Very Creditable.—Brother J. W. Clawson, son of Bishop Clawson, of this city, has accomplished a feat that is not only creditable to himself, but to Utah, as producing artistic as well as other talent of the highest order. Six months ago the young gentleman went to New York and entered the National Academy of Design. He was in the highest class of that institution, and on the 11th inst., at the annual distribution of awards, carried off the second prize. This fact is noted by the leading New York journals, it being an incident unparalleled in the history of the Academy for a student of six months to take the second prize. Score one for Willard and one for Utah, where he was born and reared.

Change of Time.—The U. C. Rail way has put a new time card in effect to-day, which shortens the running time between Salt Lake and Provo thirty minutes, and between Salt Lake and Ogden fifteen minutes. Number two train arrives from the South at 9.20 instead of 10 a.m. The stops in Ogden have also been cut down, so that trains arrive earlier in Salt Lake than formerly. The morning train arrives at 11.20 a.m., the evening train 7.40 p.m.

The only changes in departure of passenger trains are, No. 1 train going south leaves at 2.30 p.m., 30 minutes later than formerly; No. 2 train going north leaves at 3.55 p.m., fifteen minutes later.

Advantages—earlier mails, longer time in the city for visitors from north and south and an opportunity to attend theatres and other amusements in good time.

A Sad Case of Insanity.—A young man about thirty years of age, named W. Young, from Sevier County, has been placed in the City Jail for safe-keeping, on account of his having become insane. His is a more than ordinarily sad case.

About five months ago he had the misfortune to be thrown from a horse, falling upon his head, sustaining a severe injury to the skull. He appeared to recover, and until about six weeks ago was apparently as well as ever. Just then, however, his mind suddenly gave way, showing that he had sustained an injury to the brain, probably from a piece of detached bone entering it, the effects of which developed at that late stage of the case. He will shortly be removed to Dr. S. B. Young's Insane Asylum.

THE LIFE OF JAMES W. CUMMINGS.

A SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

James Willard Cummings, who died May 19th, 1883, about 8 a.m., was the son of James Cummings and Susannah Willard Cummings, born March 10th, 1819, in the town of Wilton, County of Kennebec, State of Maine.

He heard the gospel for the first time when about eighteen years old, in his native land, did not embrace it at that time, but on several occasions stood in defence of elders against mobocracy.

His father's family having mostly become members of the Church, he emigrated with them to Nauvoo, where he arrived about the 1st of July, 1841, and was baptized on the 8th day of the following October.

He started on his first mission July 7th, 1842, traveling in the north eastern part of Illinois. He met with little success, it being a time of severe persecution about Nauvoo, and excitement generally through the country. He returned to Nauvoo in the forepart of the summer following. He was one of the posse who rallied and went up to Dixon on the Mississippi River, above Nauvoo, and rescued the Prophet Joseph from the hands of parties from Missouri, who had kidnapped him with the intention of taking him into that State on a pretense of his being a fugitive from justice. In the fall of 1843 he went on a mission to the Southern States, laboring mostly in Mississippi and Alabama, doing a good work, baptizing quite a number and scattering extensively the good seed of the Gospel, the fruits of which have since been gathered.

He returned again to Nauvoo in the fall of 1844, where he remained until the commencement of the removal of the Church west, was always on hand and taking an active part in all of the operations of defence against the persecutions and mobbings that were continually being waged against the Saints. He assisted in ferrying the first emigration of the Saints across the Mississippi, from Nauvoo, when they started west in the month of February, 1846; was appointed captain of a company of 100 men, called "Pioneers," whose duty it was to assist the emigration forward on the road in any manner their services might be available, and to perform guard duty at nights.

Under the direction of President Brigham Young, he started March 30th, 1846, in company with John Butler, who had just returned from a company of Saints that left Nauvoo the summer previous under the leadership of one James Emmet, and were then at Fort Vermillion, on Missouri River, in a state of starvation, for the purpose of inducing them to return and go with the Church. After a journey of many hardships they reached their destination, found the company in the condition represented and conducted them down to where they joined the moving camp of the westward bound Saints.

He then returned home to Nauvoo, arriving June 30th, 1846, and found his father's family, his wife being with them, about ready to start west. A few days after they all started, and in due time joined the main camp on the west side of the Missouri.

In the spring of 1848 he went from Winter Quarters to England on a mission, leaving his wife sick in Connecticut, with her friends. While in England he labored faithfully, being greatly blessed of the Lord and instrumental in bringing many souls into the fold of Christ.

In 1851 he returned to the United States in time to cross the Plains with that season's emigration, bringing his family with him.

During the period of his life here he has served in many responsible positions. For several years in the early history of Utah, he was an active and energetic member of the Legislature; several years a member of the City Council of Salt Lake City; clerk of the County and Probate Courts and County Treasurer, the latter office being held by him at the time of his demise.

In 1858 he was sent by Gov. Brigham Young in command of a company of scouts to meet the army sent here by Pres. Buchanan, to watch their movements and communicate with him. They first sighted the army near old Fort Laramie and, to use his own words, they herded them from there up to near Green River, when he was compelled to return home on account of a severe affliction of the eyes, disqualifying him for the time being, for duties of that character.

His labors as a home missionary are well understood by the people, he being very energetic in that capacity. His life was always on the altar for the advancement of the Kingdom of God, the defence of the rights of the Saints and the true principles of constitutional liberty.

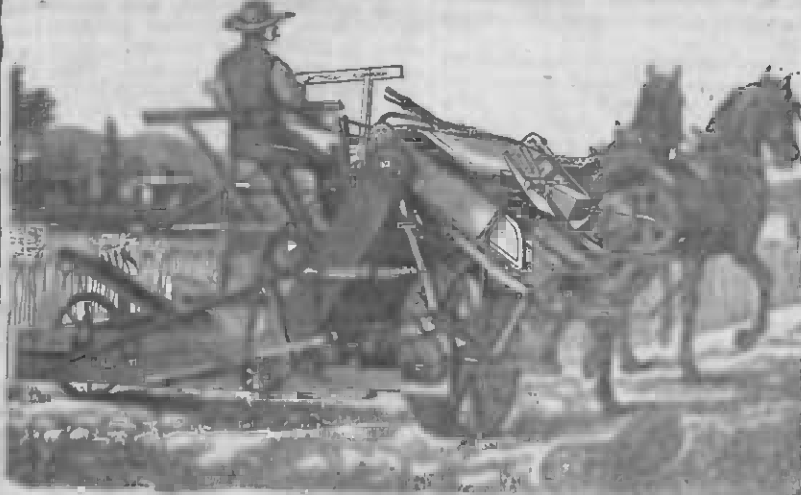

He has left a highly creditable record, and gone to join the armies of the just on the other side of the veil, there to continue his active career in the cause of truth, his labors stretching into the eternities.
