acres last year and this year 175 acres. These are only a few among many. The farmers say they, will not raise any more hay or grain than they not? for their own stock. They say they can make more raising sugar beets than raising hay or grain. They call five acres a family patch. They think 15 acres or more is better, if a man has suitable land. The farmers say they have no trouble in getting the labor necessary for caring for the beets. All they have to do is to tell the company how many acres they want labor for how many acres they want labor for and the company will take care of them If a man has, say 10 acres they will clean his beets in a day and then go to the next farmer and so on through the whole heighborhood. They prefer a larger field to work in, however, as there is less loss of time. We found only 10 or 12 Japs in and around the factory, but they are expecting 800 a soon as the beets are ready for thinning and hoeing. The farmers say the beets will stand more frost than wheat will stand. The more frost than wheat will stand. The? tell us, however, that this country was visited with such a severe frost on the 26th of last June that many of the beets were killed, which necessitated much replanding. The weather is much more severe here than in th Payetto valley. They had 44 degrees below zero last winter. It is between 5,000 and 6,-000 feet elevation. We the they had beets three miles

000 feet elevation. We find they haul beets three miles for 60 cents per ton and six miles for $1 per ton. They haul 7,000 to 8,000 pounds to a load.

The farmers say they can raise from 10 to 12 bushels of wheat or cats more to the acre on beet land than on land to the acre on beet land than on land never planted to beets. We find they pay the farmers a flat price of $4.50 per ton for all beets de-livered at the factory. No discrimina-tions are made. All are treated exactly alike. We find the best of good feeling prevailing between the farmers and the factory people. We also find that hay, grain and land values have doubled since the factories have been located the light weights we can furnish the goods, since the factories have been located here.

I am thinking of putting into beets all the good land I have which is suit-able for beet culture if I can get my renters to see it as I'do. and furnish them in the way most satisfactory
