Black and His Allies Are Won Over by Persuaders of the "Inner Circle,"

BOND ORDINANCE IS PASSED

City Council Ordains That Taxpayers May Vote to Burden Themselves Further on July 29.

Now the $600,000 bond issue is up to the people. The city council last night, by a strict party vote of 8 to 6, passed the long-delayed ordinance authorizing the municipality to further bond itself for $600,000, for the ostensible purpose of extending the water and sewer sys-tems, should the people approve, at a special election to be held July 29, 1908. The point was not gained without a struggle. Black and his co-insurgent, Wood, hung out until 40 minutes after the session should have begun, and all this time were being labored with by the advocates of the bonds, besides the big "persuaders" of the "Inner circle" who were all in attendance at a party caucus being held in the office of May-or Braneford. by a strict party vote of 8 to 6, passed or Bransford.

or Bransford. Whatever means were used to force into line the two recalcitrants, their success was most pronounced, as when the measure came upon the floor for discussion, Councilman Black was the most enthusiastic advocate of the pag-sage of the bond ordinance in its orig-inal form.

OPPOSITION ACTIVE.

While the result of voting was never at any time in doubt, yet the leaders of the opposition to the bond issue were not fdle. Councilman Hall at-tempted five different times to inject were not inle. Councilman Hall at-tempted five different times to inject amendments into the ordinance, for purposes which he claimed would rec-ommend the issue to the favor of the people, and five times was he voted down by the standing vote of 8 to 6. The only amendment the opposition succeeded in having inserted was one offered by Councilman Fernstrom which provided for the expenditure of sufficient of the money received from the bonds to construct an aqueduct on North Temple west of Fourth West. et, to take care of the flood wa-ters of City creek. After some dis-cussion and the repression by Coun-cilman Black of some characteristic-ally sarcastic remarks aimed at Coun-cilman Fernstrom by the "literateur" from the Fourth—Councilman Stew-art—the amendment was accepted by art-the amendment was accepted by the majority and was incorporated in the ordinance.

you would have had enough to make all the improvements necessary for the next 15 years, and with that amount you would find the burden would be heavy enough."

HITS THE AUDITOR.

Mr. Fernstrom then turned his atten-tion to the bookkeeping department. "How can you have the audacity to go before the voters of this city and ask them to vote for $600,000 in bonds when the city auditor has not published the statement of the city's finances which, according to law, should have been published at the end of January of the present year, and here it is June?"

June?" City Auditor Alff was in the room, and upon this statement being made by Fernstrom conferred hurriedly with Councilmen Ferry and Reedall, but the statement went unchallenged. Councilman Black said there would be no mistake made in asking the people to vote for $500,000 bonds. "Salt Lake City is growing more rapidly than many think," said he, "these new dis-tricts are crying for water and we must give it to them"

WHERE MONEY WILL GO.

Mr. Black presented the following list of items for which the money obtained from the bonds would be expended, if favored by the people: For aqueduct on North Temple, $65,-

000. Water main extensions in Second and Third precincts, $60,000. Water main extensions in Fourth and Fifth precincts, $100,000. To replace small mains with larger ones in the First precinct, $50,000. To complete sewers, $125,000. For enlargement of the water sys-tem and to purchase more water rights, $200,000. Total bond issue, $600,000. Councilman Martin added his mite to rights, $200,000. Total bond issue, $600,000. Councilman Martin added his mite to the oratorical gems of the evening. He said the opposition of some people to the issue of the insignificant amount of $600,000 in bonds by a city the size of Salt Lake gave him a pain. "Why look at San Francisco," thundered Council-man Martin, "a city that has been quaked and burned almost to nothing, and the property owners lost every-thing they had, barely escaping with their lives and their nightshirts. Look at the minice the property voted 15 to 1 in favor of a bond issue of over $18,000,000 to build again and improve their city, and they have only three times the population of Salt Lake. This peanut economy and rat-trap parsi-mony is enough to give anyone a pain." VOTE ON PASSAGE.

VOTE ON PASSAGE.

The vote on the final passage of the ordinance was then called for. It stood as follows:

as follows: For the ordinance-Black, Ferry, Martin, Raybould, Reedall, Stewart, Wood and Davis. Against-Cowburn, Fernstrom, Hodg-son, Holley, Hall and Murdoch. Absent-O'Donnell. An interested spectator of the pro-ceedings of the evening was Mayor A. L. Brewer of Ogden.

Mr. Hall said this plant was promised when the $1,000,000 bond issue was authorized in 1905, but it had never heen built. "and this broken promise will kill the present bond is-sue," declared Councilman Hall. The vote on this amendment was a sample of the vote on every amendment which was voted down, and of the final vote by which the ordinance was passed, and was as follows: arley's canyon, to operate pumps and was as follows:

Absent-O'Donnell. Hall also introduced an amendment to strike out the provision authoriz-ing the application of money for the payment for the portions of the water-works system already completed, nota-bly the $30,000 due on the Fifth South water mains. He said it was clearly against the law to apply any of the money received from the sale of bonds to any work which has already been completed, although the city does owe for it. The amendment was voted fown, and shows one way in which the administration intends to spend the bond money.

bond money. Councilman Fernstrom handed the auditing department of the city a body blow during the course of his remarks opposing the bond ordinance. He said In his opinion the council was making a mistake in authorizing such a large issue, as the requirements of the city at this time do not call for such a large sum. "If you had made the amount $300,000," said Mr. Fernstrom.
