A. Smith, Joseph Young and Prest. B. Young. The remarks of Prest. B. Young on this occasion were exceedingly interesting and instructive.

In the evening the Seventies held a meeting at which others were present, Prest. Joseph Young having extended a general invitation. He preached, and gave directions about the Quorum reports, etc. Elders Orson Hyde, Robert T. Burton, Geo. A. Smith and Prest. Wells addressed the meeting.

Monday, 5th.—The Presidency and company left Fort Ephraim at 8 a.m., halted an hour near Fountain Green, and arrived at Nephi at 5 p.m.

On Tuesday returned to Provo; and on Wednesday, about sunset, arrived at G. S. L. City, having been absent fifteen days.

The tour, as a whole, was very pleasant and agreeable. The Saints were highly pleased to see and hear the Presidency; to whom it was no doubt gratifying to realize, as Prest. Wells remarked, that "the spirit and blessing of God predominated throughout all the settlements in these valleys."

That this visit of the Presidency and party may prove a lasting blessing to those favored with their administrations, is the desire and humble prayer of your correspondent, in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.
