TURNED OUT TO DIE.

An Old Man Frozen to Death in Stackyard.

At Deseret, Millard County, on Sunday night, an old man named Swenson was frozen to death. Parties up from that place today state that the unfortunate man was 87 years of age, and some words passed between them in which the old gentleman was ordered away. Though the words were. mot intended to have the effect they did on the old gentleman, he was conmade his bed in the baystack, to which place he retired when evening came. During the night the thermometer went down to 23 degrees below zero, and on Monday morning his relatives. who had no idea but that he was safe at one of his children's houses, were reiged to find him frozen to death. Further particulars, or whether there is any different version of the causes which led Mr. Swenson to seek a sleeping place in the stack, were not obtainable this afternoon

The Home Club Will Repeat their Late Emphatic Success.

The very decided success the Home Dramatic Club achieved in "Diplomacy," on New Year's day and night, has induced them to repeat the play—a decision which will be greeted with pleasure by many who were not present and by many who were. The date set for the reproduction is Monday evening next, when with the acquaintance gained by the Club with the inficacies of the piece, and repeated the arguing is a still more finished performance may be looked for.
