

THE NEWS' SUPPLEMENT.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1865.

[CONCLUDED.] ALMOST DIVORCED.

"Well, wife, this seems like getting home again after a long journey," said Mr. Puffer, after warming his hands and his heart also at the blaze, and looking about with a smile upon his face which quite transfigured it.

And so it was, Madam the mother came indeed with her asthma and her palsy, but it was only to sit in the easiest chair in the warmest corner. A hungry gray cat appeared very mysteriously, which Mrs. Puffer tried at first to drive away, but which Mr. Puffer treated like vice, which, seen too often, is first endured, then pitied, then embraced.

So having found betimes, as many a married pair has found too late, alas! that however difficult union may be, disunion is still more difficult and hazardous, they have jogged up and down so comfortably together, that, to see them now, one would never suspect, as I said at first, they had been of diverse minds upon any subject.

MARRIED BY MISTAKE.

BY AMY RANDOLPH.

"But I tell you, Rosa, I can't wait."

It was no lover's bower, nor silk-draped boudoir—simply a cool kitchen, with cream-tinted walls, white netted curtains stirring to and fro in the afternoon breeze, and a wide chintz-covered lounge placed most invitingly under the clock-shelf, while beyond the open door you caught a glimpse of green meadows bathed in sunshine, and wooded uplands dim with October haze. And Rosa Millet, most unromantic of heroines, was sitting by a pine table, paring apples into a wooden tray that was enthroned on her lap.

Round and dimpled with hair like brown velvet, and soft hazel eyes, she was just that style of female you feel irresistibly impelled to kiss! just the saucy, provoking, winning little personage whose presence makes the daily sunshine of a home. Kent Lorimer knew this very well, and was most resolutely determined to win and wear the little jewel that was sparkling on these Connecticut rocks. So he had come down express from New York to plead his cause with Rosa.

"But you must wait, Mr. Lorimer," said Rosa, taking up a fresh apple and considering demurely where she had best insert the knife into the crimson skin.

"Papa wouldn't listen to the thing for a minute,"

"Have you ever spoken to him on the subject?"

"I ventured one or two obscure hints the other day, and—"

"And what, Rosa?"

"Why he flew into a furious passion, and called me a little goose, and said he never would consent to my marrying, and made me cry and—Don't, Kent—how do you suppose these apples are ever to get pared, if you take hold of my hands in that absurd sort of way?"

"Well then, Rosa, if he won't hear to reason, suppose we just dispense with his assent. Let's be romantic, and make a runaway match of it!"

Kent spoke lightly, but you could see in the quiver of his lip and the restless eagerness of his eye that his whole fate hung on her words.

"What do you say, Rosa, mia?"

She shook her head.

"I never could take such a step as that without my father's consent, Kent."

"Yet you love me?" he asked, somewhat bitterly.

"Oh, Kent, you know that I do!"

COMPANY

WILL be ready to give titles to land and water in a few days. Those having claims and wishing to fence this spring will please let the undersigned know with whom they wish to join lands, and how much water and land they will pay for by the middle of April next.

Those wanting land and wishing to pay in work must apply immediately, as there is but little work to be given out. Fourteen and one-fourth miles of the canal are under contract and will be finished by the middle of April.

Those that have paid towards building the old dam and water ditches and have no title to land and water can have the same by paying up to ten dollars per acre, if paid so as to assist in opening up the present canal.

Those who hold land and pledged last fall to the undersigned that they would pay ten dollars per acre in instalments, the last of which was to be paid by the 1st April, 1865, are hereby requested to fulfil their pledges.
