At a meeting of the municipal council held Tuesday evening it was introduced by Captain McKey and passed without a dissenting vote, and today became a law by the attachment thereto of the signature of Mayor Pease. In addition to passing this ordinance City Attorney Kuyken was instructed to draft an ordinance limiting the number of saloons within the city limits to 20.

According to the provisions of the new ordinance it shall be unlawful to permit gambling persons, minors or women in places where intoxicating liquors are sold. The interior of all saloons shall be in plain view of the streets and no chairs or tables shall be permitted therein. No liquors shall be admitted in any way.

But one license to any one person or firm.

The ordinance further provides that no place where liquor is sold shall in any way be connected with any room therein, or connected with which any prostitution or lewd practices are indulged in, or permitted, or wherein any prostitutes are permitted to visit for the purpose of such prostitution or lewd practices. Any room or place used for prostitution may not be used as entrance or communication with the place of business of such house by stair, elevator, dumb waiter, speaking tubes, electric apparatus or other means of communication, shall be deemed connected with the place of business of the license, whether such rooms are under the control of such houses or not.

REV. LUCAS RELEASED.

On appeal to supreme court the Rev. Alanson Lucas obtained his release from the Ada county jail Tuesday where he was committed by the trial court last week to serve a 50 day sentence for default of payment of a $100 fine. Lucas was convicted in the district court on the charge of assault upon Miss Mills, by striking her on the nose with his finger, while calling her a "damned hussy."

The prisoners were ordered released by the supreme court on the grounds that the liability of a defendant for fine and costs upon appeal from the police or justice court is a civil liability, and the only method of collection is by the entry of a judgment and execution against the defendant and his bondsman.

The opinion was in the case of Ewen McIntosh vs. the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company, tried before Judge Woods in the Shoshone county district court, an action to recover damages for the loss of goods in shipment, judgment being entered for the plaintiff in the sum of $300. The lower court is affirmed in the opinion.

WAREHOUSE PLAN APPROVED.

According to a recent statement of ex-Gov. Gooding, the warehouse plan of the National Woolgrowers' association is a success. "It has been a hard fight," said he, "but the fight is won beyond any question of doubt. I shall not be surprised to see the woolgrowers of the west enlarging the warehouses of Colorado and building new ones at both Phoenix and Boston."

Continuing he added:

"The principle of the movement has been established beyond a doubt, in my judgment, as the best plan, but the wool men have got to stand together against the rest and at the point of the issue demanded the delivery of all recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Leo Halperin was brought in from his home Tuesday, suffering with typhoid. He is quartered at the home of his mother-in-law, J. W. Southwick, Jr.

Wednesday evening Charlie, the young son of Hobie Lantz, of this place went into the hills near the town at dusk, leaving dark, he lit a match to keep himself alone, and just managed to touch a bundle of cotton batting lying near. He can not, explaining the fact that the cotton was on fire, after he had closed the door of the closet. The family rushed into the room, and after a few minutes of excitement the fire contiguously was extinguished, saving only the loss of some winter garments. That the cotton property was not destroyed is due only to the child's presence of mind in telling of the mishap.

The estimates thus far on the quantity of grain yield in this locality this season is 120,000 bushels, and by those who have closely observed, the amount is looked upon as being too low. It is true that this section experienced an unusually dry period during the latter part of July and throughout August, and cut down the yield of grain considerably, but this year's crop was not so bad as last year's, and was not looked upon as a wheat-producing one, and also that the farms are entirely new, but that next year the harvest will exceed the last year per cent. So with such an increase in the extension of transportation facilities is demanded, with preference shown for a truly system, which can be done easily by connecting with the Mail and Telegraph system or putting in a steam line from American Falls. At the last national election this precinct claimed 3000 votes. Today the number would reach possibly 1,000, and the immigration is still on. New houses can be seen everywhere, either finished or nearly so, and the saw mills are kept crowded to their full capacity. The class of people is among the best and families are sending back for relatives and friends.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—One of the most striking accidents ever witnessed in this community for years, occurred here Thursday, Oct. 28, in which Bishop Boileau Hunter of the Second ward was crushed to death under a load of lumber in the canyon east of Oakley. Mr. Hunter, 60 years of age, went to a saw mill in the mountains east of this settlement for stockade lumber. After finding that teams were returning through "Boulder gulch," the son driving the lead team, when the bishop's wagon struck a boulder about three feet high, throwing the driver to the ground and the load overturned, breaking his neck and his back across the shoulder blades. While it is believed that he was crushed to death instantly, he remained under the loaded wagon for nearly four hours, until Adam S. Sagers of Bismarck, who had met and passed the time of day with Hunter, came to the scene of the accident and found him still alive. He was crushed to death in the same position in which he had been found.

Mr. Sagers sent his son, Howard, home after a spring wagon, while he cut the chain and unloaded the lumber. When the work was done, the body was placed on a wood rack and started down the mountain.

Bishop Hunter was highly esteemed by all the people of this valley as the services indicated, which were held in the Cassia stake house, Oct. 31, and were attended by nearly 600 people, including officials were made by Swanson Nelson, first counselor to the stake president, and the interested parties present, the board decided in favor of the Bismarck road, on condition that the petitioners put up a $2,000 bond to grade and fence a road four rods wide and turn it over to the county free of expense before Dec. 1, 1909. The reason alleged for rejecting the route favored by the viewers was that it would cost the county much money and delay litigation and condemnations before secured.

George Garner will leave for a mission to New Zealand in about two weeks. Adam Branwell is expected to return from the British mission within the next few days.
