RED CROSS DOCTOR SEVERELY CRITICIZED

Dr. Greenleaf's Failure to Relieve the War Wounded Regarding the Subject of Surgery.

New York, Nov. 18.—The war hospital commission met here today. All the members were present except Col. Deily and Maj. Miles. Dr. Charles C. Greenleaf, chief surgeon of the troops, and that in some respects Camp Alger was a good camp for a small hospital, but there were many drawbacks. The water supply was poor and the country was known to be a healthy one. There was a sufficient number of medical officers and at least a sufficient number of medical supplies. The best hospital in the world, Dr. Greenleaf said, was not actually intended, but the object of the physicians were generally satisfactory.

When asked the question of the lack of camp, Dr. Greenleaf said that the hospital was not intended to be a permanent one, but a temporary one. He said that the hospital was not intended to be a permanent one, but a temporary one.
