LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Relief Bill, Etc.

WASHINGTON, 4.—Logan, from the committee on military affairs, reported back the House bill to provide relief for the grasshopper sufferers.

Morton moved that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution to repeal the 22d joint rule of the two houses of Congress; agreed to, 21 to 18. Morton said the existence of the rule subjected the country to great danger. He offered the following as a substitute for the motion to repeal: "No objection to the reception and counting of any electoral vote or votes, from any State, shall be valid unless such objection is sustained by an affirmative vote of the two houses."

Thurman moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on privileges and elections, that it might be perfected; agreed to. Adjourned.

HOUSE.

The Civil Rights Bill—Butler Denounced by Brown—Brown Censured at the Bar of the House.

Senor defended his action as a republican member in voting steady against the motion to suspend the rules, so as to adopt a new rule by which the civil rights bill could be passed. He declared himself a strict republican, but he was opposed to the civil rights bill, in accordance with the views of the people of his district. He was defeated for congress in '74, although receiving within fifty of the entire colored vote of his district because, at the last moment, a rumor was circulated under a party lash that he might yield his honest conviction and support the civil rights bill. The republican party, in forcing this bill, was attempting to do by legislation that which could never be done by legislation—to correct and cure prejudice.

E. R. Hoar advocated the bill, not for any immediate effect for good it might have, but the value of the act was similar to that of the declaration of independence.

Stanard, of Mo., opposed the bill because he did not believe it to be for the interest of either the colored or white people, but would work incalculable damage.

Crain, colored, advocated the bill, and said the colored people had control of the whole school system in South Carolina, yet they had not a mixed school in the State except the State college. "Secure to us," he said, "our liberty, give us a chance to live, put no restriction on us, and we ask no more of the American people."

Chittenden, Caldwell and Eldredge opposed the bill, the latter declaring that it was only for the benefit of unprincipled carpet-baggers and scallawags, who would make merchandise of the colored race and of their bodies and souls, if thereby they could keep themselves in power and place.

Brown, of Ky., opposed the bill, declaring that its success had been in a measure accomplished by daring and revolutionary invasions on time-honored rules of the House. It had been born in malignity, and would be passed in defiance and violation of the constitution, and executed, he feared, in violence and bloodshed.

Hale, of N. Y., objected to the last sentence, but the Speaker ruled it within the limits of parliamentary debate.

Proceeding with his speech, Brown referred to the Louisiana troubles, which he said had been brought about by a conspiracy between the Attorney General, Kellogg and a wrangling federal judge, and he spoke of Sheridan's bandit dispatch, adding—"We have heard it echoed, elsewhere, that they were thieves and murderers and night riders; now what should be said if that accusation should come from one, I speak not of men, but in language within the rules of this House, if that accusation against that people came from one who is outlawed in his own home from respectable society, whose name is synonymous with every falsehood, who is the champion, and has been such on all occasions, of fraud, who is the apologist of thieves, who is such a prodigy of vice and meanness that to describe him, imagination would sicken and invective would exhaust itself? In Scotland once there was a man whose trade was murder, he earned his livelihood by selling the bodies of his victims for gold; he linked his name to his crime and, to-day, throughout the world it is known as Burking."

The SPEAKER: "Does the Chair understand the gentleman to be referring in this language to a member of the House?"

BROWN: "No, sir, I am describing a character who is in my mind's eye."

The SPEAKER: "The Chair understood the gentlemen to refer to a member of the House."

BROWN: "No, sir, I call no names. This man's name was linked to his crimes, and to-day throughout the world it is known as 'burking.' If I was to desire to expose all that was pusillanimous and inhuman in peace, forbidden in morals and infamous in politics I should call it Butlerism." (Sensation.)

SPEAKER, interrupting: "The gentleman did not deal in good faith with the Chair."

Hale, of N. Y., demanded that Brown's language be reduced to writing and read from the clerk's desk; and while the reporter was transcribing it excitement was at red heat. The Speaker remarked further, that he had not been paying close attention to the gentleman long, and had addressed him an inquiry, which had been answered either denyingly or evasively, the Chair couldn't tell which. It would be inexcusable in the Chair to have permitted such language, and his exculpation rested on the evasion of the gentleman from Kentucky.

The report of Brown's objectionable language being read, Hale, of N. Y., offered a resolution declaring that in the use of the language, as well as the prevarication by which he was enabled to continue its utterance, Brown had been guilty of a violation of the privileges of the House and merited the severest censure of the House, and that he be brought before the bar in custody of the sergeant-at-arms and publicly censured by the Speaker.

Dawes offered a substitute, providing for Brown's expulsion, but Hale declined to yield and moved the previous question.

Cox, to Hale, "You cannot force this thing on the House; there has been provocation for what the gentleman from Kentucky said."

The House refused to second the previous question, and Dawes then expressed regret at what he deemed the necessity for offering his resolution, and asked whether Brown desired to speak now.

Brown, rising and speaking with great deliberation, said this was the first time that evasion or prevarication had ever been attributed to him; he always spoke in plain terms, susceptible of no misunderstanding, and he was willing to stand by the record.

Dawes asked him if he desired to say anything in regard to the character of the language he had used?

BROWN—"I stand by the record." (Sensation.) Here a somewhat exciting episode occured between Hoar and Lamar, arising from a mis-understanding of an expression of the former by the latter, and ending in an explanation and apology by Lamar.

Dawes said that as it was evident the democrats would not vote for his resolution he would withdraw it.

Cox moved to table Hale's resolution, rejected, yeas 82, nays 167. The resolution was then adopted, 161 to 79.

Butler, who had sat quietly through all, then asked to make a personal explanation, and speaking of his eight years of service in the House, said that in all that time no one could accuse him of ever beginning a personal attack on any man, or say that he had gone out of his way to say an unkind word of a man unless first attacked, and he had also endeavored, when attacked, never to leave a man until he was sorry he did it.

The sergeant-at-arms then escorted Brown to the bar of the House, and the Speaker administered a dignified but severe censure.

Brown then said that he intended no prevarication or evasion in reply to the Speaker, and no disrespect to the House. The House then took a recess till ten to-morrow.

EASTERN.

The Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, 4.—The committee on ways and means considered the tariff bill to-day, and took a number of votes, which developed the fact that the proposition to tax tea and coffee will not carry as an independent proposition, but may, if some other articles now free are included with them. The minority of the committee are opposed to any new tariff bill, but there seems to be no doubt that the bill will be reported, probably by Monday.

The Naturalization Law.

Holland, from the House judiciary committee, to-day, reported favorably on Page's bill to restore the law relating to naturalizing, just as it was prior to the late confederation, in which the omission of the word "white" left the door open for the naturalization of Chinamen; the bill was re-committed, with authority to bring it before the House for action at any time.

Railway Travel Stopped.

OMAHA, 4.—There have been no trains over the Chicago and Northwestern for two days; the storm has abated, but the weather is extremely cold.

Bishop Elected.

CHICAGO, 4.—The Illinois Episcopal convention, to-day, elected Dr. DeKoven bishop of the diocese, in the third ballot, the vote standing, clergy, DeKoven 39, Leeds 27; lay DeKoven 31, Leeds 22.

Dead.

NORWICH, Conn., 4.—Ex-Governor and Senater Wm. A. Buckingham, died at his home in this city at midnight.

The Investigation.

NEW ORLEANS, 4.—The congressional committee heard a large amount of testimony to-day, which was mainly a repetition of that heretofore brought out. The most notable evidence was that of Louis Texada, a conservative witness, who admitted his belief that frauds were committed in the returns of the McEnery vote in 1872, though he believed the whites had a majority in the State, and consequently won the election.

FOREIGN.

FRANCE.

Fighting in Spain.

PARIS, 4.—The New York Herald's correspondent at Villada, Feb. 2d, says that General Moriones entered Noain, eight miles from Pampeluna, to-day, with 20,000 men, and that he will enter Pampeluna to-morrow, and will probably attack Carascol simultaneously from the rear, having now turned that important position. The Carlists, numbering 3,000, are at Sumgossa. At Monreal the fighting was very severe, and Moriones suffered severely; the battle is only really beginning, and it is impossible to predict the result. The Carlists are abandoning Villada, and will rejoin the main army to-morrow.

BELGIUM.

A Royal Marriage.

BRUSSELS, 4.—Prince Philip, Duke of Saxony, was married to-day to the Princess Louise, eldest daughter of the King of Belgium.

UTAH AFFAIRS.
Congress and Polygamy,
Including the
POLAND BILL.
THE ABOVE IS A SERIES OF LETTERS by "Veritas," intended to give the reader some acquaintance with affairs in Utah, political, religious and otherwise and to show, in some degree, the real objects certain men have in view, in urging upon Congress special and prescriptive legislation for Utah.
The matter has been read, very generally, the language of prominent and disinterested parties, knowing that such matter has the right to publish.
Price 25 Cents.
