A POOR EXCUSE FOR STRIFE.

On the last Sunday in the Old Year Brooklyn's famous pulpit orator preached on the dissensions that exist among Christian sects. Among other reasons for this strife and contention on religious matters he cited "the impossibility of men of different temperaments and dispositions seeing any truth exactly in the same light."

According to this view sustained by a highly popular preacher there can be no real "unity of the faith." If it is impossible for men of different temperaments and dispositions to see alike on any truth, the word of the Lord must be untrue in which he declares that when he builds up Zion his servants shall "see eye to eye;" or else they must be all of the same temperament and disposition.

We have met with a similar statement to Beecher's from many persons, both among the clergy and the laity. But we know that the assertion is incorrect. Are all persons who give exactly the same solution to a problem in Euclid of a similar temperament? Is not five times twenty one hundred in the mind of a man or woman of a bilious, sanguine, nervous or any other temperament, or of hasty, lymphatic, irritable, amiable, violent or placid disposition? Are there not persons of every variety of temperament and disposition who see alike on one river question? Are the bondholding gold supporters all of one temperament and the silver disciples all of another? Are there not a great many truths about which there is no dispute at all but which are universally accepted among enlightened people?

But perhaps it may be said this assertion only applies to "religious truth." Are we to understand, then, that religious truth differs in its nature from any other kind of truth? Are no religious truths capable of demonstration? If any such truth can be clearly proven will not all to whom it is made plain believe it alike, no matter what may be the color of their hair or eyes, their peculiarities of mind or body, their language or nationality?

Jesus made a distinct promise to his immediate disciples that, when he was gone, he would send upon them a spirit which should take of the things of the Father and the Son and show them unto believers, and that it should "guide them into all truth." One of the chief effects of this endowment was to make Christ's followers one, even as He and the Father are one. And that this effect was predicated upon people of different temperaments and dispositions is clearly evident from the history of the Church, and cannot be better illustrated than by the statement of Paul, "For by one spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free, and have been all made to drink into one spirit." And the truth of this is manifest in the latter-day outpouring of the same spirit. People of various conflicting faiths from different countries, with all the varieties of temperament and disposition that exist among the human race, have, by receiving the same gospel and receiving the same spirit, been brought into perfect accord of faith and understanding, in relation to a great number of religious truths. One of the chief objects of placing in the Church apostles and prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers, was to bring all the Saints to the unity of the faith—an impossibility, according to the notion of the Brooklyn preacher and many other divines.

But, it may be asked, do not the Latter-day Saints and did not the former-day saints differ in regard to some points of doctrine and some rules of Church polity? Certainly. But this question relates to the possibility of different kinds of persons seeing alike at all. It is not to be expected that people of the same temperament will see alike until their minds are equally enlightened. People cannot be brought to the unity of the faith except by enlightenment. The mind must be made to perceive the truth, the judgment must be convinced, and those truths that pertain to the higher spheres can only be impressed upon the spiritual faculties of man by the aid of divine light. No dictum of man or Deity can alone bring unity of belief. Men may fulminate decrees, and seek by the imposition of pains and penalties to force assent to certain propositions; but, like Galileo, though their victims may yield apparently, their minds will remain uninfluenced and unconvinced, and conviction can only come by light.

Reflection, thought, explanation and freedom of discussion tend to unite men's minds on the truth. Authoritative promulgation of divine commands, when properly conducted, is always accompanied by the influence of the spirit of truth, and those who hear without prejudice become convinced by the reasoning of the preacher and the light of the spirit.

Beecher's plea is a poor excuse for the dissensions of modern Christendom. They spring from people's notions enunciated by unlearned pulpit orators, blind leaders of the blind, who will not receive the spirit of truth in God's way, nor permit their hearers to receive it, but make merchandise of the souls of men, and profit by the business of sect-making.

The work of human enlightenment has to be carried forward until all people of every tribe, tongue and temperament hear the gospel and receive it in its purity, and are led by the Spirit of God to see eye to eye, because they are all in Christ Jesus. Those who receive it will have the same mind as is in Him in relation to it. Those who wilfully close their eyes and ears and spiritual nature against it, and they who become convinced of its truth and refuse to act upon their convictions will lose the great reward which the reception of truth as a guide to action always brings, and the unspeakable glory that is its result in the endless future. But there will be a period when all the offspring of Adam except a few who are so vile in nature that they must remain "filthy still," will come to see the truth in the same light so far as to bow the knee and "confess that Jesus is the Christ to the glory of God the Father."

Honor to the Dead King of Italy.

NEW YORK, 12.—The Herald's London special says, about the king of Italy, that twenty battalions of infantry, with a corresponding force of cavalry and artillery, have been ordered to Rome to take part in the burial ceremony, and give the dead king the customary military honors. Parliament has voted 10,000 000 francs to defray the expenses of erecting a handsome mausoleum in the Pantheon at Rome, to commemorate the glorious life and brilliant services of the deceased. The best artistic skill in Italy will be secured for the work. Princes Napoleon, who is married to the Princess Clothilde, daughter of Victor Emanuel, has arrived in Rome, and the queen of Portugal, another daughter of the dead king, is expected momentarily. The German and Austrian imperial princes will testify their respect for the deceased by attending the funeral in person.

The Utah District-Attorneyship.

The Times' Washington special says that it is decided that the District Attorney for the Territory of Utah shall be appointed from the State of Michigan. Several applicants are urging their claims to the office, and among them is mentioned the name of Geo. C. Bates, who formerly held the office, and who desires to be again appointed.

Edmunds' Letter to Hayes.

The Herald's Washington special says: The administration republicans are delighted with Edmunds' letter to the President on the senatorial patronage, because they believe they see in it evidence that Edmunds will be hereafter the administration leader in the Senate. If this should prove to be a fact, the President would certainly have scored heavily against his opponents. It is understood the letter was the result of several conversations with the President, in which the civil service views of Hayes were thoroughly discussed.

Drowned.

News comes from Weldon, N. C., that J. L. Brower, a colporteur, and a negro attendant, were drowned, yesterday, by the sinking of their boat while crossing the Roanoke River during the freshet. Two boxes of Bibles were saved.

Excitement Running High.

The Herald's London special says: Agitation here grows greater every hour. The utter hopelessness of the cause of the Turks was, yesterday, for the first time, fully comprehended by the English people. Deluded by false representations, and madly fond of Turkey, the great mass of the British people have hoped that Providence would step in to save their old ally. Cold weather has killed more Turks than Russians, and the Cossacks, under the dashing Gourko, are rushing savagely through Roumelia, seeking almost in vain for a Turkish general or commander, through whom an armistice might be arranged.

The Texas Pacific Scheme.

The Sun's Washington special says: The friends of the Texas Pacific Railroad profess to be very confident of their ability to pass Stephen's bill or some other one embodying its main features. They claim 135 votes in the House, but it is certain that they cannot count one more than half that number. It seems impossible to harmonize the southern interests under any bill for the benefit of Col. Scott. The friends of the branches cut off by Scott's bill are rising in arms against him. The dissatisfaction at Memphis has taken the shape of a new bill providing for a line from Memphis to Jefferson, over the Memphis International and Lake City road, thence by the International and Great Northern to San Antonio, and thence to meeting with the Southern Pacific at El Paso, by the extension of Pierces, Galveston, Houston, and San Antonio road. This scheme asks for an aggregate subsidy of $13,000,000, to be repaid by postal and military transportation. It has no chance of success, but it will probably draw well on the strength of the Texas Pacific.

Off the Track.

LOUISVILLE, 12. — The Courier Journal has information of a serious railroad accident on the Northwestern road, in Tennessee, near Waverly station, yesterday. The entire train, one sleeper, two coaches, and a smoking car, was thrown off the track. All the passengers were considerably bruised but none were killed.

Bank Burned.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., 12. — The Conway National Bank, at Conway, was burned last night. It is supposed the bank's valuables are safe.

Senators and Representatives in Better Temper.

CHICAGO, 12.—The Tribune's Washington special says: From a careful canvass of the opinions of the Republican members of both houses since their return, it is believed the following statement faithfully exhibits the present political situation: Senators and Representatives generally have returned in a much better frame of mind and temper. Recess has done a great good, removed from the scene of passion. Congressmen have found the people are not concerned as to who shall hold the petty offices, and that those offices are themselves trifles compared with the great questions of the fixture of the party and country. The Senators, especially, seem impressed with this view. Some of the most prominent among them declare they will have no quarrel with the President and that they desire unity. The same is true of the President. He has also had an opportunity for self reflection, and it can be stated, on the best authority, that he desires, and will have no controversy with the Senate or Congress.

The 16th Amendment.

The Senate Committee on privileges and elections agreed to meet on Tuesday next to consider, in connection with the arguments presented, the proposed 16th amendment to the Constitution offered in the Senate by Sargent on Thursday last.

Robbery.

The Senate patent committee room was robbed, early this morning, by three well known thieves, two of whom were arrested, the third made his escape.

The Fall of Schipka—Disastrous Effect upon England—Adrianople in Danger.

The Times' London special says: The defeat of the Turks at Schipka has had a disastrous effect upon England. The situation has become not only far more serious for Turkey but for England also. There is a general feeling that the present situation makes the position of England far more critical than heretofore. Adrianople now lies open to the Russians. They are now within eight miles of its defenses. There remains nothing for the Turkish commander except to transport as many of his troops as possible to Adrianople. His main lines of retreat are already severed. He can only reach Adrianople by a devious way. Even at this point no effective resistance is possible. General Gourka will follow the retreating forces with a column of not less than 50,000 men, and not less than 75,000 men will advance southward from the Schipka pass to intercept the retreat of the Ottoman forces. At the very most, even if troops from Samova succeed in gaining Adrianople, there will be gathered for the defence of that place not more than 80,000 Turks. That they will reach that point is, however, extremely doubtful, for not only are the Russians 50 miles nearer Adrianople than the Turks, but they are within the shortest distance of the nearest point on the railway, and their cavalry, it is reported, have already cut communications between these two points. There is much excitement in England over the situation. It is thought two days will settle the question. It is said by a leading Turkophile organ, that if Russia wishes peace she will agree to an armistice, for she can obtain from Turkey now all she can expect to take, until she has conquered England. If she break off communications and march forward, we may be sure that her aims are Constantinople and Gallipoli. The prevalent fear is that now Russia, having gained this supreme advantage, may, in her arrogance, exact impossible terms. In truth, there has been more uneasiness in England within the last 48 hours than during any previous period. The great fear is that Russia, imperilled by her late successes, may take some steps which will force England into the conflict as an antagonist of the Muscovite.

The Times' Bucharest special says: Frost has broken up in Bulgaria, and at least two weeks must elapse before the river can be cleared of floating ice and the bridges reconstructed. The difficulties of communication are thus greatly increased. About Adrianople is a rich and fertile country, which will possibly will sustain the advancing Russian forces, and therefore no great difficulty may, for the present, be anticipated with reference to supplies.

FOREIGN.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Eastern War News.

LONDON, 12.—A Bucharest dispatch reports that six small steamers commenced plying between Simnitza and Sistova, on Thursday.

A Bucharest correspondent says contradictory reports, in regard to the conditions of an armistice, continue.

The Russians have probably not yet made any proposal, but all the reports current point to severe conditions.

A rumor is in circulation in Berlin that the Russians demand the evacuation of the Danube fortresses and the withdrawal of the Turks to a line of demarcation between Adrianople and Philippolis.

It is rumored that the Grand Duke Nicholas has demanded the surrender of Adrianople as a first condition.

No great confidence in the conclusion of an armistice is felt at Bucharest unless the matter is conducted entirely by Russian diplomatists, to the virtual exclusion of a military element.

A telegram from Vienna also says: According to my trustworthy information, the whole Russian army feels the hardness, almost injustice of an armistice proposal coming just when the final triumph is in view. My informant, who knows the feeling at headquarters, says there is a strong disposition to prevent, or at any rate delay, the armistice as long as possible.

Constantinople dispatches say that fugitives are flocking there from Philippopolis and Adrianople. Three crowded trains arrived, on Wednesday, and three on Thursday.

The Turks burned the town of Ichtiman, and intend to burn Tatar Bagardsik and other towns in the Topotulitza and Gyopsa valleys.

Ex Queen Isabella.

A Paris correspondent telegraphs that ex-Queen Isabella, who it was stated would not be permitted to return to Spain on account of her action in connection with the expulsion from France of Don Carlos, insists upon attending the marriage of King Alfonso, her son, and the Spanish ambassador at Paris is compelled to resort to numberless petty peculations and strategems to prevent her from carrying out her intention. The marriage of King Alfonso and Princess Mercedes is now fixed for the 2d of February.

Fell Dead.

William Cobbett, well known for the strenuous efforts he made in behalf of the Tichborne claimant, fell dead this morning. He was the son of William Cobbett, the celebrated English radical politician and writer, who died in 1835.

GENEALOGICAL.

To Latter-day Saints who are interested in Genealogical Matters:

By and with the consent of the proper authorities, I have concluded to go to the Eastern States during the present winter, to obtain the genealogies of such Saints as come from there who might desire to employ me. During my recent mission to these parts I acquainted myself with facilities that will enable me to procure genealogies with a fair degree of correctness, and in procuring those of a number of families at the same time, the expense will be but a very small portion of what it would cost to each family separately. This is a rare opportunity for the Saints from New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania or Delaware, or Saints whose ancestors were natives of those States, to procure genealogies at a small cost. A circular, stating terms, will be sent on application.

IMPORTANT LETTER

From a Distinguished Physician.

NO single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, the hearing, the human voice, the mind, one or more and sometimes all yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust constitution. Ignorant of its nature, not understood by most physicians, impotently assailed by specifics and nostrums, it has, until now, from the first, little hope to be relieved of it in the case of the sufferer. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease be placed within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method of cure by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won my hearty approval. I believe it likely to succeed when all the usual remedies fail, because it strikes at the root of the disease, cleansing the blood, while it heals the ulcerated membrane by direct application to the nasal passages. Inasmuch as it is based on certain fixed principles, when used in the manner directed, it can be trusted, most, in the great majority of cases, effect a cure.

GEO. BEARD, M. D.,

HOSKOTT BLOCK, 50. FRANKLINSAN, Oct. 1, 1874.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

MAY safely claim to be one of the few popular remedies recommending the approval of the medical profession, who, after having fairly tested it, not use it in their families in preference to any of the preparations usually prescribed by them.

"You are aware," said a distinguished city physician, "that I never resort to the use of Medicines. Nevertheless I cannot publicly recommend or prescribe your Radical Cure (Sanford's) because I received such relief from the use of it myself, after a thorough trial of the usual remedies, I have privately advised its use, and presume I have sent to Dr. Sanford's more than one hundred of my patients for it."

UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION.

GENTLEMEN,—We have sold SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for nearly one year, and can say candidly that we never sold a similar preparation that gave such universal satisfaction. We have to [illegible] the first complaint yet.

In this respect our Plaster is the best in use without the aid of electricity.
