INDUSTRIALISM.

A meeting held at Ogden—Fever still on duty—Admiralty sent to Salt Lake.

A more meeting was held at the Thomas hall on Saturday night by the sympathizers of the Industrial, at which several prominent gentlemen of this city were present. At five it was decided by the speakers to march to the Industrial camp and terrify their way through the ranks of the officers, but finally the conclusion was arrived at that a committee of several leaders, who had volunteered, go to Salt Lake to the effect of showing the army to pass over the line. After the meeting several of its attendees went to the camp and consulted with the general, telling him that they would support him in his efforts to free the country from the grip of monopoly and oppression; the friends and relatives would wait there to be ready for the battle if in which ever place or time the most direful struggle should occur. A small committee was sent there on Monday. Great stress was laid by the speaker upon the cultivation of health or industry, thrift and moral cleanliness. The many who attended the meeting were greatly interested in the students' condition again this year. To do justice to the cause would require two columns of space in the News, more than we have at our disposal.

A Horse Killed.
On Friday, John Mitchell, a young man, while driving down a steep hill with a load of wool, following another wagon similarly loaded. He some time the leading team stopped, and Mr. Mitchell was unable to stop his team, so he got out and walked up to a position where the first wagon passed over the front of one of his horses to a depth of over eighteen inches, killing it instantly.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Long Jerry is killing a number of valuable horses in Logan. Andrew Lewis, Lewis' son, and Lewis' wife, both lost their lives.

Arriving to Ogden yesterday morning the "Industrialists" were up and preparing their breakfast, when a committee of six men came in. They were led by Mr. Jack Reid, who, from the remarks he made, it was thought was to meet Miss Cassie Mayes, of Ogden city, took the stand and recited a Cleveland's poem. When asked by a News correspondent if he was a sympathizer with those men, she said, "No, I am not." Another sympathizer took the stand and said, "The Wondering Refugees." By this time the "general" had returned from Ogden and learning of the young lady sympathizer asked her if she was a sympathizer. She replied, "Yes, I am." After the recitation, while she sat, and just after which the girls jumped upon the stand and said, "I am here to save my throat, I need not sit here. If these ladies fail to get out my mother they need not be here." The committee, however, are now working for wages or not allow women to commit murder for the Almighty's sake."

The committee of the officers has been reorganized and they are prepared to continue to enforce the laws of the nation.

A large crowd of spectators and sympathizers visited the camp and remained mostly in the Industrial.

COLLEGE WEEK.
R. S. CHAMBERLAIN Elected—Agricultural Board.

Last week night he termed R. S. Miller, week in educational circles. This week will be Agricultural College week. On Thursday the closing exercises of the preparatory department were held in the college building. They were a success, and an audience of 1,000 persons were present. On Friday the commencement exercises of the normal department were held in the college building. They were also a success, and an audience of 1,000 persons were present. The exercises were held in the auditorium, and were of an elaborate nature. Dr. J. H. Dyer, namesake, Dr. Wm. J. Gifford, Newell, Utah, and Dr. W. C. Smith, president of the Agricultural College, were the speakers. There were two hundred graduates of the normal department and two who had completed the business course. The exercises were opened with music, followed by the singing of the national anthem, and then the singing of the hymns. The exercises were conducted with certificates, as all health books did not permit. Bishop W. H. Preston, summer member of the board of governors, made the concluding speech. W. C. Smith, president of the Agricultural College, and the representative of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, took in behalf of each board, addressed Dr. J. H. Dyer, the president of the Agricultural College, and Dr. W. C. Smith, the representative of the Board of Education. The degree was given to W. J. Kerr, the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Mathematics. The banquet to honor of the graduates, given by the Alumni association on Thursday evening, was notable for the brilliancy of its features, and for the variety of its entertainment. The hall was filled with society, and the ballroom was crowded with the beauty of the gentry and music, the sparkling of the gemstones and the nobility of state.

Yesterday morning Hon. Geo. C. Cannon delivered the commencement address at the Agricultural College. He spoke in terms of the highest praise of the character of the education obtained at the college, where manual and mental labor, training up to health, were the chief objects of instruction. That they had learned, was not the advancement of themselves, but rather by this means the world would benefit, and the world would extend in an ever widening circle, until at last a period was reached of the scientific status and advancement, taught there would become universal; the education of the world, the progress of the world, the progress of humanity and civilization, the friends and relatives would want them to be better prepared for the battle of life in which ever place or time the most direful struggle should occur. A small committee was sent there on Monday. Great stress was laid by the speaker upon the cultivation of health or industry, thrift and moral cleanliness. The many who attended the meeting were greatly interested in the students' condition again this year.

According to resolutions passed by the army, companies of twenty-five men were started in opposite directions for the purpose of enlisting the officers and possible trouble. Mr. Chase Frank took Little Cottonwood Canyon, and the "Industrialists" were following him.

At an early hour yesterday morning the "Industrialists" were up and preparing their breakfast, when a committee of six men came in. They were led by Mr. Jack Reid, who, from the remarks he made, it was thought was to meet Miss Cassie Mayes, of Ogden city, took the stand and recited a Cleveland's poem. The committee of the officers has been reorganized and they are prepared to continue to enforce the laws of the nation.

A large crowd of spectators and sympathizers visited the camp and remained mostly in the Industrial.

James Mack, a thirteen-year-old boy of Springfield, was thrown from a horse, dislocating his left shoulder. A leg was sprained in the injury.

Dra. Brown and Parkinson removed the splint and bandaged the arm under the skin of an eight-year-old daughter of A. Almstrom of Springfield.

An amount of the incompetency of one of the jurors in the case of the People vs. J. L. Palko, for an assault and battery on the person of Martin Weiss, a new trial was ordered, after the trial had been held in Franklin. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty.

On Saturday afternoon the "City of Ogden" left the west side of Cache valley and at Weston, Idaho, to explore the possibility of tapping Mill creek and making a canal through the northern part of Owyhee county, and then the northern part of Cache valley. While the boys had much success raising wheat on dry land, rotation of crops is impossible without irrigation. Steps will be taken for the formation of a company.

We make the bold statement, that, judging from statistics in last week's Tribune, that the Stearns wheel was the highest priced bicycle in the dealers in the highest priced in the country, and the "STEARN'S" equal, if not greater, quality, the great demand for the same is due to the fact that the company who made the same, were the first to introduce the safety bicycle, and the first to introduce the safety bicycle in the United States. Have any of the sports of other cities accepted the challenge? Not one. They know as well as we have the friend. We know as a dollar what every one of the great cities in the country can do for us.
