When He Walked Into a Nest of Filipinos at Waterworks.

SLEATER SAYS HE MET HIM

The Day Before His Death and He Was Feeling Gloomy Over Killing of John G. His Nephew.

"I met Captain Harry Young the day before he was killed," said H. E. Sleater, a member of battery A, at the undertaking establishment of Jos. E. Taylor today. "I was on guard duty and Harry came along near me. I accosted him and he appeared to be feeling very gloomy about something. I asked him what was the matter and he told me of the death of Corporal John G. Young on the day previous. The blow seemed to have dazed Harry somewhat. At this time Harry's promotion had been made, but I do not know if his commission had reached him yet. At any rate, knowing of his promotion, he had already begun to act in his new capacity; and as a physician in the army he was not confined to any particular beat. This probably accounts for his fatal trip out to the waterworks the next day. There were two waterworks stations some distance apart, and it is presumed that Harry got their identity confused and thus walked right into the Filipino hordes. He must have been shot from all sides, for he walked right in among the buildings and walls, which were all crowded with Filipino soldiers, who sent a volley at him."

AT THE TABERNACLE.

Funeral services over the remains of Capt. Harry A. Young and Corp. John G. Young will be held in the Tabernacle at 2 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, February 12th, and all friends are invited by the family to attend.

PHOTO OF PARSONS.

Robert W. Mitchell, who is engaged as a painter at the casket factory of Joseph E. Taylor, possesses a photograph of Charles Parsons, the other Utah boy whose body arrived yesterday. It was about four months ago that the photo was handed Mr. Mitchell, from which he might paint a reproduction. On the back of the photograph Parsons has apparently written his signature, the middle name of which is difficult of correct reading. The name looks to be "Charles Vincent Parsons." This is the only photograph of Parsons which shows him in his uniform, and was taken by Lawrence Wilson. When the volunteers were enlisting Wilson offered to take, free of charge, one photograph of each man joining the volunteer army. Parsons, with others, accepted the offer, and this accounts for there being but one. The body of Parsons was taken charge of by Undertaker Jos. W. Taylor, and now lies at his establishment. Mr. Taylor will have charge of the remains until they are deposited in mother earth. The father is making efforts to prove his parentage, the peculiar circumstances attending the enlistment of his son leaving affairs in such a state that the government can take no official notice of the father's claims until the relationship is established beyond a doubt.

THREE IN A SECTION.

Mr. Sleater, who talked with a "News" representative, said he belonged to what was known as section 5 of battery A, and his section lost heavily in comparison with others, the death roll including Corp. John G. Young, Sergt. Ford Fisher and Private Goodman.

MILITARY FUNERAL.

The sub-committee having charge of the funeral arrangements will meet this evening to decide upon a report to be made to the general committee at a meeting to be held at the Governor's office at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. It is quite likely that religious services over the remains will be held separately and in accordance with the wishes of the relatives. Then it is proposed, after the bodies of Ford Fisher, Max Madison and Frederick A. Bumiller arrive, to give them all a military funeral with all honors.

HARTVICKSEN SERVICES.

Funeral services were held at Sandy this afternoon over the remains of Albert W. Hartvicksen, a detail from the first battalion N. G. U. being present to act as escort and to fire the usual military salute over the young soldier's grave. Nearly all of the inhabitants of Sandy turned out for the ceremonies.

BOARD WILL ACT.

Resignations of Messrs. Tanner and Wilson Will be Accepted.
President McCormick of the board of trustees of the Agricultural College at Logan expects to call a meeting of the board some day in this week for the purpose of taking action upon the resignations of President James M. Tanner of the college and Secretary Joseph E. Wilson of the board. It is also expected by many that by the time the meeting convenes Trustee M. W. Merrill will have tendered his resignation. Ezra T. Hyde is an applicant for the secretaryship.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Ella McKinney, who came to Utah with her mother, from West Point, Montgomery county, Indiana, about 1872 or 1873, would confer a favor by communicating the same to Emm Bagley, Kerkhof, Westfield, Custer county, Colo., or C. R. Johnson, same address. Ella was about 17 years old when she went to Utah.

MAJOR YOUNG WILL NOT RUN.

Declines to Become a Candidate for Congressional Honors.

NEEDED IN THE PHILIPPINES

That Is the Conclusion of Home Friends Who Desired Him to Succeed Hon. B. H. Roberts.

For weeks past the name of Major Richard W. Young has been freely spoken of by his friends in connection with the congressional nomination. Those who had the matter in hand believed that the gallant soldier would be more likely to bring victory to their party than any man that could be named. During the whole period of speculation, however, it has been decidedly doubtful as to whether Major Young was in a position to accept the proffered honor. Much as he might appreciate it and much as he might desire to yield to the urgent solicitations of friends the latter freely concede that he senses the responsibility that rests upon him; that the government is very desirous that he should remain, for the time being at least, at the post to which he has been assigned. The supreme court of the Philippines, of which he is one of the chief members, requires men of peculiar fitness and capability. Such a man is Richard Young. He is also intensely patriotic, and, says his friends, will not resign when officially requested to remain, which request it is confidently asserted General Otis has made upon him.

Major Young's declination came late yesterday afternoon in the form of the following cablegram to Ex-Congressman Roberts:

"Manila, P. I., Feb. 5, 1900.
"Roberts, Salt Lake:
"Nomination declined.
"YOUNG."

This is in answer to a cable query made by Mr. Roberts, who had been friends on Saturday night. The form of the question was:

"Salt Lake City, Feb. 3, 1900.
"Judge Young, Manila:
"Special election April 2. If nominated, will you resign and accept before election?
"As a result of this correspondence new calculations were made by Democratic politicians today and the matter may receive some attention at their hands in their councils at the Kenyon hotel tonight.

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM DAMAGES

Trial of the Issues Between D. B. Brinton and P. Butler.

CASE BEFORE JUDGE HILES.

Trouble Is Over an Eighth Interest in the Butler Irrigation Ditch, in Big Cottonwood.

The time of Judge Hiles has been taken up today hearing testimony in the case of David B. Brinton vs Philander Butler.

By this action plaintiff seeks to recover one-eighth interest in the Butler Irrigation ditch, situated two and a half miles above the mouth of Big Cottonwood canyon, and $250 damages, or in case a transfer of the property can not be had that he be given judgment for $1,575.75.

In his complaint plaintiff sets out that on March 23, 1896, he entered into an agreement with the defendant in writing whereby the latter agreed, upon the completion of certain work, consisting of putting in 432 feet of flume and the reconstruction of a levee across the hollow of the Butler ditch, to give plaintiff an eighth interest in the ditch and water. The work was to have been completed some time during the year 1896, and to the acceptance of one Charlotte Gregg, who had at that time an interest in the property. By consent of the defendant, it is alleged, the time for completing the work was extended to November 1, 1898. On the last named date, plaintiff says, the work was furnished and accepted by Charlotte Gregg, who certified that everything was done to her entire satisfaction. When plaintiff made demand of the defendant for the conveyance and transfer of the one eighth interest in the ditch, the latter, it is alleged, refused to execute the deed.

The defendant sets up a counter claim for $1,247.15, and in his answer alleges that plaintiff failed to perform any part of the written contract, by reason of which defendant had to expend $300 in work, labor and material; also that plaintiff had caused the fruit was damaged for lack of water in the sum of $500. Defendant also contends that prior to entering into the written agreement he and the plaintiff had a verbal understanding whereby the plaintiff agreed to enlarge the ditch so that more water could be conveyed through the flumes.

The taking of testimony had not concluded at press time.

Wilson & Smith appear for plaintiff, while the defendant is represented by Attorney H. R. Watrous.

OGDEN SUGAR COMPANY.

President Eccles' Report for the Past Season.

He Recommends that Beets Next Season be Paid for According to their Sugar Content.

THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE OGDEN SUGAR COMPANY.

Gentlemen—In making my second annual report I had hoped to be able to show a substantial increase of the satisfactory results of the operations of this company. I am, however, disappointed. I feel especially encouraged in that hope when we succeeded in opening the season with contracts for over 4,000 acres of land, agreed to be sown to beets. But I regret to say that many of the farmers who have been so successful in the first place, the cold, windy spring destroyed the seeds and young plants on hundreds of acres, and while most of the stricken farms were re-planted, yet a great deal of land remains idle, or in a condition so absolutely prostrate as to practically amount to the same thing, and as a result, I am confident, from the best information which I can obtain, that we did not harvest over three-fourths of the crops that we expected.

Besides, an erroneous idea had crept in among the farmers that a profuse irrigation, while unquestionably injurious to the sugar contents of the beets, would nevertheless produce an abundant crop; and inasmuch as the flat price rate prevails in this company, the grower would get as great a sum for beets containing a less amount of saccharin as they would for the better ones. Acting upon this reasoning, over-irrigation was the rule, and satisfactory beets the exception. The officers of the company tried in various ways to dissuade the growers from their erroneous views, but with little result, other than that the majority of the farmers of this year learned the lesson, that while over-irrigation may and does injure and reduce the sugar contents in a beet, yet the farmer is equally the sufferer, because over-irrigation has seriously lessened his crop. I think the season's run has further demonstrated the fact that the best interests of the beet growers are identical with the best interests of the Sugar company, and that therefore the most advantageous conduct of both is that of mutual aid and confidence. For the purpose of encouraging this relation, and for the purpose of having the experiences of the growers as well as the experiences of the company secure mutual advantages in the future, we caused a letter of inquiry to be submitted to each beet grower of 1899, requesting an immediate answer to the various questions propounded, with a view of tabulating the combined experiences, and by bulletins disseminate the result. So far not over one-half of the answers to these letters have been received by us, but from the information thus far obtained, I am fairly able to form sufficient deductions to say that during 1899 the average crop raised per acre was between ten and eleven tons; that as a rule the planting should have commenced from one to three weeks earlier than it was; that, apart from over-irrigation, the use of inferior soil, or soil unfit for beet growing purposes, coupled with indifferent cultivation, were the chief causes not only of the small crop, but also of the existence of inferior beets; that subsoil plowing in the fall, followed by shallow plowing and harrowing in the spring, produced the best and largest crops; that if fertilization becomes at all necessary, it should be done in the fall, by the spreading of a very light coat of well-rotted stable manure; that virgin soil should, during its first year's use, preferably produce some cereal crop, and not wheat; that the experience of other sugar factories (and especially that at Lehi) has demonstrated that the longer beets are produced upon the same grounds, and taken good care of, the better the beets will become, and the larger the crop such land will produce; and that well-directed, intelligent labor pays more abundantly in the growing of beets than in the production of any other crop. These experiences of the farmers have been supplemented by the observations of the employees of the company, and from it we have come to the conclusion that the question of the proper method of growing beets, and a strict adherence to the instructions of the field superintendent and his aids, regarding the care of the crop during the summer, are matters that must be more seriously attended to, both by the growers and by the company. A disregard of the well established rules of best growing results equally as disastrously to the one as to the other, and would, if carried to its ultimate extent, result in the absolute failure of beet growing and beet sugar making. It is also unquestionably true, that in the future greater care must be exercised by the employees of this company in the acceptance of immature and badly topped beets. The loss resulting from these causes were so serious during the past year, that it took the utmost vigilance, and the expenditure of large sums of money, to prevent a total loss to us of a large portion of this year's crop. The delivery and receipt at the factory of these immature and badly topped beets produced second growths after the beets had been deposited in the sheds, which in turn caused such a large invasion of sugar in the beets, that it was almost impossible to keep the impurities caused by fermentation sufficiently low to enable the syrup to run through the factory at all. All these matters have impelled us to the determination that we will hereafter require all the practical employees of the factory to aid the field superintendent in making repeated personal inspections of the growing beet fields, with a view to making suggestions to the farmers regarding the proper cultivation of the beet; and whenever a grower shall persistently disregard such instructions and suggestions, that the executive committee be immediately advised, so that the sugar may be determined by them whether such crop of such grower shall be accepted at all.

I have gone more than I ordinarily would into the details of these matters, for the farmers that grow our beets are our best growers and stockholders in this company, and in that dual capacity they ought to be made fully acquainted with the facts, which retard the material prospects of the grower as well as of the company. It is our purpose of showing that we have dealt as fairly with the beet growers as the character of the beets we have received would warrant us in doing, in justice to the company's important interests of the stockholders regarding their money, be it little or much, in this enterprise. The truth is, that for the class of beets we have received, we have paid higher prices than any other factory in Utah. States without the advantage of the receipt of a State bounty. Of course, when the majority of the farmers in this community have had the same experience in beet growing as we have, they will be able to produce a beet average of as high a grade as they do at Lehi, then, of course, compensation for such beet and such experience ought to be made to such growers; but as long as farmers deliver to us inferior sugar, our interests of which are as low as they were last year, we are paying full value for our raw product. Of course, I think the acceptance of beets not up to the standard of quality as well as the quantity, and if it shall be your pleasure to re-elect me as your president for another year, I assure you that the strictest orders will be issued to cause each load of beets not up to the contract standard to be absolutely rejected.

I am also inclined to think that in view of our experience of the past year, the superintendent should be instructed to look to the quality as well as the quantity of the beets to be contracted for, and that it would be preferable to contract for a smaller acreage, and be assured that we will obtain better beets. This is especially true in view of the fact that the increased capacity of the Lehi sugar factory will cause the output from all the factories in Utah during the coming year to be greater than the entire consumption of this inter-mountain country, in which event it would be necessary to ship sugar as far east as the Missouri river, where the price of sugar is so low that after paying the freight to get it there, it is practically impossible for us to compete. And therefore, it would be better for us to have a smaller quantity contracted for, and manufacture that into sufficient sugar to supply the home market.

Of course, if the beet raising industry of the Lehi sugar factory will cause the output from all the factories in Utah during the coming year to be greater than the entire consumption of this inter-mountain country, in which event it would be necessary to ship sugar as far east as the Missouri river, where the price of sugar is so low that after paying the freight to get it there, it is practically impossible for us to compete. And therefore, it would be better for us to have a smaller quantity contracted for, and manufacture that into sufficient sugar to supply the home market.

The abstraction of sugar from the beets has been very low this season, amounting on the average to only a trifle over 9% per cent. This result is caused principally, of course, by the inferiority of the beets delivered at the factory. Under these circumstances, it must be expected that the net profits of the company would be limited. The cost of operation, including the stipulated wages to be paid for men kept during the entire year, together with money necessary to purchase the preliminary supplies and the making of repairs sufficient to start the factory again at the opening of the coming campaign, amounts to the sum of $245,000. If the price of sugar shall keep up to its present standard, it will produce an income of from $250,000 to $265,000, leaving an apparent surplus of from $5,000 to $20,000. We have at present actually invested in the plant about $250,000. So that after all upon that investment there will be a net profit of nearly ten per cent. At present we are indebted in the sum of nearly $70,000. So that we shall not be able to pay any dividend until practically our entire output of sugar has been disposed of. In conclusion, I desire to extend my thanks for the efficient assistance received by me from the officers of the company, and the same keen interest manifested by them during the past I have no doubt will be demonstrated again in the future if it shall be your pleasure to retain them in the positions they now occupy.

Respectfully submitted,
DAVID ECCLES,
President.

PREPARING FOR BICYCLE RACES.

"Sugarbowl" at the Salt Palace Will Open Early.

PHWIT, PHWIT COMPETITION

Local Wheelmen are Training to Meet Crack Riders Who Will Come from the East.

"Coming events cast their shadows before."

Judging from the tenor of recent press dispatches from the eastern cycling world much more interest will be centered in race meets this coming season than ever before, and there will be an entirely new feature in this season's races at least for Salt Lake. Reference is made to motor-cycle competition which is sure to capture the Salt Lake public.

A motor-cycle race has not been witnessed on the "sugar bowl" at the Salt Palace, but the interest taken in John Lawson's "phwit phwit" last year was great, and such machines will draw big crowds in the future.

It is now almost certain that the Salt Palace track will be opened as early as the weather will permit and the races of the "beet" season will be on. Salt Lake people will not tire of them. It is also believed that three meets a week can be promoted with success in a financial way.

In addition to the clever riders at home, a number of swift men will be here from the East. It is understood that John Chapman, Turville and the Lawson's who gained fame and favor here last summer will be on hand when the season opens. There seems to be no fear that the track will not be in excellent condition when the time comes for the races.

TO ORGANIZE A NINE.

High School Boys Eager for the National Game.

A dispatch received this morning says that Albert Griffiths, better known as "Young Griffo," the pugilist, is a prisoner at the Chicago police station. He was arrested for creating a disturbance. An effort is being made by his friends and the police to send him to Australia, from where he came several years ago. Last summer, when he was thought to be slightly demented, he was sent to Dunning, where he was cared for until two months ago, when he was pronounced well and was released. He had regained some of his old time form and cleverness in the ring and fought with "Jack" Lewis and Young Kenny, two well known fighters, who won big battles. Later he offered to meet any light-weight fighter in the world for any purse. His last fall has been a disappointment to his many admirers, who had helped to get him back in his old time form.

MRS. DR. L. HALL'S

ARRIVAL CAUSES A STIR.

Large Crowd Awaited the Distinguished Medium Upon Her Arrival at Her Offices.

256½ W. South Temple St., The Palace, in This City.

Dr. L. Hall, the distinguished medium, arrived in the city a few days ago, and was at once driven to the offices engaged for her at 256½ W. South Temple Street, the Palace.

A large crowd awaited her arrival in order to engage sittings for next week. The time of the press on her Eastern work has been especially strong. Of her a leading contemporary recently had the following to say: "A correspondence of the News called on Mrs. Dr. L. Hall at her offices, 256½ West South Temple Street, the Palace, and was granted the favor of an interview. The doctor was in many respects a remarkable woman. A little above the medium height, lustrous brown, large eyes, full of deep earnestness, a broad, high forehead, betokening intelligence, the doctor impresses one as possessed of rare qualities of mind and heart. She is justly celebrated on both sides of the continent as a Clairvoyant and Test Medium. Some of her revelations are almost startling in their intensity and truth. It is no exaggeration to say that she is a living telephone between the two worlds, standing in the relation of a sensitive means of communication between those on this side of the great divide and those on the other. Mrs. Dr. L. Hall does not rant; she does not go into convulsions, she has no Trances; she has no visions, all that. She talks to you in a low voice and gets her communications from the beyond with no apparent effort on her part. Like Lillian Whiting, she has spirit voices, and like the famous Swedenborg, she sees spirit forms, she hears always in touch with that invisible band of immortals who wait to minister to human needs and long to communicate a sense of their nearness to those from whom they are separated by only a thin veil, which Mrs. Dr. L. Hall often in brushing aside, she brings up the long forgotten past, gives names and dates of events in one's life that are truly wonderful. She does not strain for effects, but gives you the unvarnished truth, she does not pretend to give when she receives nothing, and she cannot give unless she receives from her spirit friends on the other side. Tender, sympathetic and helpful. Mrs. Dr. L. Hall in her people ministrations pours balm upon hearts that are bruised, and points the mourning hopefully to the glad hours certain to come when they will be reunited. The delightful communication with them through her mediumship is a sure word of prophecy.

All who visit her go away satisfied.
