

SCHOOL GRAMMAR WAS THE THEME.

Prof. Marshall Opens Discussion On Prof. J. H. Paul's Thesis.

PRESENTS SEVERAL ARGUMENTS

To Show That Nomenclature of Modes And Tenses is Useful, and that Grammar Teaches Correct Speech.

The State Institute was addressed this morning by Prof. George M. Marshall of the University of Utah, whose remarks were prompted by Prof. Paul's talk on Monday last, when he severely criticized the teaching of grammar and maintained that tense and mode as understood and applied today, were useless in that they failed to do that which was claimed for them.

The professor defined grammar as the science which deals with the choice of the correct word and the correct arrangement of words to express given ideas, and maintained that correctness in language consists of conformity to usage of the best writers and speakers. Grammar, said he, investigates such usage, determines what it is and codifies it. The speaker argued that to speak correctly or to rectify one's speech when not correct, requires a knowledge of its usage and therefore a knowledge of grammar. This, he contended, was the only possible way by which correct language could be learned or tested.

MODES AND TENSES.

The second point made by the speaker was in answer to Prof. Paul's assertion that the teaching of the modes and tenses was useless. Prof. Marshall contended that modes and tenses do exist, that they have a definite and specific use and that therefore a knowledge of mode and tense forms is essential. He admitted that the names applied to modes and tenses were not very logical, but so long as they existed they should be adhered to.

HIS OPINION OF AUTHORS.

In reference to text books in use on this subject, the speaker said: "Most of our grammars are made by half-baked, half-instructed teachers. Ordinary text-books cannot be relied upon as authorities in grammar."

DISCUSSION FRIDAY.

It was decided, after discussion and several motions from the body of the house, that the institute should go into committee of the whole for several hours on Friday morning to continue this discussion. Prof. Stewart put the motion, after asking Prof. Paul and Marshall if this arrangement suited their convenience, and it was unanimously carried. It is learned that various teachers will participate in Friday's discussion.

SHORT WEIGHT MAN.

E. L. Price Claimed That He Endeavored To Comply With the Law.

E. L. Price, the grocer, appeared before Judge Diehl yesterday afternoon to answer to charges of violating the weight and measure ordinance. The main witness for the prosecution was City Clerk H. P. Richards, who gave testimony which showed that Mr. Price had been guilty of infraction of the ordinance from the fact that his measures did not come up to standard. The defense tried to prove that Mr. Price after having been warned by Mr. Richards did everything possible to correct the conditions complained of but that he was taken into custody before having had sufficient time. Inasmuch as the case involves certain points of law not quite clear to the court at the time of hearing, Judge Diehl took the matter under advisement.

HERDS OF ELKS INVADE PROVO.

Have Gone There to Spend Next Four Days in Grand Annual Reunion.

PROCESSION THIS MORNING.

Owing to Lateness of Trains Forenoon Meeting in the Opera House Was Postponed.

(Special to the "News.")

Provo, June 15.—The city is crowded with the "Best People on Earth," who have come here to make merry for the next four days. The trains this morning brought them from the north and south, and on their arrival they were royally welcomed by the enthusiastic Elks of Provo, and citizens. The town is profusely decorated with flags and white and purple streamers, and the Elks' colors are in evidence everywhere. The trains were late in arriving, which occasioned quite a delay before the procession started, and people were patiently waiting along the streets for over an hour. When all the trains bringing delegates had arrived, a procession was formed by Marshal Ben Heywood and aids, Capt. Milt Herritt, Felix Bachman and Ernest Buckley. The order of procession was as follows: Amphion band; Provo lodge; Park City lodge; Ogden lodge; State band; Salt Lake lodge.

The procession made its way along Academy avenue, thence west on Center street to Fifth West, counter marching to the opera house.

Due to the lateness of the trains, the large audience which has assembled at the opera house was informed by Exalted Ruler Christensen that the forenoon session would be postponed till 2 p. m.

The weather is delightful and there are about 1,000 visitors in town, with more to come. Provo is well prepared to take care of all of them and will doubtless do herself proud in the matter of entertaining those who take advantage of the reunion.

Russia's shore batteries protected these vessels with a heavy cannonade. The Japanese flotilla retreated slowly, firing as it went for the purpose of decoying the enemy to sea. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Russian ships returned to the entrance of Port Arthur. The fact that the Novik came out of Port Arthur makes it certain that the Russians have succeeded in blasting a channel through the cement-laden merchantmen sunk by the Japanese in the entrance to the harbor. This freedom of egress opens up to the Russian fleet an effect upon the operations of the Japanese army, for men, guns and stores have practically all been landed, and Admiral Togo is capable of keeping the remnants of the Russian fleet imprisoned in Port Arthur.

CAN DUCKS SMELL?

It has been often asked whether or not ducks can smell. Some hunters cite from their experiences instances that seem to show ducks can smell, others that ducks cannot. Now the naturalist would say that ducks, owing to their habit, have no need to smell and hence cannot. This rule is not infallible, but generally holds good. Any wild thing with such eyes as ducks have does not need to smell. Nature seems to have given birds a discerning nose. A fox will look straight at a man and not see him, even when only a few feet away, provided he does not smell him or the man does not move. A duck will not only see a man standing perfectly still at a long distance, regardless of the wind, but will notice any change in the landmarks of its haunts or feeding grounds.—Outing.
