ALL WHITE FOR WINTER WEAR.

Cold weather does not interfere in the least with plans of the mother for dressing her little daughter in all white. Of course, the little maid's dresses are of heavier materials than for the summer-time—heavy piques, madras, mohairs and henriettes, all of which come in white or cream, which afford quite sufficient warmth over the winter flannels. And when she goes out she dons her coat of some one of the new fur fabrics which are equally as attractive as the natural pelts and far less expensive. This little coat of a material which looks very much like the fleecy wool of the lamb is loose and straight from shoulder to hem, double-breasted with a rolling collar, which turns up warmly about the ears, and a very dressy effect is given by the white gros grain silk cape and cuffs, the edges of which are applied with motifs in a fern pattern. The hat is a big soft white felt with an underfacing of white and a delicate blue striped silk, white satin ribbon banding the crown and ending in a many looped bow in the front.

CREAM REFINING ROOM

This firm is the largest manufacturer of butter, and their factory, in this city, is the best equipped west of the Rocky Mountains. They ship cream to this city from a radius of 250 miles, purchasing milk and cream in nearly every county in the state and the southern part of Idaho.

In addition to their churning plant here, they own or control the creameries and skimming stations, located at the following places: Smithfield, Newton, Honeyville, Far West, Kayesville, Oakley, and Sigurd. They also purchase the entire output in cream from many other creameries in the state. They buy the product from about 10,000 cows.

This firm is the only one in the state which makes sufficient butter to be able to ship fresh butter in carload shipments. They have shipped out of the state, this year, eight carloads in carload shipments and many thousand pounds in shipments less than carloads. Their trademarks, Hazelnut and Eureka, are familiar to nearly everybody in the state. While their butter business is the principal part of their business, they are the largest dealers in the state, in sweet cream, also in creamery machinery and supplies, and among the largest in cheese, eggs and sweet milk. Their make of butter for the year has been over a million pounds.

They have in their employ a Wisconsin cheese maker and the product he has made has pleased everyone who has tasted it. In addition to the full cream cheese, made in various packages, they also manufacture brick cheese, and cream-surger cheese. During the coming season will make camembert and other soft cheeses.

The sanitary milk department is of importance to the people of this city. It has been established a few months and retail routes are in the process of formation. In the course of a few months they will be able to supply the retail trade in any part of the city with pasteurized milk in jars.

This has been their second year in the egg business and during the present year they have handled about eight thousand cases, which would be about twenty carloads.
