from Wah Wah, one horse tied to the wagon, the two men and two horses were seen working with him, and asked if he could be of help, thinking some accident had occurred. The woman uncovered her face, which had been wrapped in a quilt, and somewhat abruptly answered, "No, by your leave, that horse was working with me. No water was given. Two men were seen after this horseback, by other sheep men, whom they purposely avoided, and they appeared to be following after the two men in the wagon, who are known to have been the Pennys. They were seen to have passed the wagon by turning off the road and riding on the rise of a hill where they could get a clear view of the road toward Black Rock, then supposed to have turned and met and murdered the men, about 3 o'clock p.m., and afterwards hauled off their victims in their own wagon. Blood was found scattered along in this vicinity, but the boys' opinion are varied about the age of the blood. The county sheriff has taken some of the blood to Salt Lake City for analysis. Our people are completely staggered at the mystery, and now they rely entirely upon the future actions of our county sheriff, who has the confidence of all who have been working with him, and if he is given a free hand they say developments will speedily come, which will set at rest the going of Ezra Penney and his son George.

pockets of Isaacson and turn over what coin he could find. Nielson obeyed, and with the coin he found, he was much gratified, went through the pockets of Isaacson and shelled out about $30, turning it over to the hold-up. The robber then ordered Isaacson to search Nielson and see if he could find anything on him. As the gun was used as a threat, Isaacson went through the man's clothing, but was terribly excited and did not find anything. The footpad then left his men, after warning them to keep quiet. The two men who had been held up, came back to Main street and Isaacson began complaining to his partner (Nielson) about losing all his money, whereupon Nielson in order to keep him quiet gave him $5. The officers were later notified, and as soon as the story had been told them they decided that Nielson had decoyed Isaacson to the place of robbery for that purpose, and that he was a pal of the man who did the robbing. A warrant was sworn out for Nielson's arrest, but he could not be found.

ST. JOHNS.

Grand Opportunity for Dry Farming—Death of Mrs. Lloyd.

Special Correspondence.

St. John, Tooele Co., Feb. 15.—This little town is located nine miles southwest from the mining town of Stockton, and about twelve miles northwest from the West Dip mining camps, and about sixteen miles northwest from Mercur, and is near the Johnson Pass, where the Deep Creek wagon road crosses the mountains to Skull valley. This was once a great grass and stock country, but has been entirely eaten out of grass by the numerous bands of cattle, horses and sheep that have been kept here for many years past. At the present time the people are giving more attention to their farms, which are small on account of our water being limited. Through the scarcity of grass on the range and the limited supply of water the people are beginning to look about them for other facilities to take hold of, and a few have begun the experiment on dry farming, which is being done on a small scale as yet. No doubt in the near future there will be much grain raised here by this method, as we have thousands of acres of good land in Skull valley, and can obtain plenty of water for culinary purposes by digging wells from twenty to fifty feet. It is believed that there is sufficient water in nearly every locality in this valley by digging one hundred feet and putting in the most improved pumping plants to raise the water for irrigating gardens, orchards, shade trees and so forth, and that with the most improved methods of dry farming many hundreds of fam-
