ABSORPTION OF OREGON SHORT LINE

Closing of the Ogden Gateway and Numerous Other Important Changes Predicted as the Result of the Big Railway Move.

With the news of the operations of the Harriman syndicate, the resignation of S. W. Eccles as traffic manager of the Oregon Short Line and the general uneasiness that is felt to surcharge the railroad atmosphere throughout the West, the life of the average railroad man is, to quote the Gilbert and Sullivan group, "not a happy one."

On Railroad Row this morning all kinds of stories were rampant, from the appointment of a successor to S. W. Eccles to the closing down of the general offices of the Oregon Short Line, the packing of the Ogden gateway, and the subsequent retirement from official life of the numerous freight and live stock agents that are attached to the various general agencies in Salt Lake.

The railroad men generally appreciate the fact that it was mainly through the efforts of Mr. Eccles that the Ogden gateway has been kept open. The departing traffic manager has stood out for that reason for months past, and the Oregon Short Line has maintained its position as being a distinct system to a certain extent.

Now that he is about to go up his tent and board the train for Gotham there are those who have been watching the trend of circumstances for some time past those who predict that this is but the beginning of the end, and that the Oregon Short Line will ultimately be directed from Omaha at the general offices of the Union Pacific.

It is generally conceded that, to a certain extent, this has been the case for several months past, as the wool men have testified during the recent agitation here during the past season.

The consolidation of the general agencies of the Union Pacific, Oregon Short Line and the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company just prior to Christmas was another step in the closer relations of the Harriman interests, and now it is rumored that one by one the force at the general offices of the Oregon Short Line will be weeded out until there will not be any more left than is absolutely necessary for the local operation of the system.

It is said that the first step will be the abolishment of the office of traffic manager and the appointment of a new freight agent, an impartial jury, which is an exhaustive one, and it was concurred in by Justices Miner and Bartsch.

PRISONER HEARS THE NEWS. The joyful news was given to the prisoner this afternoon, who rejoiced at the prospects now before him, as he believes he can secure an acquittal by a new trial before an impartial jury.

Judge Baskin wrote the opinion, which is an exhaustive one, and it was concurred in by Justices Miner and Bartsch.

PROBATE ORDERS. Judge Hall made the following probate orders today: Estate of John Wall, deceased, Catherine Franklin appointed administratrix under bond of $2,000.

ESTATE OF WILLIAM H. BEHLE, DECEASED. Dr. A. E. Behle appointed administrator with bond of $1,000.

ESTATE OF THOMAS J. CURTIS, DECEASED. Mary E. Curtis appointed administratrix under bond of $2,000.

ESTATE OF JAMES KENDALL, DECEASED. Order made discharging administrator.

ESTATE OF MORRIS LIVINGSTON, DECEASED. Order made allowing sale of real estate at private sale, upon additional bond of $1,000 being filed.

ESTATE OF ALBERT C. DEWEY, DECEASED. Order made compromising claims of Maria L. Dewey.

ESTATE OF JAMES KENDALL, DECEASED. Order made discharging administrator.

LATE LOCALS. The business of the Salt Lake Clearing House will hereafter be transacted in the directors' room of the Utah National Bank instead of in the room in the McCornick block formerly used for that purpose.

Several of the banks today received consignments of the $500,000 Salt Lake City bonds issued ten years ago and returned now for redemption by the city. The recent issue of bonds was made to redeem the issue of ten years ago as the money can be had at lower rate of interest now than then.
