SYSONBY IS KING OF RACE HORSES

Expert Judges Pronounce Him the Greatest Thoroughbred In History.

DYER'S HINDOO IS SECOND.

Qualities That Go to Make up Greatness in Racers is Decidedly Elusive.

Sysonby—A. Belmont, A. Daingerfield, J. W. Gates, Foxhall Keene, F. C. McLewee, A. H. Morris, J. L. McGinnis, J. Rowe, T. Welch.
Hindoo—L. O. Appleby, P. J. Dwyer, "Davy" Johnson, A. J. Joyner, H. Stull.
Hamburg—J. E. Madden, W. L. Powers.
Luke Blackburn—J. J. Dwyer, D. Gideon.
Salvator—J. B. Higgin, M. Byrnes.
Henry of Navarre—W. S. Vosburgh.
Tammany—E. Garrison.
Longfellow—W. Lakeland.
Foie—F. Gebbard.
Ort Wells—J. A. Drake.
Tom Bowling—F. Clarke.
Alcedo—J. H. McCormick.
Kingfisher—J. Pincus.

Keenan—J. J. Hyland.

Which is the greatest horse the running turf has produced? As well expect unanimity on the beauty of women, the greatness of a painting or the choice of a flower, for the qualities that go to make up greatness in a race horse are as elusive of a standard as are these.

It must be a source of unending discussion to the lovers of the thoroughbred, and perhaps this is as it should be, for what else brings out so strongly the affection for the animal as an exciting discussion over his good and bad qualities?

In such a symposium there is the ever present danger that the proximity of some hero of the track may blind his followers to the merits of those that have gone before him. This is especially true in the case in point, since it is only recently that America lost a horse that many pronounce the greatest of his race. Yet each man insists that in making an expression of opinion he was actuated solely by the horse and his performances, tempered perhaps in the most natural manner by personal affection, unconscious, maybe, but none the less potent. Most of those asked to express a choice found it difficult not to present a plurality of choices as to the first question, affection for dead and gone horses biasing their judgment, but there is a striking clearness in the vote by which the immortal Sysonby is crowned king. Of the 33 men whose opinions were asked, no fewer than 10 are registered for the ill-fated son of Melton-Optime, whose recent death his owner, James R. Keene, took so much to heart.

Hindoo comes second in the estimation of these judges. And then they are divided in their choice for their position between Hamburg, Luke Blackburn and Salvator. Henry of Navarre, that mighty son of the Knight of Ellersile, has but a single champion, but he speaks in a strong voice and sounds a note of authority. Walter S. Vosburgh, for 16 years the Jockey club's official handicapper, surely has had great opportunity for observation, and his judgment must necessarily carry weight.

There is no point too insignificant for attention in the consideration of the claims put forward by the champions of the different horses. All things must be considered, and that horse which comes nearest to answering all the requirements must be acclaimed as best. Speed, endurance, conformation, soundness, temper, ease in handling and gameness are a few of the major qualifications which each candidate must pass. Lack in any one is a bar.

So then, Domino, which in the opinion of thousands, was the best horse the country ever knew up to seven-eighths of a mile, must be dropped from the calculations. Like Kinley Mack, whose heels were bad; Gold Heels, whose feet were off, and others, Domino was a great horse, but——

Few of the judges throw back to the early days. Surely this is justifiable through the application of scientific methods to the breeding industry. The horses of two generations ago had no right to be as good as their offspring—as well ask the hardy western pioneer to be as learned as his college-bred son.

AUTO STATISTICS.

World's Record Non-Stop Car Made In January.

Some statistics of a kind that are generally unthought of by the average motorist have been figured out by the owner of a 1907 Thomas Flyer who was, apparently, enthusiastic enough over the world's record non-stop car of that make during January to put in several hours in compiling some interesting information, and then forwarded the result of his research to the Thomas factory at Buffalo.

"The actual non-stop run of the car," he writes, "was for 21 days, 3 hours and 29 minutes, which would make the time in minutes 30,449. I saw the car during the New York automobile show and was present when it continued the run by starting overland to Chicago and estimate that it ran at the average rate of 800 revolutions per minute during the entire time, which would give it a record of 24,359,200 revolutions. I took enough interest in the matter to confirm this estimate of the average number of revolutions per minute by inquiring of employes at the garage of Harry S. Houpt, where supplies were taken on board, and of others who were familiar with the circumstances of the run. The stroke of the motor was 5½ inches which would make the total distance traveled by each connecting rod 11 inches for each revolution, or a total of 267,951,200 inches, which, reduced, is 22,329,266.6 feet or 4,229.03 miles. This gives the total distance up and down traveled by the four connecting rods the stupendous mileage of over 16,916.12, considerably more than half way around the world and that without a mechanical adjustment of any kind."

TOD SLOAN'S INCOME.

Former Premier Jockey Has But $50 Per Week at Present.

J. Todhunter Sloan, once the premier jockey of the racing world, associate of princes and as much at ease among European nobles and American notables as in a feather-weight saddle, who, beginning at New Orleans in 1889, rode from oblivion into an annual income of $100,000 or more—the greatest income ever pocketed by a jockey—for some time has been broken in purse and spirit and today he is thankful for a $50 weekly stipend, says an eastern paper.

When, a short time ago, this once peerless jockey admitted on oath that his income was barely $50 a week, and that furthermore he was really many thousand dollars poorer than Job, in the eyes of the law, the reading and racing publics of two continents were surprised—astonished.

Though hardly big enough for the average man to change his mind in, the diminutive office was big enough for J. Tod Sloan who, on his own smiling admission, is as little as ever, if not so loud.

His scanty 59 inches and 99 pounds—the scales say so—were oddly contrasted by a cigar of full voting size and strength. His face, under carefully cropped and carefully parted dark hair, was drawn and corrugated, without having entirely lost the power of smiling.

Other than a plain gold ring, no flare or twinkle of jewelry was revealed between the left-over scarf and the diminutive shoes. There was a tersity to his grip, on shaking hands, that confirmed his claim to an unimpaired ability in piloting the iron jawed thoroughbred. Otherwise little about the Tod Sloan of today suggests the throneless jockey king.

ENGLISH FIGHTERS SHORT ON CALIBER.

The performance of English boxers in the United States and the easy victories of Jack O'Brien had on his various trips to the mother country indicate that the best boxer in Britain is no match for our third class men.

Casual observers of the game, who do not follow it closely enough to understand the inside moves, are constantly asking the question:

"Where are the good English heavyweights of other days? Have the Americans grown better or the Englishmen gone back?"

The Americans have grown better, far better. Undoubtedly, the Britons have retrograded, but at the bottom of the matter is the extraordinary advance made by Uncle Sam's fighters.

Spurred by the immense financial returns, boxers on this side of the big water have studied closely the methods of every good man who came into prominence.

John L. Sullivan's death-dealing smash to the jaw with the right, Jim Corbett's marvelous agility on his feet, Bob Fitzsimmons' understanding of the art of knocking out a man with an eight-inch punch in the stomach, Tommy Ryan's inimitable generalship, Jack O'Brien's wonderful left jab. Attell's skill at dodging, Battling Nelson's incessant boring in, Joe Gans' genius at hitting straight and Jim Jeffries' understanding of how to get all his vast strength in every punch—these are all finer points of the boxing game that Americans have had a chance to study from the best models.

Each young boxer inspects these varied styles much as a student at college might debate gravely which course of instruction promised most for his future, picks out the one best suited to him, seeks eagerly the chance to box with men who know more than he does and never overlooks an opportunity to master some new trick.

In a short time even the mediocre boxer has mastered the game. The English pugilists only learn it partly, and save in the exceptional cases of men like Bowker or Spike Robson make a ludicrous showing with American antagonists.

Englishmen will have to get down to the rudiments before they can expect to show.

ELEVENTH MARATHON.

Thomas Longboat, Famous Canadian, Captured Great Event.

Boston, April 19.—Thomas Longboat, of the West End Y. M. C. A., Toronto, Ont., today won the eleventh annual Marathon race of the Boston Athletic association, in 2 hours 24 minutes 24-5 second, breaking the record for the twenty-five-mile course by 5 minutes 2½ seconds, made by J. J. Caffrey, of Hamilton, Ont., in 1901.

Robert Fowler, of Cambridgeport, who came in second also beat Caffrey's record covering the distance in 2 hours 27 minutes 54 4-5 seconds. J. J. Hays, of New York, was third.

Today's race was the greatest in point of the number of contestants in the history of the event. The entry list contained the names of twelve long distance runners from all sections of New England and New York state and Canada. The day was chilly and the roads were covered with dust.

The chief interest centered in Longboat, the Indian runner, who was a favorite. Among the other notable contestants were Fred Lorz, Michael Spring and Samuel Mellor, of New York, all former winners of this event; T. J. Hicks, of Cambridge, winner of the St. Louis Marathon, and Robert Fowler, of Cambridge, who has won two Marathons.

The men got away in a bunch, a mile from the village of Ashland, at noon.

The first mile was covered by ten of the leaders in four minutes.

The first five miles were covered in the time two minutes behind the record, Fred Lorz, the 1905 winner, passing at 12:22. Fifty yards behind were La Barre, of Hamilton, Carr of New York, Longboat and several others bunched.

FINAL RACE TONIGHT.

State Championship Will be Decided—Much Interest in Contest.

This evening the state championship for one mile race on roller skates will be decided when the final of a series of four races will take place at the Auditorium. Quite a field of fast sprinters are entered in the race. And it promises to be an interesting and exciting event. The race will be 16 laps, one mile and the winner will have to go some to carry off the prize and championship title. Charley Wilkinson, present champion, is the favorite, and he is confident of winning this evening's race.

OUTFIELD STARS OF THE COUNTRY

Jimmy McAleer Tells of Players Who Are Well Known.

BURKETT MOST VALUABLE.

Willie Keller is Another One of Outfield Kings—Great Bunter and Base Runner.

"Jesse Burkett is the most valuable outfielder that ever played in major league baseball," says Jimmy McAleer, "Burkett couldn't catch a fly ball when he joined the Cleveland club in 1892, but he knew how to clout the leather and was willing and anxious to learn the fielding game.

"He worked alongside of me, and no youngster ever practised more conscientiously. He finally polished up and became a fairly good outfielder, but of course his hitting, base running and run-getting abilities were his chief assets. Burkett could be relied upon to get to first on an average of three times per game. He was always on the bags when we needed a run, and you know that counts for much.

"When Jess was in his prime he was the best bunter that ever stepped up to the plate. He could lay 'em down beautifully, and was as fast as a deer getting down to first. I never saw his equal in this department of baseball. All things considered, I think my estimation of Burkett none too high."

McAleer's remarks recall the fact that some of the greatest outfielders that ever played baseball have worn a St. Louis uniform at one stage or other of their baseball careers. Curt Welch, the great outfielder of twenty years ago, played center field for Comiskey's champion St. Louis Browns. Welch was a wonderful fly chaser, but weak with the willow. He practically played the whole outfield for Comiskey's great St. Louis team.

"Tip" O'Neill, the left fielder of the club, was carried for hit hitting. "Commy" used Foutz and Caruthers, his heavy-hitting pitchers, in right field. Besides taking care of center field, Welch would go to right and left for hard line shots and long hits to the outfield that had to be fielded home to catch runners. Welch had an arm of steel, and could throw like a rifle shot. He was a daring base-runner and would stop a pitched ball with some portion of his anatomy, if necessary, to get to first base in a crisis.

TOMMY McCARTHY A STAR.

Welsh played the whole St. Louis outfield for Comiskey until Tommy McCarthy made his appearance in the game. McCarthy developed into one of the most brilliant outfielders of his day. He played right field for St. Louis, and finished up his baseball career with the champion Boston National league team. McCarthy was a faster man than Welch, and became the best base runner of his time.

"Dickey" Johnston of Boston, Jim Fogarty of Philadelphia, George Gore of Chicago and New York and Ned Hanlon of Detroit were the other star outfielders of twenty years ago. George Gore was probably the best hitter of the bunch, and Johnston was the best outfielder, although many considered Fogarty without a peer as a fielder.

Bill Lange of the Chicago team was one of the best hitting outfielders of ten or twelve years ago. Hugh Duffy was in his prime then, and had few equals as an outfielder or hitter. He was probably a better man than Lange.

Ed Delehanty and Burkett broke into fast company together. Delehanty was the greatest hitter of his time, but, like Burkett, he was never much of an outfielder. McAleer says the first time he saw Larry Lajoie play the big Frenchman was covering center field for the Philadelphia National league club.

"Cuppy was pitching for us at the time," said Jimmy, "and the whole Cleveland team gave George a terrific roasting for letting Lajoie get two three-baggers off his delivery. Lajoie could line 'em out then as well as he can now, but we all thought he was a 'morning glory' and would soon 'shoot his bolt.' About two weeks later Cuppy called my attention to the fact that Lajoie had been rapping out two or three hits per game ever since we played against him in Philadelphia, with the same regularity that a clock ticks. Cuppy chuckled when he mentioned the matter, and, of course, he was subjected to no more 'joshing' for allowing the green youngster, Lajoie, to sting him for two triples in one game."

STONE'S GREAT WORK.

George Stone is the third St. Louis left fielder to distinguish himself with the stick. "Tip" O'Neill was the premier slugger of the American association when he played left field for the St. Louis Browns twenty years ago and Jess Burkett was one of the greatest batsmen in the game when he went to St. Louis with Pat Tebeau's Cleveland Spiders.

Stone is one of the most valuable outfielders in baseball today. George was only a fair flychaser when McAleer landed him two years ago. Jim saw the youngster's defects and practised with him in the outfield until George developed into a very fair man. Stone now covers left as acceptably as any man in the business, with the exception of Jimmy Sheckard of the champion Chicago Cubs, who is one of the kings of the outfield.

No story about outfielders would be complete without reference to Willie Keeler, the midget right fielder of the New York Americans, who has been one of the outfield kings for many years. Keeler made his mark with the champion Baltimore Orioles. He is one of the greatest right fielders that ever covered the garden and has no superior as a bunter and base runner. Keeler is a model ballplayer, always in good condition and seldom misses a game. This was one of Jess Burkett's strong points, according to McAller, who says the "Crab," as Burkett was called, was never out of the game.

NO SETTLEMENT YET.

Managers Could Not Agree in Matter Of Pitcher McCloskey.

No agreement was reached at the meeting of managers of the ball teams composing the High School league with reference to the dispute which has arisen over Pitcher McCloskey of the L. D. S. U. team, and the matter has gone over to another meeting which will be held on Monday next. The High School manager protested against the playing of McCloskey but the L. D. S. U. boys claimed that he was a student and was eligible. It is quite probable that he will be withdrawn.

LAVE CROSS THE RICHEST BALL PLAYER.

Lave Cross of the Washington team is claimed to be one of the wealthiest men in baseball. He acquired his riches through his extreme carefulness in money matters, for when it comes to financial affairs Lave is a wise old owl and is not investing any of his diamond dust in south sea bubble schemes. Neither is he a hot rag about financing seagoing outfits who think to discover some of the treasures hidden by our esteemed countryman, the late and lamented Captain Kid. His advice in money matters is often asked by the other players, and were it religiously followed out many a spike shoe lad of today would have the meal ticket wherewithal in the sere and yellow days to come.

Last summer the ever-popular Charley Hickman said to Cross: "Say, Lave, I have a little money I wish to put by. Where, in your opinion, is the safest—the very safest—place to put it?"

"The safest place I know, Charley," replied Lave, "is a safe deposit vault".

Head Ache Sometimes?

If so, it will interest you to know that it can be stopped with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills; and without any bad after-effects, and this without danger of forming a drug habit or having your stomach disarranged. They positively contain no opium, morphine, cocaine, chloral, ether or chloroform in any form. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain, and leave only a sense of relief. The reason for this is explained by the fact that headache comes from tired, irritable, turbulent, over-taxed brain nerves. Anti-Pain Pills soothe and strengthen these nerves, thus removing the cause. They are harmless when taken as directed.

"We use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for the cure of headache, and we think that there is nothing that will equal them. They will cure the severest spell of nervous or sick headache in a very few minutes. I am of a nervous temperament, and occasionally have spells when my nerves seem to be completely exhausted, and I tremble so I can scarcely contain myself. At these times I always take the Anti-Pain Pills, and they quiet me right away. It is remarkable what a soothing effect they have upon the nerves."

Lost Vigor Restored

We treat MEN only and our experience in the past assures our patients straightforward and satisfactory treatment for the future. Many a MAN has lost his grip through brooding over his condition because he imagines he cannot be cured. To such we say investigate our methods of treatment and place yourself under our care and your weakness will disappear and confidence will be restored for the future. Our treatment has proved to be the best yet devised for restoring LOST VIGOR and that physical and mental incapacity which has made a wreck of so many. Our treatment for NERVOUS DEBILITY does not stimulate temporarily but permanently. It stops every drain of VIGOR and builds up the muscular and nervous system—revives the spirits—brightens the intellect and above all restores the WASTED POWERS. Sometimes organic weakness and LOSS OF VIRILITY arises from VARICOCELE and STRICTURE in such case we have to get rid of the cause before we can obtain good effects. Too often these causes are overlooked and so in spite of any and every treatment the case does not progress and the patient often goes into physical and mental decline through want of success in curing his LOST VIGOR.
We take no case we cannot benefit or cure so you run no risks.

What Pulliam and Ban Johnson Say,

H. C. PULLIAM.
President National League.

I am firmly convinced the National league will win back the world's honors and that the winning team in our organization will repeat the decisive victory of the Giants over the Philadelphia Americans in 1905. I look for a closer race for the pennant than the league has had for several years.

All indications point to a wonderfully successful season, not only for the National league, but for the baseball in general. I think every league in the country will enjoy a year of unqualified success, both financially and artistically.

I do not think the Chicago Cubs will make such a runaway race as they did last year. Several of the weaker clubs have been greatly strengthened and promise to make a lively fight for the flag.

The good showing made by the Philadelphia and St. Louis National league teams in their spring series with American league clubs makes me confident our organization will make a great fight to win back the world's baseball laurels.

B. B. JOHNSON,
President American League.

The American league was never in a better or more prosperous condition in its history than it is now. The winning of the world's championship by the White Sox was the climax last year to the most successful season our league has ever known. I firmly believe the American league will win the championship of the world at the end of this season.

The race for the pennant and the right to meet the champions of the National league in the great series for the world's honor promises to be the most hotly contested struggle in our history. No team can be safely counted out of the great race, as every one is strong enough to hold its own. The second division teams have been strengthened more than those which finished in the first squad, and therefore the contest will be closer.

Every city in the circuit reports great interest in the coming struggle, and I think all American league records will be broken during the season of 1907.
