In Bed Four Weeks With La Grippe.

We have received the following letter from Roy Kemp, of Angora, Ind.: "I was in bed four weeks with la grippe and I tried many remedies and spent considerable for treatment with physicians, but failed to get relief until I tried Foley's Honey and Tar. Two small bottles of this medicine cured me and I now use it as a preventive of colds and coughs."

Many children are poisoned and made nervous and weak if not killed outright by medicines giving them cough syrups containing opiates. Foley's Honey and Tar is safe and certain remedy for all colds, coughs and lung troubles and is the only prominent cough medicine that contains no opiates or other poisons. Sole agents, F. J. ## PLEASANT GROVE.

LOST GIRL ACCOUNTED FOR.

Little Wanderer Comes from Utah County Search of Parents and Citizens.

Special Correspondence.

Pleasant Grove, Utah, Jan. 21.—

The item in last night's "News" of a wandering girl found near Murray, Utah, and the subsequent discovery of a girl whom the whole town has been looking for for the last two days.

She lives a mile and a half southeast of this place in the direction of Provo canyon.

Her parents have been frantic over her. They state she left home Monday evening. They searched all night for her and the next day the whole town assisted, but to no avail. Her name is Bushall, in place of Taylor. She seems to be quite bright.

They are new residents here, and are in straitened circumstances. The father has been notified and no doubt he will communicate with Sheriff Emery at once.

SMALLPOX IN TOWN.

There are two cases of smallpox in town. The one in the family of Thomas Cronpton is quite a bad case.

The Home Dramatic company is preparing a play to be rendered Jan. 30 for the benefit of the new meetinghouse, now in course of erection.

There was four inches of snow at our last snowstorm. People who have been in the canyon recently state there is very little there in comparison with other years at the same time. At the present outlook the farmers will be in bad condition for water for the coming year.

MRS. HARRIET STRONG DEAD.

Special Correspondence.

Willow Creek, Fremont Co., Idaho,

Jan. 15.—The community mourns the death of Mrs. Harriet Strong, who crossed to the other side Jan. 13, of general debility.

She was several weeks in the hospital, and was aged 65 years. She was the widow of William Strong, who preceded her 15 years ago. They were old people of the Tenth ward, Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Strong was a woman of lovely character, none saw her but to love her, none knew her but to praise, and she had friends everywhere. For 11 years she has been a member of the Willow Creek ward, where she took an active part in the Primary, Relief Society and other associations up to the time of her sickness. She leaves four sons and three daughters and a large number of grandchildren, many relatives and friends both in Utah and Idaho to reverse her memory.

The funeral services were held in the meetinghouse, Elsieon A. B. Hinmons presiding. The speakers were Elders George Hinmons, George W. Godfrey, Slater Steele, state president of the Relief Society, Elder Hobbs Andrews and Bishop Hinmons, all speaking in highest praise of the upright and faithful life of the deceased. At the close of the services the remains were taken to Idaho Falls to be shipped to Salt Lake City for burial.

There is much snow here this winter. Young and old are enjoying the fine sleighing.

WESTERN MARKET LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 18.—Cattle

receipts at Kansas City last week amounted to 41,000 head including calves an increase of 2,000 over previous week. Fed western steers showed good strength all week, and efforts to move prices on them were overcome on two or three different days. They finally ended the week about like the close of the previous week, and as good as at any recent time. Most sales were 3.50 to 4.00. There were plenty of buyers for cows and heifers up to Thursday, but the model supply of the first of the week had enabled buyers to fill their orders. Steers were in demand for week made concessions of 15 to 25 cents Thursday and Friday in order to make sales. Stockers and feeders were much wanted, and as the supply was very small, most of the cattle being killed kinds, the country kinds of cattle had the best this winter. Prices, however, got too high to stand, and the demand fell off Friday, resulting in a loss of 10 to 15 cents and making prices about on the level with the close of the previous week. Supply today is 10,000 head. Fat stuff and killing kinds are steady. Stockers and feeders seek to get lower on coming to bigger proportions of the latter kinds in today's receipts than in any Monday for several weeks.

Sheep receipts last week at Kansas City were 21,000 head, an increase of 3,000 over corresponding week last year. The proportion of lambs was small, and packers were compelled to buy yearlings instead. Competition on the same was keen, and they sold relatively higher than any other kind, bringing a top of 5.50 for Utah yearlings, weighing 104 pounds. Mexican fed lambs sold up to $5.85, but had any choice western lambs of good weights been offered they would have readily sold at 6.00 to 6.25, western wethers brought 4.40; ewes, 4.20. Market today is about last week's close except that some Wyoming fed lambs of 115 pounds, sold at 4.50 today, 10 cents higher than any aged sheep have brought before this season. There is a demand for feeding stock, and practically no more coming. The class of stock could easily be sold at 3.25 for wethers, and 4 cents for lambs.

HOW ONE MAN THRIVED.

Joe Trigg, the agricultural philosopher of the Rockford (Iowa) Register, tells an instructive story of how one young farmer in northern Iowa has succeeded. Ten years ago he was trying to own a farm and was finding it uphill work to meet his payments. One day he took a load of hogs to town. They were not of the best quality and all he realized was $94.35. With this money he paid the taxes against him, a long due grocery bill, called at the bank and paid for an extension of time on his mortgage, and then he took a dozen notes, paid an attorney $40 on a mowder note, and went home with $20 in his pocket.

That night, says Mr. Trigg, the grocer paid his clerk and his delivery boy their wages out of the money left by the young farmer. The boy spent his money at the skating rink and the clerk spent his money for a present for his best girl. The lawyer took his commission, which amounted to about $3, and went to a church fair and the tax-collector bought a fresh Havana cigar.

The young farmer, as he had pointed out figures with his wife, trying to find out how he was to meet the next batch of mortgage interest. He and his wife somehow managed to discharge their obligations, and now have a comfortable and enlarged and stocked with the best cattle and hogs in the state. When they go to town they travel in a double-seated survey, with the back seat filled with children. Comfort and prosperity are now with the family, who are this year spending the winter in California.

And what became of the clerk, the delivery boy, the tax collector and the lawyer? The clerk is still clerking, the delivery boy is tending a bowling alley, the tax collector is a curbstone dealer and the lawyer is in the east selling mining stock to eastern suckers. All of this is vouchsafed for as a true picture of the personalities all being actual ones.

The story is certainly typical of what has been going on in all the Western country. The town people may at first seem to have the advantage, but the fellow who sticks to the farm, although at times money may be scarce in his pocketbook and although he may be compelled to scratch and scrimp, he holds on come out the winter. It may be set down as not susceptible of dispute that any person who has stuck to land and who has shown ordinary sense in his management, approaches old age with a comfortable and a goodly estate. The fact that three-fourths, nay, seven-eighths of the people of the town, like the clerk, the delivery boy and the tax collector afore said, are themselves no farther on than 10 years ago.

A FORTUNATE MISFORTUNE.

Miss Sparhawk was nearly 15, says the Youth's Companion, but she had seemed so well and strong until within a few months that it was a surprise when she suddenly took ill and might die. Within a week, however, she rallied, and before long was entirely herself again. Her father, who had been in the situation to one of the summer residents, "You see," he said thoughtfully, "Lucy is one of those that thrive on trouble, and all her life, till about four months ago, she had a stock in hand. Left with five younger children at the age of thirteen, an crippled father, mortgaged farm, epidemic of measles, scarlet fever and smallpox, and one little boy—lived to be most 60 and had em frequent."

"When the girls married that started more calamities. One husband got caught in a moving machine, and the other had measles when he had a child. Both girls lived at home. So the years went on, everybody falling right on to Lucy, and she hissing the whole lot over hard places, and keeping a steady head on her shoulders. The children were all brought up, and the mortgage was all paid off 10 years back, the folks that haven't died were all well, and there was a comfortable and a goodly estate. Lucy suddenly began to fade. I see just how 'twas, but I couldn't do a thing—even my rheumatics held off. It went on from bad to worse, got to be the last of her strength and took to her bed."

"But when the doctor began to shake his head and thought the end was near, he came from Sister Jane over in Starboro. Her youngest has got a slight pulmonary affection of one lung, and they thought a summer at the farm with Lucy's nursing would cure her up. Soon as the letter was read out publicly and for her shoes and stockings and when the doctor came next morning he said she'd taken a new lease of life."
