

BATLING NELSON DEFEATS CORBETT

In the Greatest Fight Witnessed Between Little men in Years.

WAS MASTER AT ALL TIMES.

Denverite's Vicious Wallops Did Not
Shake the Dane—Former Champion
Was a Badly Beaten Man.

Woodward's Pavilion, San Francisco, Nov. 29.—In the greatest fight witnessed between little men in years, Batling Nelson, of Chicago won from "Young Corbett" of Denver until Corbett's seconds threw up the sponge Nelson was master of the situation at every stage of the game. His fighting was a revelation and the most brilliant ever witnessed in any ring here.

For the last three rounds of the fight Corbett was as helpless as a baby, but at the end of the fourth round he rallied and landed a few blows on Nelson's head. Nelson's victory was complete. The story of the fight is simply told. Corbett entered the ring at 5:15 o'clock against an opponent who was supposed to be a gaudy-faced negro whom Anderson, Billy Jones, introduced as "Young Corbett." Nelson, champion Gracieo-Roman wrestler of the world, entered the ring at 5:25 o'clock.

Although it was not a championship affair, the fight attracted a large crowd of spectators. Nelson's victory was complete. The story of the fight is simply told. Corbett entered the ring at 5:15 o'clock against an opponent who was supposed to be a gaudy-faced negro whom Anderson, Billy Jones, introduced as "Young Corbett." Nelson, champion Gracieo-Roman wrestler of the world, entered the ring at 5:25 o'clock.

CARRIED FIGHT TO CORBETT.

In the second round Nelson went right at his man, winning the cheers of the crowd. The fight was fast and Corbett looked a bit dazed, but he was a dangerous fighter. Nelson's victory was complete. The story of the fight is simply told. Corbett entered the ring at 5:15 o'clock against an opponent who was supposed to be a gaudy-faced negro whom Anderson, Billy Jones, introduced as "Young Corbett." Nelson, champion Gracieo-Roman wrestler of the world, entered the ring at 5:25 o'clock.

SIXTH ROUND WAS FURIOUS.

The sixth was a furious round, which ended in Nelson leading Corbett all over the ring. The house was going wild. Nelson kept up the work in the seventh, beating Corbett until his opponent was a bloody mess. Nelson's victory was complete. The story of the fight is simply told. Corbett entered the ring at 5:15 o'clock against an opponent who was supposed to be a gaudy-faced negro whom Anderson, Billy Jones, introduced as "Young Corbett." Nelson, champion Gracieo-Roman wrestler of the world, entered the ring at 5:25 o'clock.

CROWD WAS MERCIFUL.

She cry of "Stop the fight" was yelled from every part of the house, but it was not until the tenth that the butchering ended. Corbett wobbled around gamely but was as helpless as a lamb. Nelson's victory was complete. The story of the fight is simply told. Corbett entered the ring at 5:15 o'clock against an opponent who was supposed to be a gaudy-faced negro whom Anderson, Billy Jones, introduced as "Young Corbett." Nelson, champion Gracieo-Roman wrestler of the world, entered the ring at 5:25 o'clock.

NELSON WINS.

When this "dash" came over the wires last night there were a lot of happy Salt Lake ring followers, and some disappointed ones. Nelson's victory was complete. The story of the fight is simply told. Corbett entered the ring at 5:15 o'clock against an opponent who was supposed to be a gaudy-faced negro whom Anderson, Billy Jones, introduced as "Young Corbett." Nelson, champion Gracieo-Roman wrestler of the world, entered the ring at 5:25 o'clock.

many things, but above all that Teddy Munster's statement to the sporting editor of the "News" is true. He said: "No fighter living can beat Nelson at 120 pounds weight."

TEA

You think anyone can brew tea; and they can; but why don't you learn?

Go by the book.

Why, I'll win from Brit. He looks just like the rest of 'em to me, and I'll get him. I won a little over $200 tonight, outside of my share of the receipts.

Will Brit be his next victim? They will probably be matched in December. Brit says he has had his eyes opened as to Nelson. The pair will likely clash before long for the title fight set from Corbett on a half-line decision. Will he try to force Nelson into the ring at 135 pounds? It is doubtful if Murphy would stand for it. He will more than likely insist on 135 pounds at a 6 o'clock, and Brit will have to concede it or be branded as afraid to meet the wonderful Dane. If they come together at that weight, and Nelson is in good condition, look for a new champion among the 135 pounders.

After last night's battle, Brit made the following statement:

WHAT JIM BRITT SAYS.

"Nelson is one grand little fighter and I realize that when I fight him in December I have got to put up a better fight than I ever did before in my life. I have had my eyes opened and any doubt that I had as to Nelson as a card is swept away. He is the one man that I want to fight. And I want to say that all the bickering between Corbett and myself are over as far as I am concerned, after the same showing he made. I am willing, if he is, to shake hands and call off all past unkindnesses."

GREAT DANGER FROM UNIONISM

Fill Streets With Idle Men, Says
David M. Parry.

New York, Nov. 29.—Members of the Citizens' Industrial association, representing all sections of the country, were present when the second annual convention of the organization opened here today. It is the aim of the convention to bring about a complete organization of manufacturers, business men and all large employers of labor, and to advocate the open-shop idea. All employers not affiliated with the association were invited to attend the convention.

PARRY'S ADDRESS.

President David M. Parry, in his annual address, reviewed the growth of the "open-shop" movement, and said that within a year 1,000 factories had declared their doors to workmen without regard to their membership in unions. In some of these factories, he said, the output per man has been increased from 25 to 50 per cent. Mr. Parry said:

"If trades unionists should become dominant in this country," he said, "I have not the least doubt that our industries would languish and our streets would be filled with idle men. No other results could possibly follow a system that would have the reward of labor not on merit but on the power of organization to dictate terms, a system that would restrict output, discourage enterprise and permit the indolent and least efficient to set the pace for industry."

Mr. Parry declared that the courts have, with practical unanimity, held that the closed shop cannot be maintained by means of contracts between employers and unions, which are void in that they tend to produce a monopoly, and are unconstitutional and against public policy.

RUSSIANS HAD THE BEST OF IT.

Japanese Made an Assault, Retired and Left Their Dead on The Field.

NIGHT SORTIES STILL CONTINUE.

Russian Scouts Can Go All Around The Japanese in Matters of Woodcraft.

Mukden, Nov. 29.—The activity of the Japanese against Gen. Rennenkampf's front continued Nov. 28, culminating before noon in one of the severest fights in recent weeks. The Japanese retired only about 600 yards, but after the fight the Russians collected 320 Japanese dead, all from the Seventh and Ninth reserve brigades. The Russians also captured a large quantity of rifles, entrenching tools and Red Cross stores. Night sorties continued. Russian scouts prove very adaptable to this sort of work, and can go all around the Japanese in woodcraft.

On the night of Nov. 25 a party of Siberian sharpshooters went out and captured every one of the guards in front of a Japanese party cutting fire wood, without arousing the suspicions of the Japanese that anything had happened.

On the evening of Nov. 27 a party of Russian volunteers virtually wiped out the village of Nankang, situated at the foot of the double humped hill opposite Fushun, Lone Tree hill. The Japanese had been occupying a building in the village every night and hampering the Russian sharpshooters. Attacking the village in the rear, the Russian volunteers drove the Japanese from the village early in the evening, mined the building and retired. The Japanese subsequently reoccupied the village, which was blown up, and almost the whole village destroyed. The Russian losses during the whole affair were three men killed and fifteen wounded.

A Russian report that the main Japanese force is located at Shikhan, on the railroad ten miles south of Shikhan, but it is impossible to estimate its numbers. The Japanese at such quarters, especially during the night fighting, usually use Russian words and phrases with the object of misleading their foes. Gen. Linvitch has especially warned the troops on this point.

JAP FIRE SWEEPS HARBOR.

London, Nov. 29.—According to a Tokyo dispatch to the Standard there is an unofficial rumor that the Japanese have landed large numbers of troops on the harbor, which is a wide beach made by the wedge the Japanese had previously driven in between the Etz group and the Russians last retreat in the ravine of Lao Tie mountain. They declare that retreat to Lao Tie will be effectively cut off, and that it is not unlikely that Lao Tie will be simultaneously attacked in the final assault. Bennett Burleigh wires to the Daily Telegraph from Chetso that in the last assault the Japanese lost 400 men in one hour's fighting. They claim to have captured two more of the northernmost forts and a third, which is part of the West Kewkan fort, and to have effected a lodgment at Pigeon Bay, thus turning the fort on 203-meter hill, and that they

HELPLESS.

H. C. Barnabas, the veteran singer, lay, disabled from a fall, and listened to the condolences of a friend. "For years and years," the writer said, "you haven't missed a performance. Now here you lie, helpless as a corpse."

"As helpless as a corpse," said Mr. Barnabas, "or as helpless as two ineffectuals of whom I heard the other day. These two men had dined together and after dinner had sat too long over their coffee, their liquor, their brandy and so on. When it came time for them to go home they were in a very bad way. Helpless, in fact. They leaned on one another, going with linked arms, but such, as a result to lean on, was rotten."
