COMMENTS AND TEN YEARS AGO

Utah Sheep Man Speaks of Great Changes Wrought in Feeding Question.

NOW RAISING BETTER SHEEP.

Stock Market Firm and a Good Run of Western Steers at Kansas City Last Week.

Special Correspondence.

Kansas City, Sept. 5.—P. G. Peterson of Ogden, Utah, a member of the firm of Peterson Bros., sheep feeders and traders, who brought to this market eight carloads of lambs and wethers a week ago, remained over at the yards until today when he departed for St. Louis, where he intends to spend a week. Mr. Peterson was born and reared in the Mormon state, and has been engaged in the sheep business for many years.

"Ten years ago we never thought of feeding sheep or paying for pasture for our flocks," said Mr. Peterson, "but since that time great changes have taken place all over Utah and the sheep country of the mountain districts, and today the problem that the sheepmen have to solve is whether to continue in the business or purchase land for grazing their own flocks. And the feeding question has also undergone a great change. In former years there was enough feed on the range to keep all the sheep we had, but at the present time there is not a sufficient amount, and we have to provide feed for our sheep. At some time the time, and all the sheep at certain periods. But this change is having its effect in almost every branch of the industry. We are raising fewer but better sheep. The sheep breeders are crossing his breeds and raising the standard, and are producing better medium sheep. In that country the fine wool sheep is not the right thing, as the meat is as acceptable to the consumers as the wool. The fine wool sheep, however, is not so profitable, however, to the men on the range, as their wool becomes entangled in the brush, and the fine wool sheep is not so profitable as the medium sheep. Now to avoid this trouble the sheep raisers are crossing these breeds and producing a medium wool sheep that is acceptable to the packers and the consumers.

The lambs crop last spring in that part of Utah was a little better than usual, but what I lacked in quantity was made up in the quality. And all the sheep on the range in that country are in good shape, and will come to market some fine condition. In the line of feeding there will be more sheep fed there this fall and winter. There was a heavy crop of alfalfa which will turn out a great deal of pulp, which will be fed with alfalfa which will come to market some fine condition.

STOCK MARKET FIRM.

There was a good run of western grass steers last week, and prices on same were generally better than a week ago. The bulk of cattle destined for the killers received better treatment from feeder buyers, and were taken to the country. In the Texas beef steers sold at 3.75 to 4.25 for good ones, while medium steers, 1.50 to 1.75 pounds, sold at 3.25 to 3.75.
