GENERAL.

SAN DIEGO, 30.—The Tucson, Arizona, Citizen, of the 24th has the following: General Crook's expedition reached Camp Apache on the 12th inst., and this morning the most important news of the Indian situation here and in New Mexico has come to hand. The news is authoritative and can be relied upon. It is in substance as follows: As the expedition was moving towards Apache, there was a rumor that the Indian agents in New Mexico had runners in Arizona, under pay, gathering up Cochises' families and taking them on to reservations. The New Mexican priests denied this, but now there is official evidence of its truth. While Gen. Crook was at Camp Apache, a Justice of the Peace, of Mexican extraction, and six Indians came to that point with credentials from the Indian agent, Piper, with official instructions to the effect that their mission was to get Cochises and other Indians to go to the quasi reservation of Canada Alamos. The leader of this delegation acknowledges that he had received one thousand dollars for taking a hundred and fifty of Cochises' tribe, old and infirm men, women and children, to Canada Alamos, and that, at the same time Cochises was on the war path in Arizona. Gen. Crook's guides and scouts recognized, among their paid runners, a few of the worst members of Cochises' band. They also boasted that it was Cochises' tactics to have his force of disabled men go on the reservation to be fed by the Government while the active ones waged war; and when hard pushed, Cochises would, himself, seek Government protection and food. They made no secret of this. They also got one thousand dollars for making their present search, and were to get $3,000 more, if successful in bringing Cochises to these reservations. Gen. Crook's expedition has been unable to find the Indians, their mountain homes were deserted and all their homes abandoned. The able warriors move with great ease and quietness over the plains and mountains. The Indian Bureau, un-intentionally no doubt, is aiding them in thwarting the most vigilant efforts of an enthusiastic military department. An order, dated August 14th, Camp Apache, constitutes the troops of Captains Moore and Stanwood, the third cavalry command, to operate against hostile Indians, independent of all posts and to get their supplies wherever it is most convenient. The expedition commanded by Captains Guy and Henry, of troop D., is now scouring the country between Camps Apache and McDowell. General Crook is with the remainder of his original command on the way to Prescott, via Camp Verdi. Before leaving Apache the General tested the sincerity of Miguel's, a large band of whom was near that post: he gave Miguel eight days to furnish fifty warriors to fight on our side, and they were furnished. Miguel professed peace, and now gives the proof of it. Orders have gone out to recruit up every horse and mule and to have all pack gearing in perfect order and ready for use on an hour's notice. No thought of the cessation of hostilities is entertained; and the troops and everybody have confidence that the country will be thoroughly scoured the ensuing winter if no advice from the War Department interfere to change the General's programme, and there will be peace in Arizona that can be trusted. Nothing has been heard from Gov. Safford's great prospecting party since it entered the Pinal mountains, Aug. 16th.

FOREIGN.

HALIFAX, 28.—All the crews are now here and the great four oared race is to come off at ten on Wednesday. With the exception of the Prior, all the crews want smooth water. The boat of the Prior being larger than the rest, they would have the advantage of rough water. The Winship crew is now the favorite of the English crews at St. John. The Paris crew is the second favorite, but Americans are backing the American crews, who are rowing well. There is a good deal of betting on the Paris crew. It is understood the Paris crew will not row a regatta unless the water is smooth.

BERLIN, 28.—The Prussian Cross Gazette confirms the report that a second meeting of the German and Austrian Emperors has been arranged, and states it will take place probably on the 7th of September at Salzburg. The Emperor Francis Joseph will be accompanied by Von Beust. A firm basis was laid at Gastein for relations whereby Germany and Austria are to assume a joint attitude. Italy has unconditionally agreed to the same policy, and communications have passed between the three governments looking to the establishment of a complete understanding.

BERLIN, 29.—There were three hundred and twenty-nine deaths from cholera, in Königsberg, through the week ending the 25th inst., including one hundred and twenty-seven children. No deaths have occurred from cholera at Dantzig during the last two days.

The Kruez Zeitung, to-day, says, on the coming visit of the Emperors of Austria and Germany to Salzburg, the Kaiser Francis Joseph will meet the Emperor William in November, at some point on the Rhine.

The National Zeitung says that Count Waldersee has been recalled, and that Baron Von Arnim replaces him as charge d' affaires of Germany at Versailles. This indicates that securer relations with France render it possible for Germany to dispense with a military watcher in that country.

HALIFAX, 29.—The weather was fine and there was a cool breeze, hardly sufficient for the yachts. There was only one entry for the first race of provincial coasting vessels of fifty tons. For the second race for the same class vessels, from twenty to fifty tons, there were eleven entries. The vessels started about 9 o'clock. There were five races in all for the above kind of vessels. The races to-day are of a local character, and possess but little interest. The city is crowded. The Paris crew will take the initiative.

LONDON.—The conferences at Gastein have confirmed the agreement between Austria and Prussia in some important principles of policy. The details of this agreement have been arranged, and the nature of the treaty has been settled, but a formal treaty has not been drawn as the functionaries whose services would have been necessary for the drawing of a formal treaty were not present, and thus the secret of the exact terms is better kept. The statement of policy made by the Vienna Cabinet in December last created the situation between Austria and Prussia, which called for a more accurate definition of their relations than could be secured by the exchange of diplomatic notes. The Gastein conference enabled the two chancellors, by confidential conversations, to reach an understanding, exactly, how the interests of the two powers could be realized to their mutual advantage, and how their understanding might be utilized by dealing together against other powers. The Roumanian railway difficulty has thus received a satisfactory solution in the interest of a general peace. This is regarded as a happy augury for the application of a similar joint action in future difficulties, for the foundation of a league for maintaining peace means war against any power that can be provoked to disturb the peace. Russia, knowing this understanding, makes vast preparations for war.

PIG KEEPERS, READ THIS!—Everybody knows how unpleasant it is to live near an unclean pig pen, for nothing emits a more abominable smell, and nothing is more inimical to health, such a place being the prolific parent of typhoid fever and other fatal and contagious diseases. Such things exist in this city, and the wonder is that those who own and live near them can endure them, and that they keep well while breathing the air infected by them; and the fact that some of them do so, furnish a very strong proof of nature's power of adaptability to surrounding circumstances. But anyway, a foul hog pen and the stench which arises from it are a nuisance wherever found, and ought to be abated! If they were a matter of absolute necessity, a something that could not possibly be avoided, there would be a shadow of excuse for them; but no such excuse exists, and for the health and comfort of those living in or near, and passing through, neighborhoods which contain them, those who own them should promptly adopt some disinfecting process.

An account of several of the most effectual methods of disinfection, known, was published in the News a few days since; they are comparatively inexpensive, and very little trouble. Below we republish from the Country Gentleman, a method for disinfecting pig pens, adopted by a correspondent to that paper, which he found most effective, and which is no expense at all, and very little trouble. He says he procured "a large quantity of well dried friable loam and placed it under cover where it would keep dry. At the farthest corner of each sty sufficient straw was placed to make a comfortable bed for the pig. Over the rest of the sty, and especially near the feeding troughs, dry earth was spread over the boarded floor. At first it was thought necessary to clean out the sties every day and put in a fresh supply of dry earth, but it was soon found out that a shovelful of dry earth thrown every morning and night over what was in the sty, entirely disinfected it of all odors, and so obviated the necessity of cleaning out oftener than once a week." Since adopting this practice his pig pens, he says, have kept perfectly sweet, and he has had no complaints from his neighbors. In a pen containing a number of young pigs several inches of dry earth were placed on the floor, and no straw; the pigs kept healthy, and seemed to delight in rooting among and rolling on it.

We recommend the above to the notice of all who have unclean pig pens, or stables; such a cheap and easy method of removing bad smells is within the reach of all, and when anything so inimical to health can be so easily removed and prevented there is no shadow of excuse for not observing the practice recommended.
