

JOE GARCIA SHOT DOWN IN SEATTLE

Sheriff Emery and Washington Officers Put An End to Hybrid.

HE FELL FIRING HIS GUNS.

Criminals Fired Upon Utah Officer, Who Planned Clever Trap—Cruel Betrayed by Old Pal.

The Cordova, alias Garcia, the Mexican-Chinese half-breed, porch climber and murderer, wanted in this city for the brutal murder of Police Officer Charles S. Ford on the morning of Dec. 14, has at last come to the end of his vicious career.

Seattle last evening Garcia walked into a trap laid for him by Sheriff Frank Emery. The desperado saw the sheriff and quickly drew two revolvers. They noticed that he had both hands in his side coat pockets and knew that he gripped the butts of two revolvers.

FIRES ON SHERIFF EMERY.
Sheriff Emery crossed the street, but a passing wagon obstructed the view of Garcia. The instant Emery stepped from behind the wagon, the ever-watchful murderer saw and recognized the Salt Lake officer. He drew his two weapons and fired upon the sheriff. As Garcia drew the weapons, Detective Adams said, "If you pull those guns I'll kill you," but Garcia paid no heed to the warning. Officer Clark fired upon the man, wounding him in the wrist. Garcia then turned upon Officer Adams and the latter fired, the bullet grazing the desperado's breast and crashing through the other wrist. Garcia blazed his right hand, and Detective Holland fired two shots in quick succession. One of the shots struck Garcia under the right arm. He sank to the pavement, bleeding, cursing and in intense pain. He did not lose consciousness, and after arriving at the hospital admitted that he was wanted in Salt Lake for the murder of Officer Ford.

BETRAYED FLEES.
When the shooting began, the man who had betrayed the crook, jumped to one side and dashed down the street as fast as he could run. That Garcia was made plain after the shooting when officers searched his room. Articles stolen from the residence of Rev. S. Moody, 1618 Minor avenue were recovered. The residence was robbed last Sunday night. In a note book found in a valise in Garcia's room were names and addresses of several prominent Seattle people. The officers also found a "Jimmy" and an electric dark lantern.

Sheriff Emery had obtained the officers as to the character of Garcia and they went prepared for desperate and bloody work. They knew Garcia would be well armed and that he would shoot on the slightest provocation. While some of the officers were in waiting on the opposite side of the street, Adams and Clark were not more than 20 feet behind him, both watching him and ready to shoot him down on the slightest show of resistance. When Holland fired the shot that brought the man down, the detective leaped upon Garcia and tore the revolver from his hand. Garcia was armed with one .38-caliber and one .44-caliber revolver.

The shooting was over within a few seconds, but it attracted thousands to the scene, and by the time the police automobiles arrived, the street was a solid mass of curious humanity.

GARCIA'S CAREER IN CRIME:
The fatal shooting of Garcia risks the country of a cunning, cruel and desperate crook. For weeks he roamed about the city at night, robbing residences almost at will and under the noses of police officers. He was an expert porch climber, but did not confine his efforts to that branch of crime alone. He was also a hold-up, safe cracker and all round crook. Among the homes he looted in this city were those of Maj. Millet, 559 South Temple street, J. J. Daly, 212 South Temple street. Stole thousands of dollars worth of jewelry and silverware. Wearing rubber shoes he could climb up a porch with the agility of a monkey. He usually operated while the inmates of a house were at dinner.

Shortly after the release of Joe Sullivan from the Utah state prison after serving a term of five years for burglary, Garcia and Sullivan met. They were joined by John Owens and the three planned to hold up the bartender at the Albany bar. This they did and Sullivan and Garcia were running away when they saw Police Officer Charles S. Ford patrolling his beat. One of the men yelled to the officer to throw up his hands, but before he could make a move, he was shot down and mortally wounded. Sullivan was trucked to Portland and captured there. He was returned to Salt Lake, tried for the murder of Officer Ford, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. Owens was captured here, pleaded guilty to highway robbery and is serving 20 years. Garcia dropped out of sight completely. Officers scoured the country for him, but not a clue as to his whereabouts could they get until a few days ago Sheriff Emery got a "tip" that the fellow was in Seattle. Garcia's father and mother and a brother live in Colorado, and he has a brother in Wyoming.

AMUSEMENTS.
Theater—The advance sale for Lew Dockstader's minstrels which open at the theater tomorrow night for a two-night's engagement indicates that there will be bumper houses. Advance clippings denote that "A Quiet Day at the White House" is distinctly hilarious.

A week with Shakespeare will be the offering at the theater commencing Monday night when Mr. Mantell and his company will open in "King Lear." The revival is under the management of William A. Brady who has long held the reputation for successful productions.

Orpheum—Good business prevails at the State Street home of vaudeville, where a bill headed by the Macarte sisters is the offering.

Grand—The Earl Burgess company opens an extended engagement at the Grand this evening in "The Queen of White Slaves." The company of 20 people arrived from Denver this morning.

Sidelights on The Cadets By the "News" Man at Camp

Special Correspondence.

Camp Robley D. Evans, May 4.—Because the Salt Lake High school cadets have acted like soldiers and gentlemen they have made countless friends. They are welcomed wherever they go and their uniform gives them privileges other organizations do not enjoy. Discipline has been relaxed slightly. For one thing the cadets are allowed in the Presidio canteen, but parents need not worry as orders have been issued cadets are doing duty 12 hours with the same schedule.

Some of the things each day contains are: 5:30 a. m., reveille; 5:45, fall in on parade grounds and roll call; 6, clean up of camp, making of beds and washing; 6:30, breakfast, consisting of boiled eggs, ham, bread and butter and oranges; 7, sick call; 7 to 8, miscellaneous duties; 8, inspection of tents; 8:30, repairing of defects found during inspection. Lunch, as a rule, consists of pork and beans and bread and milk.

CAMP ROBLEY D. EVANS AT PRESIDIO.

The Presidio is cleaned out of candy and other delectable wares and the supply can't be replenished fast enough to keep up with demands from the boys. Hence the order permitting the boys to patronize the soft drink department of the Presidio canteen. Candy peddlers flock to camp, but are forced to stay outside the lines; persons having friends or relatives are allowed in camp. Among the latest Salt Lake visitors were Lindsay Rogers who came from Fresno by automobile, accompanied by his family to see the boys. Dr. Sprague has been another visitor.

Good natured tricks, having no serious consequence or malicious intent are played. The boys are kept busy throughout each day, for when they are not busy in camp there is some trip demanding their attention and energy. Long walks have become a habit and when mess call blows—all work is dropped and the rush is on. The first sergeant of each company gives the signal for the race to begin. Nine races are given for the week. Drinking water is good, but the hardness of the water has had some effect upon some of the boys.

It has been announced that cadets attempting to slip through the lines at night will be put to work under guard, but the behavior of the boys is excellent. Another punishment which will be meted out to breakers of camp law will be sentencing them to serve as kitchen police, washing dishes, etc.

The trio of national guardsmen, Sergt. Foster, Corp. Cowan and Sergt. Campbell are doing good work in keeping the camp clear from unwelcome visitors while the cadets are away.

A special tent has been provided for the entertainment of visiting officers.

Trees surround the camp, and with a cool breeze blowing almost constantly, the boys have been ideal ever since the cadets' arrival.

All tents are provided with board floors and are the new Sibley type, furnished through the commanding officer at the Presidio. From each tent floats an American flag.

Guard duty has been changed and instead of doing duty two hours and then resting four for 24 hours, the cadets are now doing duty for 12 hours.

"THERE'S A REASON"

All Praise In Frisco For Salt Lake's Cadets.

San Francisco was pleased when the cadets of the Salt Lake High school detained for a week's stay in the western metropolis. Correspondents with the cadet battalion have telegraphed the news of the arrival of the boys from Salt Lake and they have said that all San Francisco was "tickled to death" with the snappy, spick and span appearance of the lads. Salt Lake's generally believe that, but just to convince any who may question the point ever so little, the stories of the arrival of the cadets as told in the San Francisco papers are reproduced as "clinchers."

From the Chronicle of Monday's issue the following is taken:

"The Salt Lake High school cadets, nearly 300 strong, upon whom has been conferred the great honor of escorting Admiral Robley Evans in this city, arrived yesterday and pitched camp at the Presidio."

"There is a pretty little story of sentiment in the bringing of these boys all the way from Utah to attend the admiral of the Atlantic fleet. The naval career of Admiral Evans began at just about the age of these lads and in the place from which they come."

"Robley D. Evans was appointed to Annapolis in 1860 from Utah. Capt. William H. Hooper, territorial delegate to Congress at that time, met the little fellow who was to be one of America's greatest men at Washington. He took a liking to Evans, who was at that time 14 years old and when the latter expressed a strong desire to enter the navy, Capt. Hooper took him in charge. Young Evans went to Salt Lake and resided there the required time, and was appointed to Annapolis."

The idea of having these Salt Lake boys form the guard of honor for the admiral was born several weeks ago. Dr. G. P. Proulx, who is greatly interested in the work of the cadets, went to see Admiral Evans a few weeks ago, and the latter said that, above all else, he would like to have the Salt Lake boys form his escort.

"The cadets, rigged in their splendid equipment, and working in formation, are a striking example of what can be done with the American youth. They are all intelligent, good looking and well disciplined youth. The cadet corps was organized in 1902 and forms a part of the training given at the Salt Lake High school, which is attended by 1,200 boys and girls. Every lad entering must serve two years as a cadet, during which time he is drilled in all the phases of army maneuvers."

"The regiment consists of four companies, an excellent band of 32 pieces, and bugle corps of 10. The cadet officers are: Captain William C. Webb, commandant; Captain William K. Tyndale, surgeon; Captain Frank Manning, quartermaster; Captain William J. Grow, commissary; Captain Walter Gaby, adjutant. The captains are: Louis Paddison, Earle Van Cott, Bruce Wedgwood, Spencer Wright. The first lieutenants are: Yale Proulx, Robert Bellemere, Harry Swann and Theodore Wilcker. The second lieutenants are: Raymond Brown, Earl Manning, Fred Slade and Don Lienze. With the cadets is a national guard attachment of seven men."

"Mayor John S. Bransford, Professor George A. Eaton, principal of the Salt Lake High school; Professor Christenson, superintendent of the Salt Lake public schools; Adjutant General of Utah, A. E. Wedgwood, and other prominent men of Salt Lake are also here."

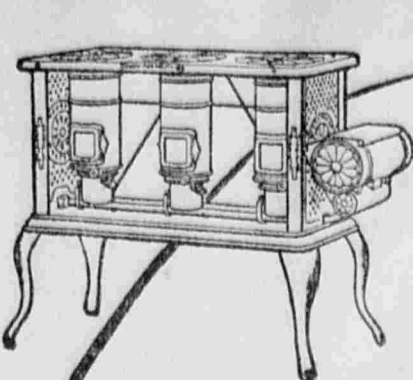

The cadet corps left Salt Lake on Saturday morning in eight special coaches, two of which were attached to baggage cars, where meals were cooked for the boys in true army style on regulation ranges. The contingent was met some distance up the line by Ivyn S. Rankin, an official of the Southern Pacific company, who handed the boys well when they reached the Oakland mole and were transferred to a ferry-boat.

Arriving at the ferry building the corps formed in double column, and with band playing and flags flying, marched up Market street, and out Van Ness avenue to Sutter street, where the boys were taken to the Presidio. Along the line of march crowds gathered and cheered the boys as they went through their evolutions at various points.

"The cadets will give an exhibition of their skill on board the flagship Connecticut and form Admiral Evans' escort in the parade on Thursday. They will be here nine days. The money to bring the boys was raised by subscription."

Hot Stove—Cool Kitchen

How do you expect to endure the broiling days of summer if you prepare all the food over a glowing coal fire?

You need a "New Perfection" Oil Stove that will do the cooking without cooking the cook. It concentrates plenty of heat under the pot and diffuses little or none through the room. Therefore, when working with the of San Francisco, which says in Monday's issue:

"At 4 o'clock came the famous cadet corps from the Salt Lake High school, 300 strong, in full uniform, with their own band and under the command of Captain William C. Webb, a Utah national guardsman and veteran of the Spanish war. With enthusiasm and martial spirit shining in their faces the lads formed ranks as they left the ferry. They were a sturdy lot of youngsters. They came at the special request of the commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, Admiral Evans himself. Their enviable duty it will be to hold the place of honor in next Thursday's great parade as the admiral's body guard and personal escort."

"Some were large and some were small, but the boys departed themselves with the bearing of veterans. Each carried his full accoutrements—rifle, cartridge belt, blankets, haversack and canteen. It was a long walk for lads just off a train from the ferry up Market to Van Ness, thence to Sutter street and the Presidio, where they went into encampment, but there wasn't a stranger in the line."

"Out at the Presidio the boys started at the work of preparing camp as soon as they arrived, and in less than an hour the commissary department was serving a dinner of hot roast beef and other delicacies that had been preparing while the special train in which they came was still far up the Sacramento valley. It was not long after that before the camp was as quiet as the grave, save for the tramp of the guard on his beat. For the boys had seen much yesterday, and in addition had put in a fairly hard afternoon's work."

"The committee that collected the $16,000 fund in Salt Lake came Adjutant General E. A. Wedgwood, head of the National Guard of Utah, Joel Priest, editorial writer on the Salt Lake Herald, and Dr. G. B. Proulx, examining surgeon of the Southern Pacific, who made the arrangements at this end. Mayor J. S. Bransford of Salt Lake and former Mayor Ezra Thompson are also along, together with the wives of some of the members of the party and a few of their friends."

ILLUMINATION FOR U. C. T.

The committee of arrangements for the U. C. T. convention in this city met last night at the Commercial club, where it was planned to decorate the principal streets of the city with over 20,000 incandescent lamps during the nights of the convention. These lamps will extend from the Pioneer monument at the head of Main street, south to below the Federal building, with a branch on west Second South street to the Commercial club building. The bulbs will be in blue, yellow and white, the colors of the U. C. T.

NEW INCORPORATIONS.

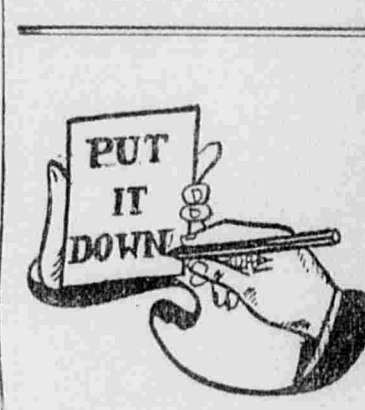

The Inter-Mountain Civil Service schools filed articles of incorporation in the office of the county clerk, Wednesday. The capital stock is $5,000, in shares worth $1, and the officers are as follows: Louis M. Carpenter, president; E. Leary Meacham, vice president; Norton H. Meacham, secretary and treasurer.

The Resort association company filed its articles yesterday with the county clerk. The capital stock of the company is fixed at $2,000, divided into 10 shares. The officers are: A. B. Jr., vice president; Joseph H. Hensel, vice president; secretary and treasurer, Dr. Frank Moormeister, who with Dr. William Meacham and A. E. Edward, constitute the directors.

REMODELING DETENTION HOME

Guardado Brown, chief probation officer of the juvenile court, is busy making arrangements for the fitting up of the old Utah school building in the west side, which has been given by the board of education for a detention home for the juvenile court. Acting under the authority of County Commissioner J. B. Coe, Mr. Brown has visited contractors and invited them to figure on furnishing the home for the use of the court. New windows, new partitions, kitchen, and bed room furniture will be needed, but the place will soon be fixed up and in shape to accommodate some of the children who are in need of a place of detention, but who should not be sent to the industrial school.

Black Ballots

The negro does not vote—in the South. That is the palpable truth, and truth is always interesting.

Southern elections have become almost dull. Unwarlike citizens go to the polls, and their hip pockets are distressingly empty. Nowadays it is legal regulation, and not a shotgun, which is disfranchising the negro.
