SUNDAY SERMONS AT TABERNACLE.

Elders Mathoniah Thomas and Charles W. Penrose Were the Speakers Yesterday.

REVELATION WAS DISCUSSED.

The Far Reaching Effects, Influences and Operations of the Gospel—What It Does and Will Do.

The services at the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon were largely attended. President John R. Winder presided, and the speakers were Elders Mathoniah Thomas and Charles W. Penrose, the subject of revelation being the general theme of both.

The opening number rendered by the choir was the hymn beginning: "To the Mighty God appearing."

President William McLachlan offered the opening prayer, after which the choir sang the hymn:

"Sweet is the work, my God, my King."

In opening his remarks Elder Thomas said that while the attention of the world is directed toward "Mormonism," at the present time and much is thought to be known concerning it, the fact is that few people appear to understand either the "Mormon" people or their teachings. Many who visit this house of worship do so for the first time and are surprised to learn that the Latter-day Saints believe in Jesus Christ. As a matter of fact this people hold that Christ was the Giver of the Gospel, as established by Him and restored to earth in latter days. A community professing to be founded on the eternal principles taught by the Savior of the world and who claim that their doctrines are in accordance therewith, have at least considerable claim to divine approval.

When the Savior asked his disciples what was the general opinion concerning Him, various answers were given from the view point of the masses. In answer to the question directed to Peter, "Who sayest thou that I am?" the apostle answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The reply of Jesus to the unbelieving and unimpeachable testimony of Peter, said Elder Thomas, established the great foundation upon which the Gospel of Christ is built—revelation from God to man. No mortal man, no earthly power could convince a human soul that Christ was indeed the Son of God. Nothing short of the inspiration of heaven could do this, and if such were necessary in the case of Peter and his fellows, who were in daily association with the Redeemer, how much more need there today when there is such a divergence of religious views in the world.

The speaker said that it is quite as inconsistent to say that the canon of Scripture is full and that revelation concerning things religious is no longer necessary, as it would be to maintain that Franklin, with his kite and key, had done it all. If the canon of Scripture is full, it is the canon of the development of electricity; or that the ideas of Morse were all sufficient in the art of telegraphy. The Latter-day Saints believe that God has revealed that which does not exist, and they believe that He will yet reveal many great and important things pertaining to the kingdom of God. In closing, Elder Thomas bore a fervent testimony that the Gospel of Jesus Christ had been restored, and that the same is being preached by the Latter-day Saints, just as it was proclaimed by the Savior and His Apostles. The anthem, "House, Oh Ye Mortals," was sung by the choir.

ELDER C. W. PENROSE.

Elder Charles W. Penrose said that during the remainder of the previous speaker he had tried to place himself in the position of a listener who was not a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Such a one, he said, would be a listener of "Mormonism" as true, that it is the Church of Christ and that there is but one Church, what of the millions who now have died, the countless numbers that have died, some believe in Christ as the Son of God and other never having heard His name? The speaker said that all the human race would be judged according to the light they had received, and for the manner in which they had lived up to it. There are many good people in Christendom as there are many worthy ones in Heathendom, and all will be rewarded according to deeds done in the body.

The speaker argued that when the spirit of man left the body it was still an intelligent entity, with the same free agency and power to receive truth or reject it as when in the flesh; to believe, repent, and obey law, and to advance and improve. The one Gospel of Christ would be preached to the creature, either when in the body or out of the body, and all would have the opportunity to receive the spirit of revelation by which alone man can know that Jesus is the Christ.

He briefly traced the departure from the order, spirit and ordinances of the Gospel as introduced by the Savior and His Apostles, and the establishment of the different systems and churches of men. He showed that Christ was not the author of confusion and discord, and that His Church was one, not many, and that obedience to the Gospel brought union and harmony for the spirit of revelation all were brought to the unity of the faith and the knowledge of the Son of God, such as was given to Peter and all the disciples of old.

Elder Penrose showed from Scripture that although the great departure from the faith predicted by the Apostles had taken place, "the gates of hell" had not prevailed against the Church, or its founder, or the spirit of revelation, the "rock" on which it was built. Christ, after His crucifixion, while His body was in the tomb, went to the very gates of hell and entered and preached to the spirits in prison the same Gospel that was preached to men in the flesh. He "led captivity captive" and has since that time been preaching to the spirits of the dead. His Apostles, as he promised, did the same works, and so the gates of hell would eventually be brought forth and redeemed, except the sons of perdition. The speaker showed the advantages of receiving the Gospel in this life, and being brought into communion with God and receiving revelation from Him, and the punishment that would be suffered by those who rejected it.

Elder Penrose testified that God had restored the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the earth in this dispensation, with all the keys, powers, authority and blessings that belonged to the primitive Church. All who obey the Gospel as taught by the servants of the Lord would receive the testimony of the Holy Ghost and know as Peter knew that Jesus was indeed the Christ. He invoked the blessing of God upon all present.

After the rendition of the anthem, "Let the Mountains Shout for Joy," by the choir, and the singing of Doxology by the congregation, Elder Rudger Clawson pronounced the benediction.
