

stake and some of the others that had been reported here. While in some of these stakes long distances separated the wards, in the Liberty stake they could be covered by the authorities in a very short time. Any ward therein could be reached in less than 30 minutes, and at a cost of not more than 10 cents. The Priesthood meetings are well attended. The people are better looked after than was possible under former conditions. He referred to the labor of Jesus in former times that salvation might come to the people, and declared that the same mission has been imposed upon the leaders of the Church in these days as far as the ability is given them. It is the duty of all the Saints, he thought, to aid them in this great work. The choir sang the anthem, "From afar gracious Lord."

ELDER JOHN HENRY SMITH

of the quorum of the Twelve was the concluding speaker of the morning session. He said that his health had been such recently as to prevent him from being actively engaged in his work. But he was much improved now, and trusted that he would be able to perform his duties in visiting the communities of the Saints.

He spoke of the testimony which President Hinckley bore to the general good character of the non-Mormons in his state. He believed that the non-Mormons in this part of the country are as dear to our heavenly Father as any who exist elsewhere. It is our duty to seek for the welfare of those not of our faith who surround us here. Not that we should do this for the sake of testimony of the truth. It would be better to conduct ourselves in such a way, so far as our relations with them are concerned, as to make an impression for good upon them. Nothing should be permitted to come into our lives that will tend to make us do what is not strictly honorable in our dealings with them. He felt that many good and honest people had come among us and had joined the Church after examining the lives of the people here. He spoke of no reason why neighbors who differ from each other in religion should not dwell together in peace.

Elder Smith declared that the preaching of the Gospel to foreign peoples is in reality only a part of the obligation imposed upon the Saints. Thousands of our brethren have endured extreme hardship among other peoples in their endeavors to bring salvation to mankind. They have labored long and hard to master the language of those to whom they had been sent; they have suffered hunger and thirst in carrying the message of peace from door to door; and some of them have endured banishment from the countries where they labored. None of them had ever counseled anyone to do any wrong. Elder Smith declared that he had been intimately acquainted with the leaders of the Church from the days of President Young to the present, with the former quorum of Apostles, as well as the existing quorum, and he had never heard a word of advice from any one of them that would tend to sin or wickedness in any form. Their words, on the contrary, had tended to the betterment of those who would obey them. No Latter-day Saint would give any counsel to people that would in any manner have any influence against the principles of truth, liberty, and justice. Standing thus as we do for all that is good and right, it is our duty to do these things out in our lives so that we may thus, if in no other way, warn our neighbors of the work of God for us.

The speaker spoke very earnestly upon the work which the Saints had done towards the establishment of liberty and truth in the land. The choir and congregation sang: Praise to the man who communed with Jehovah. Jesus pointed that "Prophet and Seer." Blessed to open the last dispensation; Kings shall extol him and nations revere. Benediction was pronounced by Edwin Woolley, president of Kamb stake.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

There were several speakers yesterday afternoon after the "News" report closed. A brief synopsis of what they said follows:

ELDER SAMUEL ROSKELLEY,

chief recorder of the Logan temple,

One Dose

Tells the story. When your head aches, and you feel bilious, constipated, and out of tune, with your stomach sour and no appetite, just buy a package of

Hood's Pills

And take a dose, from 1 to 4 pills. You will be surprised at how easily they will do their work, cure your headache and biliousness, rouse the liver and make you feel happy again. 25 cents. Sold by all medicine dealers.

followed. He referred to the restoration of the keys of salvation for the dead to the Prophet Joseph by the Prophet Elijah. Since this important revelation was given, there has been a spirit poured out upon the Saints and the world which has led them to feel for their ancestors. The work of the Lord has therefore been furthered by those who did not know that they were doing so. Thousands of names and facts accompanying them have been revealed to the Saints, which they are expected to obtain. The speaker concluded by invoking the blessings of the Lord upon the conference.

ELDER JOHN D. T. McALLISTER,

president of the Mantle temple, was the next speaker. He referred to the growth that had been made by the Church during the past fifty years and more, that he had been connected with the Saints in Utah. The people are now prosperous, and the hard days of poverty and sacrifice are remembered only by those whose eyes look upon the changed conditions. He had been president of the Mantle temple for the past eleven years. A glorious work had been done in this house of the Lord. The work of the Lord is applicable alike to both old and young. He spoke of the necessity for the young men and women being married in the temple. There is no marrying in the next world; we have no claim upon each other, as husband and wife; the ceremony must be performed in the proper manner in this life. And so with all the other ordinances pertaining to the future state. There is a glorious work done in the temple both for the living and the dead. In conclusion he testified to the truth of the Gospel.

PRESIDENT FRANCIS M. LYMAN, of the quorum of Apostles, next addressed the conference. This year, he thought, had been a very remarkable year among the nations. War afflicts the people, plagues and distresses fill them with sorrow. But the Saints generally have peace and quietness, notwithstanding drought in some parts of the country. And this is true, too, of our nation. On the whole, this year will pass into history as one of the most prosperous and peaceful. We should endeavor to make the best possible use of these blessings. The needful manufactures should be built and sustained by the people, for other seasons may bring other conditions. Every effort should be made to take advantage of these prosperous conditions in order that we may be able to sustain the strain of less fruitful years. The Saints should restrain any inclinations in the direction of extravagance—to prepare themselves, in a word, for changed times. The older people among us will doubtless profit by their experience, but the growing generation need to be warned that hard times may come—for "lean years will follow fat ones." The speaker advised the Saints to free themselves from debt; that they may not be slaves to bondage. There is a wonderful strength that they feel who live in their own homes, dress in their own clothes, and eat their own food.

He advised the men of means among us to see if they could not establish canning factories. He thought that there is great profit in this kind of investment. The amount of canned goods shipped into Utah is a reproach to the state. What has been done in the sugar industry should be done in all the other lines of activity. Utah ought not only to produce all that we need but export to neighboring states a great deal besides. We have a good country, prosperity and peace attend us, there is plenty of raw material in our valleys and mountains; and there is nothing to prevent our becoming an independent people. He wanted to see the time when it would not be necessary for us to bring articles of consumption into the state. But in order for this condition of affairs to prevail here it is necessary for all the people of the state to unite, for the moneyed men to invest their means in these profitable industries.

The Latter-day Saints are a peaceable people; they don't want war. They want to live at peace with their neighbors. He advised the Saints to live as free as possible from sin, and again urged them to liberate themselves from debt; for the man cannot live well spiritually who is continually under the harrow temporally. He concluded by asking the Lord to bless the Saints. Singing by the choir and congregation.

"Our God, we praise to Thee
Thanks for Thy blessings free
We here enjoy."

Benediction by Elder William Budge, president of Bear Lake stake.

HOME FROM BRITAIN.

A. W. Carlson Says King Edward is Much Thought of in Ireland.

Treasurer A. W. Carlson of Z. C. M. I. has returned from a pleasant three months' absence in Ireland and England, visiting in the latter country with the relatives of Mrs. Carlson. Mr. Carlson traveled through Kilkenny, roved on the beautiful lakes, and noted the economic conditions obtaining in the country. He says there is much less complaint among the Irish peasantry now that the English government has so modified the laws that it is vastly easier living than it was a few years ago, and they all begin to think a great deal of the king. The emigration of the young men and women to America, which assumed such a momentous phase under the restrictive statutes, has largely ceased under the changed and more conciliatory policies of home rule. In general, the situation over there has greatly cleared up, and there is less talk of Fenianism now than there was.

In England, times are dull and uncertain, owing to the uncertain attitude of the prime minister in formulating his policies of administration, and under his takes some definite and under-land will remain unsettled. Mr. Carlson returns much improved in health, and ready to resume his labors in Z. C. M. I.

YELLOWSTONE PARK

BEAR KILLS A MAN AND BOY.

Cody, Wyo., Oct. 11.—Information has reached here that James Wilson and a nephew, both from Pennsylvania, who were traveling in Yellowstone park, came suddenly upon a bear in a timbered part of the park, which attacked them. The boy was crushed to death, and Wilson was so badly torn and bitten that he died soon after being rescued by other travelers. The bear was supposed to be one of the number of tame animals kept in the park, and the boy fired a shot at it. The animal became infuriated, and attacked the boy, killing him. Wilson went to his nephew's rescue, and was himself fatally hurt.

FAIR GROUNDS LIQUOR LICENSE.

Injunction Suit Brought by Heath Bros. Against Mayor Morris. Argued in Court.

ATTORNEYS GIVEN MORE TIME.

Matter Hinges on the Right of Plaintiffs to do Business in Another Place.

The arguments in the injunction suit brought by J. F. and H. O. Heath against Mayor Morris and Chief of Police Lynch to prevent defendants from compelling them to close up their bar just opposite the entrance to the fair grounds, were heard by Judge Hall yesterday afternoon. It was contended by City Attorneys Day that the city council had no authority to transfer a liquor license from one locality to another, as the section of the revised ordinances of 1903, giving it the power to transfer such license, was in violation of the Revised Statutes of Utah, 1895, which expressly prohibits a transfer of a liquor license.

Judge W. H. Dickson, of counsel for the plaintiffs, argued that the statute referred to by the city attorneys did not apply to transferring a license from one locality in the city to another, but that it applied to transferring a liquor license from one person to another. He argued that there is nothing in the statutes or in the revised ordinances prohibiting the council from permitting a person, who has a license, to let it be used in one part of the city, to move his place of business and operate under the license already secured.

Judge Hall granted the attorneys until today to furnish additional authorities and it is probable that this will be done this afternoon and a decision will be rendered late in the afternoon. In the meantime, the suit is being continued by Judge Morse on Wednesday afternoon.
