The action of the board of public put the question and asked, "are there any remarks?" A deep silence perany remarks?" A deep silence per-vaded the council chamber for a few seconds when the chair instructed the recorder to "call the roll on the adop-tion of the resolution." When Fernstrom's name was called the membe from the Third arose and said he was going to vote "No." He sensed the fact that the time had come when money would have to be raised, but he feared plan suggested in the resolution would prove a failure and the entailing of an additional and unnecessary ex pense upon the citizens. His plan would be to increase the tax levy three mills this year and three mills next year. He had figured the question out himself and had reached the con clusion that the increasing of the tax levy was the way in which to raise the monay. To do this would, of course, require considerable backbone:

but this was something he feared the present council did not possess, and he had failed to see any exhibition of it for the past ten years.

HEWLETT FAVORED IT.

Hewlett, in explanation of his vote said that at first he was opposed to improving the waterworks system ear, on account of the lack of funds but inasmuch as the contracts had been et he would vote in favor of the reso-lution. As he viewed the matter bonds were preferable to an increase in taxes. The latter were high enough now and he did not believe the people were able to stand a further increase.

C. R. HOWE IN FAVOR, TOO.

Howe (C. R.) realized that the city had gone too far in the matter of improving the water system for him or anyone else to say that the raising of money was not absolutely necessary. To meet the condition that confronted the members one of two things would have to be done, to issue bonds or raise the taxes. Heretofore he had been opposed to both propositions, but he was now willing to go on record as favoring bonds, although he had grave doubts that the people would vote in the affirmative on the question. He firml- believed, however, that it would be in their interest to vote yes, as he was going to. While he was going to stand "pat" on the resolution, he want-ed it distinctively understood that he reserved the right to vote as he pleased on the proposition to increase the tax in the event of the bonds being defenied. RESOLUTION ADOPTED.

The result of the vote on the resolution was as follows: Ayes-Cotrell, Gemmell, Hartenstein, Hewlett, Howe (C. R.), Reid, Robert-son, Thomas, Tuddenham, Whittemore and Puckle-11.
