San Francisco, 20.—Gray, defaulting secretary of the Harbor Commissioners, will arrive in the city this evening. A Bulletin reporter interviewed him at Tracy. Atchison, Kansas, 20.—A sensation has been created here. A woman named Clara Jewelson was taken before the grand jury of Harrison county Mo., on a charge of arson. As she refused to testify, she was sent to jail for contempt of court. She escaped from there and was lost to sight. The chief of police here received a letter from the prosecuting attorney of Harrison county, enclosing one from her, in which among other things she states, "I have burned more than one building, and before Wednesday night some of Atchison will be in ashes, like S. A. Diles' house. Nobody knows my name, and I will burn half of Atchison and kill all I can, and then go to some other place and kill and burn more. I will be as mean as I can." As several attempts have been made during the last two weeks to start incendiary fires in the business parts of this city, this gave a clue, and to-day the sequel came. Dan Weeks, who is lessee of the Exposition grounds, came to the city on horseback, stating that his stables and barns on the grounds were on fire and that he had chased the woman who set the fire over the fields and prairies. The officers started to find her, which they did after a long chase, as she shrank exhausted in a ditch. She was brought to town and placed in jail, where she now is a raving maniac. The woman also fired earlier in the day the main staircase and apartment of the Exposition building, which was extinguished. She also fired Col. Brown's granary, which, with his fences, was destroyed. Her people have been communicated with, and are expected to take her home.

R. A. Milroy, of the Yakima Indian Agency, Washington Territory, writes to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that the recent trouble between Indians in his Agency and white settlers in the vicinity arose from a quarrel occasioned by scattering poisoned meat near the camp of the Indians on the Columbia River by the white settlers, and the Indians complained that when the grass grew about the meat their horses might eat of it and be poisoned. The agent says the Indians ought to be brought to reason, as it is becoming difficult for them to find subsistence where they are in camp. As long as they remain there trouble greater or less, is constantly arising.
