THE SECOND MOVE.

The Mayor's Failure to Suspend Devine Displeases the Firemen.

BUT THEY HAVE NOT GIVEN UP.

Papers Served on the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Today—What Will that Body Do?

The action of Mayor Baskin as announced in last evening's News in refusing to suspend Chief Devine as asked for by the discontented members of the department has not contributed anything to the good nature of the sledge-preferring gentlemen. On the contrary their tempers are considerably ruffled. Some of them are very indignant over the Mayor's communication to the law firm of Powers, Straup and Lipman as printed below.

But they have gone too far to back out now. A slow down is on the schedule and it must come. Both sides of the controversy recognize that fact. The firemen are determined to make the most of their case and Devine's friends are certain that he will score a victory. That the chief's success do not intend to lose time is evident from the fact that today Attorney Lipman served a copy of the complaint on the board of fire and police commissioners, through their secretary Mr. George Feit. This action was taken on account of the absence from the city of Chairman Jennings, who will not, it is understood, return until Monday, the day preceding the night on which the board meets. Friends of Mr. Devine are of the opinion that the commission will follow the action of the Mayor in declining to listen to a recital of the details of the case. That, however, is hardly probable as it is announced that Devine will insist on an investigation being made full and complete as he now has everything to gain and nothing to lose.

THE MAYOR'S REPLY.

Mayor Baskin's reply to the attorneys of the complainants is couched in the following pointed and confidence inspiring language:

Yesterday Mr. Lippman of your firm served upon me charges against Chief Devine, signed by a number of members of the fire department, requesting the privilege of showing cause before me, upon affidavits and oral testimony, for the suspension of said chief, pending an investigation of said charges.

Inasmuch as the fire and police commission has sole jurisdiction to finally adjudicate this matter and can meet at any time they see proper for that purpose, a trial can probably be had within the limit of the time that would be required, considering the number of charges, for me to consume in making an ex parte investigation requested.

I will not enter upon such investigation, but leave it to the commission, which alone has jurisdiction to finally pass upon said charges.

From the confidence which I have in Mr. Devine, I am convinced that no injury can accrue to the city by permitting him to continue to perform the functions of his office, pending the anticipated trial.

Respectfully, H. N. BASKIN, Mayor.

MORE THAN HIS SHARE.

"Fire and Water" Thinks There is An Organized Purpose to Discredit Devine's Work.

Fire and Water, the leading fireman's journal of the country, published in New York, has this to say of the fight now on in this city against Chief Devine:

Chief Devine, of Salt Lake City, Utah, seems to be receiving more than his share of criticism. Though Fire and Water does not pretend to understand the row fully in all its bearings, it seems that there is an organized purpose to discredit Chief Devine in the eyes of the community, and perhaps drive him from his place. How much the ex-chief is influencing those who are criticising the present chief, it is impossible to say, but all appearances indicate that he is somewhat responsible in the matter. This is all wrong. If a man is fit to be appointed fire chief he should certainly be allowed to carry out his own ideas, even though they conflict seriously with old notions, so far as Fire and Water can see the changes made by Chief Devine are meritorious innovations of modern methods and mean life to the department. If the critics are overbearing, disappointed because some one else was not chosen, if politicians are endeavoring to use the fire department to further their own ends, or if former members of the department are trying to make the present chief's official life unpleasant, the honor of people, the progressive element of the population, should support him and compel the silence of the opposition. Unless this is done demoralization will ensue and only inefficient service can be expected.

TWO FIRES AND A SMASH-UP.

Knutsford-Manitou Fence Burned, Blaze at the Cliff and Scorched Hands for Nine Hose Reelly.

Fires have been so few of late as to make it painfully monotonous for the addies at both of the stations. But during the last twenty-four hours they have had a little diversion in the way of regular service.

About 11 o'clock this morning a telephone message came in from the Knutsford calling out the brigade and announcing that there was a fire in the neighborhood. When the response was made it was ascertained that the board fence between the Knutsford and the Manitou furnished the material for the blaze. Workmen, it appears, were engaged in re-tarring the roof of the Knutsford Annex, when a part of the pitch rolled over into the fire. In an instant there was a considerable blaze. The flames were easily extinguished by the firemen. The loss amounts to comparatively little.

Immediately following the alarm the west side department rattled out and started up town at a lively gait, as it always does when a blaze occurs in the business district. As it was dashing up First South street between East and West Temple, it crowded close on to several buggies and other vehicles.

Directly in front of hose wagon No. 2 was Mr. Peter Van Houten, driving eastward in a top buggy. The gong of the rapidly approaching wagon was sounded but its tone so nearly resembled that of the street car gongs that no attention was paid to it until the wagon was well nigh upon him. And then in the haste to get out of the way Mr. Van Houten had the misfortune to turn in front of the fire fighting apparatus much to the same amusement that a frightened man unconscious and almost inevitably steps in the path of the bicycle rider just in time to be ridden down and pushed into the earth. The result was serious for Mr. Van Houten's buggy, as it was made wheelless in a twinkling. As to himself, he barely escaped with a few bruises. It was a close call to death.

THE CLIFF HOUSE FIRE.

The Cliff House at 11 o'clock last night was the scene of another fire which, although it did not result in much property loss, will cause Proprietor Reilly to wear bandages on his hands for some days. The fire originated from an overturned kerosene lamp. The blaze threatened to be serious, and in order to extinguish it in its incipiency Mr. Reilly threw some bed clothing upon it and proceeded downward. Before it was completely smothered, however, his hands were badly blistered. But his presence of mind prevented a fire of much larger proportions.

Probate Court.

A telephone message received at the probate court this morning was to the effect that Hon. George Q. Cannon, one of the executors or trustees of the Brigham Young estate, had not returned from the East and would in all probability be away for a week or ten days. The citation issued ordered the executors of said estate to appear today, but the matter was postponed.

In the matter of the estate of Adelaide B. Hampton, deceased; letters of administration have been issued to Benjamin Hampton, upon filing a bond of $2,000.

THE SUPREME COURT.

motion came on for hearing, and the plaintiff made objection to the court proceeding to hear the matters sought to be raised by said motion upon the ground that the motion did not come within any statutory provision authorizing the discharge of attached property upon motion, which objection the court overruled. The hearing on the motion was then proceeded with, and the court ordered that the levy of the writ of attachment on the Howe scale, twenty-four ore cars and one engine, be discharged and vacated, as they were fixtures at the time of said levy, attached to and appurtenant to the real estate of the company, and was not subject to attachment as personal property; and the motion of the defendant as to all other property described in the return, to wit: Four pleasure, was overruled. From this decision the plaintiffs took an appeal.

This afternoon the case of J. C. Armstrong et al, plaintiffs and respondents, vs Ogden city et al, defendants and appellants, were argued, appeal from the Fourth district, Judge Smith presiding.

This action was originally brought to enjoin the levying of a special assessment to pay the expense of paving a portion of Twenty-fifth street in Ogden city. A demurrer to the complaint was filed in the lower court and sustained. An appeal from this order was taken to the Supreme Court and the judgment of the lower court was reversed. Pending the appeal, however, the city council levied the tax and collected a portion of it. By supplemental complaint plaintiff now attempts to enjoin the further collection of the tax, and also to recover judgment against the city for the amount of the tax paid under a so-called protest. This appeal is taken both from the judgment and from the order made and entered denying defendant's motion for a new trial.
