EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday, August 22, 1888.

FRAGMENTS.

T. B. LEWIS, Esq., of Ogden was in Salt Lake today.

THE Lyceum company arrived from the west last evening.

THERE is a message at the Deseret Telegraph Office for Adam Sharp.

EDWARD TOLTON was today commissioned a notary public for Beave County.

LEWIS MORRISON comes to the Theatre next week, with "A Dark Secret" and "Faust."

HONS. JOHN E. CARLISLE, Chas. C. Richards and Joseph Barton came down from the north today.

J. V. PARKER, Esq., goes north this afternoon on railway business connected with the Oregon Short Line.

THERE will be no matinee at the Theatre next Saturday. The management have concluded not to give one.

A. M. GREEN, Thomas Doohan and Frank Maycock were fined $5 each in the Police Court today for drunkenness.

MRS. EMMA BIRD was convicted in the Police Court yesterday afternoon of disturbing the peace. She was fined $15.

S. P. TEASDEL is giving his employes and their families a free excursion to Syracuse this afternoon, leaving on the 4:10 p. m. train.

HERMANN performed to another good house at the Theatre last evening, and the audience appeared to be delighted with his clever work.

WE are pleased to state that the health of Gen. H. S. Eldredge is improving, and that there are fair prospects of his rallying again.

BROTHER JAMES NEEDHAM celebrated the 62nd anniversary of his birth on Monday and the evening was made the occasion of a large and very pleasant gathering of his relatives at his house.

A DISPATCH from Denver states that John Goldranson, who missed the train when traveling with the immigrants, is at that place, but has lost his ticket. Arrangements will be made to have him brought on to this city.

EHORMAN'S Lyceum Theatre company opens its engagement at the Theatre tonight in "The Wife." Three performances and a matinee will be given. There was a good sale of tickets at the box office today.

MRS. WM. DINWOODEY and Mrs. Jessie Mills, of St. Louis, who for some weeks past have been visiting friends and relatives in this region, took their departure today via the D. & R. G. W. for their home. They have highly enjoyed their stay.

THE Union Pacific has issued a rate of single fare for the round trip from the Missouri River and Denver and common points, for the regatta to be held on the lake on August 30 and 31. Tickets are on sale at Missouri River points August 25 and Denver and common points, good going west to August 30, and returning to September 6.

MR. ALEXANDER JOHNSON, formerly connected with the law office of the late S. J. Jonasson, has just returned from Ann Arbor, where he recently graduated after a three years' course of law studies. He purposes soon commencing the practice of his adopted profession in this city. Mr. Johnson is a Swede, and for some time previous to coming to Salt Lake resided in Nevada.

THERE is a prospect that the hotels will not be able to accommodate more than half of the excursionists that will come from various directions to attend the regatta on August 30 and 31, and the committee request that citizens who can take boarders for a few days send their addresses, with the number they can accommodate, and the charge, to Pavey & Walden, Second Sout Street, west.

Rockport Fruit.

This morning Brother Henry Seamons, of Rockport, Summit County, exhibited some specimens of small fruits raised in his orchard at that place. They consist of English black, red and white currants. They are as fine as any we have seen in the Territory, both in appearance and flavor. A sample of gooseberries did not show up so well. The result as a whole is very satisfactory, however, taking the long winters of the section where Rockport is situated into consideration. Efforts to raise apples there have thus far proved a futile, as the trees are generally killed in the spring. Brother Seamons is experimenting with thepeach, and proposes to adopt some method of protecting the trees in the cold season.

Hair Snakes Again.

We mentioned yesterday the fact of a water snake having been found in water drawn from the city mains. Our reportorial curiosity was considerably sharpened by the incident; we were set busily cogitating as to the nature and habits of the curious little creature, and also as to the result of accidentally swallowing his snakeship in a draught of City Creek water. So, meeting one of our local students of science, we plied our questions and gained the following interesting items: The so-called hair snake is no snake at all, it is more appropriately called the hair worm, but its professional title is gordius aquaticus. It is in fact a worm, living during the early part of its existence as a parasite in the intestines of certain insects, especially locusts and grasshoppers. Lying as it does closely coiled within the body of its host it sometimes grows to a considerable length. At maturity it escapes and seeks the water, there to deposits its eggs. Here we frequently meet with it, actively wiggling about, in shape, color and size resembling an animated hair, and hence its name, and the common though erroneous notion, that a horse hair if placed in the water will be transformed into a hair worm. But many a believer in the superstitious idea will tell you that he has done it. No such a transformation can be effected. A hair is a hair, and a worm a worm; and a Creator's power is demanded to form one from the elements of the other. If you throw a handful of hairs into a ditch, however, you may find hair worms wiggling amongst them; these creatures seek such matted and tangled places in which to lay their eggs. Make your experiment in a scientific, that is, in a sensible way: carefully count the number of hairs you place in the water, and though you may find half a dozen "hair-snakes" amongst them soon after, count again, and see if you have not the same number of hairs, intact and uninjured. Or, place the hairs in a vessel of water, instead of a ditch and though the hairs stay there till they rot, no snakes or worms will be seen.

As regards the possibility of swallowing one while drinking water—well, better not do such a thing as a rule; hairworm is not good as a beverage; but if you did swallow one is would be very uncomfortable for the worm. That is all the harm that would be likely to follow, unless the drinker knew what he had done; then perhaps the usual effect of an emetic would be produced.

MORE WATER.

Increasing the Depth of the Jordan River.

It is generally understood that work is being done on the Jordan River with a view to increasing the flow of water in the various canals which are supplied by that stream, but the nature and extent of the work are not so well understood. With a view to giving the public full information upon this subject, a NEWS reporter accepted an invitation from City Watermaster Chas. H. Wilcken to take a drive to those points on the river where work is being done.

Mr. Wilcken and the reporter started from the city in the former's buggy shortly before nine o'clock yesterday morning. The drive along the State Road gave opportunity to note the rapidity with which that section has been settled and improved during recent years. Old residents, formerly familiar with it, but who have not seen it for some years, would be astonished to view it now. Fine residences, prolific orchards and fertile farms occupy the land which was so recently a waste.

FRIEND WILCKEN'S FLYERS

made excellent time, and the point of the mountain was reached before noon. Here the buggy turned to the right, and by a circuitous route made its way down to the flat on which stands a house occupied by a Mr. Goodman. In this flat is a slough, semi circular in form, which used to be the channel of the river; but when the D. & R. G. W. was being constructed, a fill was made straight across this horse shoe, which forced the river against the west side of the hollow, and, of course, into a new channel. This new channel is not as deep as the old one above and below the horse shoe, and consequently a riffle existed here about 75 yards long.

Work was begun on this riffle July 23, five men being employed. On Aug. 6 the force was increased to eight men. A tent was provided for this camp, for the men to sleep and eat in, and it was pitched near the bank of the river, on the flat above spoken of,

With a touching

on his countenance, one of the men described to the reporter how bad the mosquitoes were. It was useless to drive the tent stakes more firmly into the ground, or to bank up the lower edge of the canvass with dirt, with a view to barricading against the winged pastodons. Into the tent they would come. Nothing short of cannon proof, naval armor would serve to keep them out. Probably this man did not intend to be untruthful: he looked to be an honest patient, hard-working fellow; but as his account of the capacity, size, etc., of the Jordan mosquitos would seem too unreasonable for belief, to most of our readers, unfamiliar with the fauna of the region referred to, it is not here reproduced. The statement that the only way in which the men could get a little sleep, was by sinking themselves in the river, out of reach of their flying tormentors, and occasionally coming to the surface for air, is, however, given for what it is worth. It would seem that sleeping in the bed of a good sized river would be fraught with grave danger.

THE METROD

of deepening the channel here is as follows: A plank runway is extended nearly across the stream, which is about forty feet wide. Two men run a wheelbarrow each on this runway, and three other men stand in the water on each side of it and shovel the gravel mud, etc., into the barrows. Ten hours a day the men stand working thus in the water,

The bottom here is covered with a layer of gravel a few inches thick under which is a hard, tough clay, very difficult to handle. It is too hard to dig easily, yet too soft to blast. The men, however have made good headway, and it was expected that the work at this point would be finished last evening.

The work covers an area of about 13 yards wide, the width of the river by about 75 yards long, the length of the shallow place. The average depth of water over this area has been increased to about 34 inches. It was only from six to ten inches deep when work began. The dam of the Salt Lake City Canal is but a short distance below here.

The reduction of this riffle has lowered the water above it so as to make another riffle on what is known as the about one-fourth of a mile further up the stream. It is said that long ago the Indians made a dam of rocks here in order to catch fish. It was at this point that the old Camp Floyd stage crossed the Jordan.

It will not be a big job to deepen the channel here sufficiently; two or three days' work will do it. Before work began in the riffle below, the water here was nearly three feet deeper than it now is. Work was to have been begun here today by the eight men who have been working at the D. & R. G. W. fill.

About one mile above Indian Ford a force of seven men, under Israel Evans, Esq., of Lehi, each with a team attached to either a plow or a scraper, had just finished removing a riffle on which the force have been at work three and a half days.

This riffle is at a flat on which the people of Farmington built a sheep corral and camped at the time of the move.

Among the debris brought ashore here was a buffalo's horn partially petrified.

As Mr. Wilcken and the reporter approached this spot, the entire force started up the river. After going about 250 yards, the teams and commenced plowing and scraping the bed. Here is a shallow place about a fourth of a mile long, which will require from two to three weeks' work to reduce. When this riffle is removed, however, the result must be a considerable increase in the volume of the river, as, according to surveys that have been made, there was only seven inches difference between the level of the water here and on the bar at the lake, across the head of the river, which has lately been dredged down considerably.

In other words, when this last named large riffle is reduced, the Jordan will virtually be an arm of Utah Lake, down to the dam, a distance of nine miles.

Hitherto a wind blowing up stream, over these riffles, has impeded the flow of water to a marked extent. On the contrary a down stream wind has increased it somewhat. The removing of these riffles will make the flow steadier.

The water in Utah lake is lower now than was ever before known, except in 1879, and it is believed that it will go as low before the season is over as it did that year.

IT HAS FALLEN RAPIDLY

since work began on the riffles, otherwise there would be considerably more water in the Jordan than there is. The lake has fallen eight inches in the last three weeks.

Fish gather around where the men are at work in the river, probably to feed upon the worms, etc., which are turned up. The horses in plowing and scraping in the river, trample on and kill numbers of suckers. There has been some blasting done, and this has killed quantities of fish, but it was unavoidable. Few trout are met with, the native fish in the Jordan consisting almost entirely of chubs or mullet and suckers.

The expense of making these improvements will be divided between Salt Lake County, the canal companies of North, South and West Jordan, Draper and Salt Lake City, each paying one sixth. When the work now under way is completed, about 18 inches more of the water of Utah Lake will be brought into this county than would otherwise have flowed into the Jordan. This means that a foot and a half deep, five miles wide and 25 miles long, will be spread over this city and the farms of this county, minus some loss in distribution.

The farthest point visited by Mr. Wilcken and the reporter was 27 miles distant. On the return home a detour was made to visit the farm of President Angus M. Cannon, where men were at work cleaning out the Salt Lake City canal, removing from it a species of grass that grows very abundantly in it, greatly impeding the flow of water. Two men were wading down stream, side by side, and each with a short scythe was mowing the grass, which floated on ahead of them, to be caught on a grating and thrown into the bank by two men, a short distance below.

This grass is very bulky when growing in the water, but upon being thrown upon the bank and allowed to dry shrinks to almost nothing, and in a few days is reduced to powder. It is a and the men above referred to were removing the third crop of it which has been thrown out of the canal this year. Three times each season the canal has to be cleaned of this grass.

After giving necessary directions to the men working here, Mr. Wilcken headed his team for home. The kind of horse flesh he drives may be known by the fact that the last five miles of the sixty which the team traveled that day was made by the horses with heads and tails up, and an eagerness that could only be restrained by a strong hand on the reins.

The parties to the expense of making the above improvements in the Jordan have done well in reposing the superintendency of the same in the hands of Mr. Wilcken. His experience and other qualities well qualify him to supervise the work.

Iron County was taken up next, and was being canvassed this afternoon.

Probate Court.

Proceedings in the Salt Lake County Probate Court yesterday:

Estate of Jennie D. Reese, deceased; order made appointing time and place for settlement of guardian's accounts.

Estate of Henry Shingleton, deceased; bond of Catherine Mitchell, administratrix, in the sum of $1,200, filed and approved.

Estate of John Livesey, deceased, order made confirming sale of real estate.

Estate of Frank Crocker, deceased; order made of sale of real estate.

Charged with Forgery.

John Thornton is in custody on the charge of forgery. Yesterday he came in from Cottonwood, where he has been in the employ of D. B. Brinton, and presented to John Wm. Snell an order requesting that he pay Thornton for ten days' work. Mr. Brinton's name was signed to the order. Thornton obtained some goods and gave a receipt therefor, signing his employers' name. Mr. Brinton happened to call at Mr. Snell's, and it was then discovered that the order was a forgery. In consequence the forgery proceedings were inaugurated.

Change in Time.

Official notice was received this afternoon of the change in time on the Union Pacific, which goes into effect August 26th. Train No. 1, which now arrives in Ogden at 5 p. m., will reach there at 4:40 p.m. No. 121 now arrives at 11:30 p. m., and will come at 6 p. m. No. 2 now leaves at 10 a. m. and the time will be changed to 9:45 a.m. No. 122 now leaves for the east at 10 p.m.; it will be changed to 9:45 p.m. The difference in the arrivals and departures between this city and Ogden will be two hours after or before the time given, as the case may be.

ELDER JOHN C. HARPER

Arrives from Chattanooga With the Body of Elder Edmund Z. Taylor.

Last evening Elder John C. Harper, of Payson, arrived from the Southern States via the D. & R. G. W. Railway, with the body of the late Elder Edmund Z. Taylor, an account of whose death in Virginia has already appeared in this journal. Elder Harper speaks highly of the courtesy of the railroad officials and employes on whose lines he traveled. The body of the deceased Elder has been taken on to Ogden, being escorted from this point by Brother Miles H. Jones, of Ogden, who happened to be on a visit to the States, and accompanied Elder Harper on his return to Utah.

Elder Harper has been absent about fifteen months, and was recently president of the missionary field known as the North Carolina Conference, which embraces a portion of Virginia, of which latter State he is a native. He met with fair success, and was as a rule treated by the people of the South with marked kindness and hospitality. He reports that Elder James B. Rarie, of West Weber, is suffering from a fever of a similar kind to that which caused the death of Elder Taylor. He is in Amhurst County, Virginia.

Rasmus Neilsen Arrested.

Yesterday Rasmus Nielsen, of Hunter, Salt Lake County, was arrested on a charge of unlawful cohabitation. His examination was commenced before Commissioner Norrell at 2:30 p.m. today. He has already served six months for living with his wives. This afternoon the plural wife said she had not met or spoken to the defendant for two years, or since he came from the penitentiary. Herself and children had been provided for.

During the severe examination the lady was subjected to by District Attorney Peters, she burst into tears, and questions were plied to her rapidly, without giving her time to recover herself. She said, "I don't speak to him because I dare not. I just spoke to him since we came to the Marshal's office. (Weeping bitterly) I dare not speak to him because of the officers." The case had not concluded when the NEWS went to press.

Mail Changes.

The following has been received from Postmaster Barratt:

"The taking off of trains No. 9 and 10 between this city and Denver, on the D. & R. G. necessitates the discontinuing of the through pouch from this city to that place.

"The mail designed for this train has been closing at this office at 8:30 a. m. and arriving at the station in this city, from Denver, at 2:30 a.m."
