

SUNDAY SCHOOL A MODEL PLACE.

Rector Houghton Says Children
Should be Brought Up Under Its Influence.

CONFERENCE CLOSES SUNDAY.

Episcopal Gathering Enlivened by an Enjoyable Reception at Bishop
Spaulding's.

The third annual conference of the Seventh missionary district of the Episcopal church continued through today, and will be concluded tomorrow afternoon and evening, as indicated in the programs given below. In the discussion yesterday afternoon, on Sunday school work, the general idea seemed to be that the great factor in achieving success was personality, and there must be with it spiritual life and loving influence. Rector J. H. Houghton of St. Mark's church in Denver held that the Sunday school was the model place in which to bring up children. On this subject he said:

"Can you wonder that a child turns up its nose when the sum of $100,000 is spent on an auditorium and not 50 cents on the basement where is held the Sunday school? Some day the graduates of seminaries will come out as beautifully instructed in Sunday school methods, as in Hebrew or Greek."

LAST NIGHT'S RECEPTION.

In the evening the reception at Bishop Spaulding's residence was largely attended, the bishop being assisted in receiving by his mother and sister. Also assisting in receiving were Mrs. J. B. Eddie, Mrs. Charles E. Perkins, Mrs. D. C. Huntington, Mrs. George F. Wallace, Mrs. Morris L. Ritchie, Mrs. Eugene Lewis, H. T. Cleaver, Miss Mabel Corbin, Miss Sallie Houghton and Miss Clara Colburn.

Following is tomorrow's program:

7:30 a. m., St. Paul's church, Holy communion.

10 a. m., St. Mark's cathedral. Business session, secretary's report, place of next meeting, motions, resolutions, etc.

11 a. m., closed doors. Bishop, clergy, delegates.

SUNDAY'S PROGRAM.

The closing exercises of the conference will be held on Sunday, with the following program:

8 p. m., St. Mark's cathedral. Children's mass meeting. Opening address, Rev. F. S. Spaulding, bishop of Salt Lake.

Address, Rev. M. J. Hersey, missionary to the Indians, United reservation, Story, Rev. J. H. Houghton, Denver, Colo.

Address, Rt. Rev. James B. Funston, D. D., bishop of Boise.

8 p. m., mass meeting in the Salt Lake theater. The Episcopal church in the United States. Her Heritage, Rt. Rev. Wm. F. Nichols, D. D., bishop of California.

Her Faith, Rt. Rev. Wm. H. Moreland, D. D., bishop of Sacramento.

Her Mission, Rt. Rev. James B. Funston, D. D., bishop of Boise.

A Positive Necessity.

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Iodo-Chloroform Liniment. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine for bruises and sprains. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself. D. H. Barnes, Merchant, Davisville, Texas. 50c. Sold by Z. C. M. I. NEW PASTOR INSTALLED.

Rev. McClain Davis Warmly Welcomed to Presbyterian Church.

Rev. McClain Davis was installed last evening, as pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. T. C. Smith of Springfield conducted the services and preached the installation sermon. Rev. D. A. Brown of the First Baptist church offered prayer, the charge to the pastor was made by Rev. Dr. W. H. Paden, and Rev. Dr. S. E. Wishard explained the duties and obligations of the congregation. The new pastor offered the closing prayer.

Dr. Smith in his sermon showed the necessity of faith in Christ as essential to salvation, as indicated in the conversation between Philip and the eunuch. Dr. Paden gave careful reading of Paul's epistles to Timothy, and addressed the doctrine, sobriety in mind, and motions, mixed with common sense and good humor. The Tribune in reporting the above represents Dr. Paden as advising the reading of three epistles to Timothy. However, as the New Testament canon produces only two, the inference is that the third epistle must be concealed somewhere in the Tribune's office, and its production as one of the hitherto undiscovered Pauline epistles supposed to be missing, will be hailed by the literary and antiquarian world with undiluted joy.

In charging the congregation, Dr. Wishard said: "You have promised your pastor proper support, encouragement and obedience in his work. Be glad if you can ever completely repay your pastor for all that he does. Pray for your pastor, and he will pray for you as Paul did for his converts. Attend the services regularly, for I want to tell you from experience that an empty chair is the meanest thing in the world that a pastor ever has to preach to."

After the services there was a general handshaking with the new pastor.

AGAINST GAMBLING.

Sheriff of Owyhee County Determined To Put a Stop to It.

The laws of Idaho against gambling are to be strictly enforced in Owyhee county. Sheriff Dunbar has notified the proprietors of green tables in the cities of Silver and Dalmar that in future their business will be strictly prohibited. The order was unexpected, as the anti-gambling laws had not been enforced in the cities named. The instructions of Sheriff Dunbar, who is determined to put down the evil, were obeyed, and there are no games running in the county.

AMUSEMENTS.

The newer generation of theater goers had a glimpse last night, and a delightful one, of the sort of theatricals that used to be most popular when their fathers and mothers sat in the auditorium of the theater. Olcott combines all the best traditions of the two Emmets and the lamented Scantling, with the suggestion of a charming old "Rosedale," the gentlemanly, the delightful heroine, the abducted child, etc., etc., all figured in a delightful and most refreshing manner. Mr. Olcott is going along in life, there is no gainsaying that, but his voice and manner retain their youthfulness, and he is unapproachable in the way in which he can invest an ordinary subject with enchanting sweetness. He was recalled again and again last night for such gems as "When Song is Sweet," "The Wild Irish Girl," and the "Laughing" and throughout he thoroughly captivated his audience with his high and sweet tenor voice.

Miss Clarendon as the very pretty heroine, fully shared the favor bestowed on the star, and Mr. Julius Melvick, well remembered for his work with Florence Roberts, and "The Honorable Brier Bush," was thoroughly capable in the thankless role of the elder son.

The scenery and costumes were a delight to gaze upon, from beginning to end, while the play, cleverly executed, while the lovely seventh in the bill of the end for playing the game with stacked cards. The woman he tried to win in love was already given to another, and of course the audience was glad when he was run through with the duelling foil at 10:32 p. m. The Mack Swain theater company, which is putting on the play at the Grand, carries a good villain in Phil Larch. His parts have been widely different in the three plays the company has presented, yet to each he has most successfully got himself blessed to the echo. From King Swain, as the daughter of the senator, was the favorite of the crowd, and the play was a success. She of course moved in high Washington society, married a colonel in the cavalry, became lonely because he wrote formal letters, such as he would send to a lieutenant, from his far western station, almost fell in love

FIRST INVADER MEETS HIS FATE

Sad Story of a Beaver's Struggle
Efforts to Adapt Himself
To New Conditions

LEFT SNAKE FOR TWIN FALLS.

There He Was Overwhelmed With
The Change, And With Sick
Thrusts Put to Death.

This is a beaver tale. It is a sad story. It tells of the ignominious finish of a daring old bachelor beaver who, like a great many of the human race, lived in a little world by himself for so long that he failed to keep track of the progress around him and fell an easy victim to modern improvements.

The subject of the story was a sleek, fat old castor who accumulated 40 pounds of adipose tissue while leading an easy life in the Snake river canyon a short distance below the railway crossing at Burley. When the builders of the Minidoka & Southwestern began driving piles for the railway bridge their operations disturbed the old beaver and he decided to seek another home. Rumors of a new river had reached his ears, communicated no doubt by passing muskrats, so he concluded to go west and see if he could not add to his girth after establishing new quarters on the river of which he had heard.

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

The dawn of an April morning found the beaver swimming around above the dam at Milner. He was evidently surprised to find such a formidable obstruction and as it was built on new lines he determined to study the dam carefully before proceeding. Occasionally he would climb up on top of the dam, look down over the lower side and shake his head in wonderment. The waterfowl he saw around him, could he understand the mysterious gates through which the water hissed and boiled. Carefully avoiding the gates of the dam he swam around to the headwaters of the Snake canal. When he reached the headwaters he struck out with confidence, apparently feeling certain he had found the new river of which the muskrats had told him. But he was puzzled over the direction of the stream and the rapidly with which the water flowed perplexed him mightily. Filled with curiosity he plunged beneath the water and dived under the headwaters into the canal beyond.

ESPIED BY WATCHERS.

The watchful eye of the ditch rider spied the beaver as the animal came to the surface and shook his head below the headgates. Immediately there was great excitement. Word was quickly passed around that a beaver had found its way into the canal and was looking for a home. A general alarm was sounded and the canal forces congregated hastily and planned to overcome the enemy. It would never do, said the ditch riders, to let this veteran burrower and canal builder commence business in the canal. If he once got to work he would make all sorts of trouble for the irrigators, hence he must be destroyed or driven to other fields.

Meanwhile the old beaver swam down the ditch looking for a good location. Evidently, thought the castor, this was a very new stream for not a single tree could he find along its banks, nor could he discover any dam sites. In vain the beaver climbed the banks and looked around for trees with which he might satisfy his hunger and build his home. Nothing but sagebrush, with here and there a new frame house, met his eye.

BACK TO THE SNAKE.

Disgusted with the new river, the old beaver headed back for the Snake. At the headgate he saw a group of gestulating men standing on the bank. With a great splash he dived and endeavored to swim below the surface back to the parent stream. The powerful current beat him back and he was unable to make the crossing. Battered and pursuing he came to the surface only to find that the men had armed themselves.

"The fearful work coffee has done for me is difficult to describe. I had no idea of the breaking down effect of Coffee on the nerves."

"When that has gone on long enough, most anything may set in. I had those attacks of pneumonia and became a chronic invalid. I had no idea that coffee had put me in my deplorable condition. Well, I finally went to Colorado on advice, and found a nice place to board with a family. The man of the house had just returned from a journey in California whether he had gone for heart trouble but the doctor told me he discovered he was heart sick, caused by coffee, took it away and gave him Postum. His trouble was quickly dismissed and he came home a well man. He suggested that probably it was coffee affected me. I laughed him to scorn, nevertheless I began gingerly on Postum and found it so rich, and with a nice coffee snap that I liked it immensely."

"From the beginning the Postum Coffee had a beneficial effect on me. I improved in every way, my sleep came back, healthy and refreshing, and in a few weeks I went home a well woman, as I am to this day. I still use Postum of course, and will never return to the old kind."

"Noting the good effects of Postum in my case, and will never return to the given to my 12-year-old daughter, who was very delicate and frequently ill from a complication of diseases connected with the liver. Well, my people tried it, but were disgusted with it, they didn't make it right. They said it was impossible for them to drink it, and my daughter rebelled and cried for the old kind of coffee. When I came home I changed all that by making it right—allowing it to boil for 20 minutes after it first came to a boil, and served it with cream. The child relished it at once, and benefited from the first strength came to her day by day and she began to develop and was enabled to go to school much more regularly."

"It was a year after I began to use Postum before my husband would use it. He preferred to carry a small bottle of pepsin, and every time he drank coffee would take a dose of pepsin to overcome the sour stomach produced by the coffee. He held out for a year, but of course got worse and finally got to feeling so badly that he grew desperate and tried Postum. After the third day he became a convert to Postum and the pepsin bottle went into the ash bin. That was two years ago, and he still uses Postum and is entirely free from the old troubles." soles and were evidently preparing to do him grievous bodily harm. Again he tried to dive under the headgates into the Snake and again was he buffeted back. Summoning all his strength and flung his lungs with air he made a third attempt. This time he managed to get partially under the iron gates, where the current pinned him against the bottom of the first cylinder and held him prisoner. To vain he thrashed the water with his tail to free himself from the iron band above but without avail.

PUT TO DEATH.

Through the clear waters the imprisoned old bachelor could see the men cooing in above him with long sticks and visions of his finish swept over the mind of the veteran. A few thrusts with sticks from above released him and he rose helpless to the surface of the canal where a rap over the head ended his career.

The old beaver weighed 40 pounds and his skin was sleek and firm. His destroyers hated to kill him but he had to be driven from the canal at all hazards. So perished the first invader of the Twin Falls canal system.—Twin Falls News.

CANTATA WELL RENDERED.

"Ruth" Given to an Appreciative Audience Last Night.

The cantata of "Ruth" as given last evening in the Central Christian church, was one of the notable musical events of the season and the local artists who participated acquitted themselves with credit. Considerable care and attention had been given to the cantata, and how to bring out its special features in the most effective and artistic way was the aim of the artists. Mrs. J. W. Christy was the conductor and Miss Pearl Rothchild was the accompanist.

Miss Berkehoel in particular was in fine voice, and her interpretation of the pathetic part of Naomi was vigorously applauded. The other soloists, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Betts and Mr. Squires were at their best, and the chorus work was excellent. Mrs. J. W. Christy was the conductor and Miss Pearl Rothchild was the accompanist.
