THE OKLAHOMA MARAUDERS. ANOTHER VETERAN DEPARTED.

EXECUTIONS, ETC.

The Senate WASHINGTON, 20,-The resolution for the appointment of an Alaskau commission was laid before the Senate, and Manderson moved its reference to the committee on Territories. A debate arose, during which Van Wyck attacked the South American commission in vigorous style. He said the first thing they did was to go to San Francisco, then to Naw Mayley. to San Francisco; then to New Mexico, then to the New Orleans Exposition. Each member was provided with $7,500 for his expenses. The commission-consisted of two men and a boy, for its bairman remained in Albany. The irst thing these two men and the boy did was to hire a palace car at $25 a day, for which the total payment was $1,447, before they got to New Orleans. There they furnished themselves with supplies. The Utah commission boldly charged for lager beer and wine. this commission charges only for supdies, which doubtless include liquids on the Republican side of the chamer if it was not time to stop? About the 1st of January the commission got ready to start from New Orleans. From the 1st of October to the 1st of January their expenses were comparatively honorable. This money was taken from the pockets of tax-payers, who were thardly able to pay $2 a night for lodging on Pullman care when they traveled. In addition to this expense, they paid for their supplies and their cook, and were allowed

7,500 a year each, besides. The chair-nan of the commission, who never left New York, resigned on the 25th of Jannarp, and drew out of the Treasury $4,679. It cost the Government about $40,000 for this commission before the two men and the boy got ready to leave New Orleans. This reckless waste of money was a great wrong upon the people who paid the taxes. What made it worse was that the outrageous bills of that commission had been approved. and paid. He denounced this as worse than highway robbery.

He said: "The man who enters a the river. Harrison charged Van Wyck with having offered the resolution merely for she purpose of obtaining pay for his clerk during recess; and, with the view of saving the government the $1,500 or $1,800 salary of the clerk, he offered a resolution that Van Wyck's resolution between that Van Wyck's resolution between the clerk, and asked that t be referred to the committee on improvement of the Mississippi River. Vest said it was not his purpose to become a participant in the very interesting domestic discussion on the re-publican side of the chamber; but Van Wyck was like this boy who partici-pated in the murder of his own father; te saw the old man was about to be to beaten to death, and, as he could not help it, thought he would give him a lick to help him out of his misery. For twenty-five years he (Vest) had been an intimate personal friend of one of the members of the South American commission, and his stainless and without reproach as that of any public man could possibly be. The man who charged in his (Vest's) presence that Thomas C. Reynolds had ever, by extravagance or otherwise, wrongfully taken a cent of the people's money, made a statement which he (Vest) contradicted absolutely and un-Van Wyck disclaimed any personal reflections. He had made his remarks with respect to the commission, and not respecting its members. He interpreted Vest's challenge as a threat, and said substantially that he would be ready to repeat his statements. Hawley inquired whether the Senator (Van Wyck) knew enough about the details of these transactions to justify him in attacking the honor of a gentlenan who had always stood as high as e (Van Wyck) could ever hope to Van Wyck replied by reiterating The Alaska resolution was referred o the committee on Territories.

He said that the accused in thus expressing his confidence in the members of the court has stated his conviction that in this case the stream will rise above its source. The accused, he said, is aware that, while the court is authorized by the President of the United States, the order detailing it was from the Secretary of War. The accused drew up the charge, selected the officers to try it, and appointed the prosecuting officer. In closing, Judge Mackey said: "The accused awaits your indigment with confidence. The Intuitional Sense of Women, The wit of women has been praised, but her instincts are quicker and keener than her reason. Counsel with your wife, or your mother, or sister, and be assured that light will full upon your darkness. Women are too commonly adjudged as verdant in all out purely womanish affairs. No philosophical student of the sex thus adjudges them. Their intuition, or insight, is the most subtle, and if they cannot see a cat in the meal, there is no cat there. In counseling one to tell his trouble to his wife, we would go further, and advise him to keep none of his affairs secrect, from her.
