uncle of the president of the French republic: Napoleon Bonaparte, when first consul, was one day amusing himself on the banks of the ministure lake at Mahmalson by throwing stones into the water near a boatful of ladies who were with Josephine. The ladies were dressed in rather expensive summer toilets, and, as the stone-throwing of the magnate caused them great annoyance, they protested. Napoleon, however, continued his amusement, when a little boy, 4 years old, who had been looking on, ran up to him and said: "You brute of a first consul, will you leave off tormenting the ladies?" The consul stopped as if stupified, and, on pursuit that subsequently cost the leave off tormenting the ladies?" The consul stopped as if stupified, and, on seeing the boy, burst out laughing. The youthful knight-errant was young Carnot, who had accompanied his father, Napoleon's minister of war, to Malmaison.

the results are not worth reaping. Hence the pimento-grower has often to fall back on his cattle and horses, raised on the rich pasture beneath the spice trees. In spite of low prices, however, the pimento industry is as a whole, of considerable value. In 1874—a bad year—the value was only £36,-000. The grower seldom rate more Wellsville Wm. H. Maughan

The berries are carried to the "works" at night, piled in a heap, and left to undergo a certain amount of fermentation before being dried in the sun, When cured they are dull brown little balls, very light, fragrant, and possessing the well known allspice flavor. The pimento industry has been in existence in Jamaica since 1771.
