

ISSUES FOUNDED ON FINANCE NOW

Politics in Close Sympathy This Year With the Commercial Interests.

BOOM FOR HENRY M. WHITNEY

Notorious Boston News Bureau Sets Forth What the "Safe and Sane" Want for Presidential Candidate.

Special Correspondence.

New York, Oct. 14.—Finance and politics have gone closely hand in hand but it looks as if they would be in closer sympathy the coming year than at any time since the first Bryan campaign.

Many of the issues that are now being raised are founded on finance. Even the state's rights issue which is forcing its course is largely due to questions of commerce and finance.

This issue has received a new boost through the conflict between the state and the United States courts in the matter of the metropolitan trust. Metropolitan Street railway, which controls the surface line in New York City, Attorney-General who was elected last year on the Democratic-Hearst ticket raised the pane by applying to the state court to appoint separate receivers on the ground that the federal court had no jurisdiction, and the federal records were supplied through fraud and corruption.

The public at large believes what the attorney-general says especially as Judge Locombe of the United States court has always shown a disposition to interpret the law according to the technicalities which the corporations were able to raise.

STATES RIGHTS ISSUE.

One of the most widely quoted opinions on the states rights issue appears in the current number of the Van Norden Magazine, a monthly publication which makes a specialty of financial and political affairs. In view of the part that the conservatives in this issue also represent, the opinions of one of the foremost bankers in the country, Mr. Van Norden, of the Van Norden Trust Company, it is of particular interest to note what it says:

As the Constitution now reads, and the supreme court now interprets it, it is certain that the powers of the interstate commerce commission can not legally be expanded to undertake all the federal regulations of business that President Roosevelt advocates. If, then, the country is satisfied to follow the lead of the constitutional lawyers, the Democratic party has in the states rights issue, as Judge Parker defines it in his speech, an excellent issue, and it would be better worth having a popular vote upon it.

INNUMERABLE SIGNS.

As a matter of political fact, however, there are innumerable signs that on this issue, so defined a party standing for a strict construction of the federal Constitution would be as avowedly popular as was the party on the same issue a generation ago. That which the legal mind fails to see is the profound political truth that nations are living, organic aggregates of human beings undergoing progressive evolution, and therefore are invariably growing away from or modifying or breaking through restraints imposed upon them by the past. In the course of this evolution many interests originally unorganized or decentralized become definitely centralized, and therefore inevitably represented, and other interests that have been closely united disintegrate and fall apart. It becomes impossible therefore, to maintain in all causes the old legal limitations, and it becomes absolutely necessary to create some new ones.

THE REAL ISSUE.

There is, therefore, before the American people a real states' rights issue, but it is not the one which the lawyers formulate. The real issue is, what power ought the federal government to have and what powers ought the state governments to have? The powers the one and the other to whom respectively by the Constitution and its amendments were suggested and determined by an age of stage coaches and "sloops." Some of them may happen to be excellent limitations also for an age of continental railways, transoceanic steamships, wireless telegraphy, and international connection, but it is certain that some of them have become antiquated.

The real states' rights issue as it stands today, then, is, how can the federal Constitution be so amended, and how can its further amendment be so provided that it can be made safe and in the future be maintained, as an adequate expression of actual economic and moral organization of the living, instead of remaining a merely glorious memorial of the dead?

FOR TARIFF REFORM.

The states rights issue is being closely followed by the demand for tariff reform which is growing more and more stronger. Even the New York Sun came out for tariff revision and a flat demand for such changes as are necessitated by changing conditions appeared in a recent leading column of the joint staff. The Sun has to J. P. Morgan and in view of the fact that Morgan created the steel trust, the largest beneficiary of the

AMUSEMENTS.

It's time to look into your Shoes for fall—it doesn't matter what gown you have to match or what style you may fancy—your wants will be satisfied with the "Money Back" showing—over 100 styles at $3.50 that are $5.00 elsewhere—The hand made grades at $5.00 and up are only handled here—your "Money Back" if it is not so.

DAVIS SHOE CO.

These two leading men in the roles portrayed by Mr. Hurst and Mr. Bergman, while Miss Bertrand and Florence Robinson were thoroughly capable in their parts, Mr. LeVan and Mr. Barnes contributed two capital character sketches as the Hebrew money lenders.

The scenery was most handsome and tasteful and the entire mounting of the highest grade. Miss Fealy's engagement, which opened in a fairly successful manner, though the audience standard ought to draw larger business before the close. The usual matinee will be given tomorrow afternoon.

Orpheum.—Tonight is "Safety night" and the usual crush is looked for. All the Saturday matinees at this house are now running to "standing room only."

The Grand.—The Sweetest Girl in Dixie, the bill at the Grand for the first half of this week, is a very tender and interesting play. There is little that borders on the sensational, the only situation being the general fight, and that not within sight of the audience. The host there is in southern life is depicted, a high sense of honor, genuine hospitality and intense love for both men and women. Miss Violet Green impersonated Barbara Howard, the sweetest girl in Dixie, and in looks and action did the parts of the audience. There is a sweetness and girlishness about her that is decidedly captivating. As Col. John Howard, Barbara's father, Fiddes M. Page capably filled the bill. Addison Maderia, Jr., who had the part of Howard Egan, the wild and浪子, seemed new to the stage, but the impression he made was in his favor. The villain of the piece is of the tame sort, vicious in words only, and in the last act is knocked out a little encounter with the doughty old colonel. The character of Aunt Caroline, the colored "mammy," was well sustained by Bertha Honora.

Lyric.—Tonight winds up the present bill at the Lyric, and it will be succeeded by an entire change of program tomorrow evening, in which the International Stock company will be the leading feature.

H. M. WHITNEY BOOM.

The following sample from the notorious Boston news bureau which was owned and directed by Clarence H. Harlan who also controls the Wall Street Journal, and whose methods are noted for the financial results they bring to him, rather than for regard to what the facts may be, is a fair condensation of what the safe and sane want:

Henry M. Whitney of Massachusetts may be the next president of the United States. This declaration may seem startling, but any one who doubts the possibility might answer these questions:

First, can there be any other than a business man's candidate put up by a Democratic party with the support of successful Theodore Roosevelt's candidate? Second, if Henry M. Whitney is elected governor of Massachusetts upon a business man's platform, will he not be the logical business man's candidate for 1908 for Washington on the Democratic platform?

Henry M. Whitney today has the top and bottom of the Democratic party in Massachusetts. He is gaining strength every day and is being daily more and more loved for the enemies he has made.

The election of Henry M. Whitney as governor of Massachusetts upon a business man's platform makes him at once the only formidable candidate whom the Democrats can put in the field with any hope of success against the man whom Theodore Roosevelt shall name. J. R. G.

SENSE ABOUT FOOD.

Facts About Food Worth Knowing.

It is a serious question sometimes to know just what to eat when a person's stomach is out of order and most foods cause trouble.

Grape-Nuts food can be taken at any time with the certainty that it will digest and give the experience of people to whom it is an interest in foods.

A Terra Sancte woman writes: "I had suffered with indigestion for about four years, ever since an attack of typhoid fever, and at times could eat nothing but the very lightest food, and then suffer such agony with my stomach I would wish I never had to eat anything. I was urged to try Grape-Nuts and since then I do not have to starve myself any more. I can eat at any time and feel nourished and satisfied, dyspepsia is a thing of the past, and I am now strong and well."

"My husband also had an experience with Grape-Nuts. He was very weak and sickly in the spring. Could not attend to his work and could not eat after the doctor's care but medicine did not seem to do him any good until he began to leave off ordinary food and use Grape-Nuts. It was positively surprising to see the change in him. He grew better right off, and naturally he has no more words of praise for Grape-Nuts."

"Our boy thinks he cannot eat a meal without Grape-Nuts, and he learns to eat at school that his teacher and other scholars comment on it. I am satisfied that it is because of the great nourishing elements in Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason."

It contains the phosphate of potash from wheat and barley which combines with albumin to make the gray matter to bring out the brain and nerve centers.

It is a pity that people do not know what to feed their children. There are many mothers who give their young sons almost any kind of food and when they become sick begin to pour the medicine down them. The real way is to stick to proper food and be healthy and get along without medicines and expenses.

personal check for $200, payment on which was refused. The overdraft and checks were found to be the effects of Williams at the office of the Tetra Mining company of which Williams was secretary. James A. Pultok is president of the company, but is in the east at the present time. Edwin G. Woolsey, Jr., one of the directors, has been chosen to replace Mr. Pultok as president of the company but as the directors have not held a meeting since the resignation was sent in it has not been acted upon.

TOOK TRAIN FOR EAST.

When Mr. Williams left Salt Lake he took a train for the east. Two men were with him on the train. One ex-Sheriff Turner of Cheyenne accompanied him on the trip. The other man, whose name could not be learned, was with Williams until they reached Chicago. This man said there was nothing at all unusual in the appearance or actions of Williams during the trip. Williams told his companion he had not been murdered nor had he committed suicide. At least he is alive and apparently in good health on Sept. 11. So far as known his accounts are straight with the exception of an overdraft for about $2,000 and a purchase of $100.

Mr. Williams left his home in Salt Lake City on Sept. 11, 1906, and has not been heard from since. He was a member of the First Ward meetinghouse, Bishop Morris presiding. Mr. Vissing succeeded to an attack of rheumatism on the brain Sunday evening at St. Mark's hospital. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon and eulogistic tributes were made by Bishop Morris.
