

Where the Hoodlums Come From.

The papers have lately been publishing essays about Hoodlums and bewailing the degenerate of the times, which they deem proven by the presence of such an alarming number of young vagabonds in the community. We consider that the so-called leading men of San Francisco, her merchants and capitalists are mainly responsible for the existence of such a class. While professing to favor State industries, their course for the last twenty years has been to discourage them. There are not openings enough for boys; they do not have an opportunity to work and earn an honest living. Enforced idleness is the cause of their vagabond career. The capitalists by maintaining high rates of interest, and the importers by fighting our manufacturing interests, have suppressed home enterprise, and because there are not enough factories and workshops to supply our people with what they need, there is absolutely no opening for a large proportion of the boys of San Francisco. When work is provided for them they will keep out of mischief.—Oakland (Cal.) News.

An English paper congratulates Great Britain upon the return of the Grenadier Band from America without having deserted to the enemy, assassinated General Grant, overturned the Republic, or even got persistently drunk.

A Cincinnati man thought he had got religion, but after calling in a minister and the working Christians of another church, he ascertained that it was only cholera morbus.

When Rachael, the great French tragedienne, saw her sister, who was somewhat stout, dressed for the part of a shepherdess, her comment was: "Sarah, dear, you look like a shepherdess who has just dined on her flock!"

Lokman, the philosopher, was once asked who had given him his first lesson in wisdom: "The blind," he replied, "who do not move a step in advance until they make sure of the ground with their stick."

Howard Glyndon asks a terrible question. She wants to know if any one ever imagined what sort of a sight would be presented by an interior view of the six hundred private rooms of a fashionable watering place hotel half an hour before dinner or a hop.

An undertaker was passing by a fruit stand. No one saw him, as he supposed. He stepped out and patted a large cucumber patronizingly, as if to say: "Good boy, old Cucu. Go for 'em. Steboy. Seize 'em. Gripe 'em."

A good story is told of a clergyman who forgot his notes on Sunday morning, and as it was too late to send for them, he said to his audience by way of apology, that this morning he would have to depend upon the Lord for what he might say, but in the afternoon he would come better prepared.

In England a country villa with eight rooms, gas and water, with an acre of land, besides lawn, gardens, orchard, greenhouses, poultry houses and shade trees, and excellently located, goes a begging for a tenant at a rental of $140 per annum.

A lady writer says if women were as particular in choosing a virtuous husband as men are in selecting a virtuous wife, a moral reformation would soon begin which would be something more than froth and foam. When this reformation commences there will be a stop to marriages for a time at least.—S. F. Figaro.

A lady at Bridgeport, Conn., remained too long on a train to kiss a friend, and trying to get off after it had started, was thrown violently on her face. "If ever I kiss anybody again!" said she, vengefully, as she arose; "any woman, at least," she thoughtfully added.

The St. Louis Globe says:

We are breaking in three new types who have a remarkable talent for knocking the sense out of an article. Gratuitous contributors will please send in manuscript at once, as these midnight butchers take a "fierce delight" in "setting up" contributions.

Put a piece of paper in your mouth, chew it rapidly, and it will stop your nose bleeding; or, placing a small roll of paper or muslin above the front teeth, under the upper lips, and pressing hard on the same will arrest bleeding at the nose, checking the passage of blood through the arteries to the nose.
