Monroe street, and as the fire crept closer to the west side of the structure, the men were gradually driven toward the middle of the roof. Suddenly the east wall of the building adjoining fell with a terrific crash. An immense mass of brick and timbers crushed into the roof where Captain O'Connor and his men were at work. The roof tore away from the sides and fell with a crash to the floor beneath, carrying Pipemen O'Hara and Padden down in the debris and leaving the others on the frail, broken edge of the roof high above the flames. Capt. O'Connor, Lieut. Calahan and Pipeman Horgan finally succeeded in securing the two unfortunate pipe-men, and, crawling along the shiking walls, they made their way to a fire escape and descended safely to the ground. After the fire had been raging about an hour and a half, the walls
