GEORGE Q. CANNON,
EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

☞ OUR SUBSCRIBERS in the country can at any time ascertain the date on which their subscription expires by referring to the number attached to their name on their paper, i.e., 1 4 3 means first day, fourth month, third year, or April 1st, 1873, 15-7 2 means July 15, 1872, &c., &c.

Those names having no numbers close with the 24 of this volume.

Subscribers understanding this will be able to renew their subscriptions prior to that time so that their papers may continue without interruption.

BREVITIES.

No enterprise is great that is not morally good.

A passionate man scourgeth himself with his own scorpions.

Good company and good conversation are the sinews of virtue.

Love is to the moral nature what the sun is to the earth.—Balzac.

A Chinese newspaper has entered upon its two thousandth volume. It has lost all its original subscribers.

The virtue of prosperity is temperance; the virtue of adversity is fortitude.

Good is slow; it climbs. Evil is swift; it descends. Why should we marvel that it makes great progress in a short time?

To do readily what we ought to do when we ought to do it, and as we ought to do it, are the characteristics of wise and happy minds.

"Spank this boy and send him home," is the label which anxious Detroit mothers stick on their boys when they send them out to play.

On a gate post in a Western town is a sign:

"Take warn't. No tracks nor life insurans, nor soln' mashpens wanted here."

Sir Charles Lyell calculates that the entire continent of North America will be washed away into the ocean in four and a half millions of years. And yet the people take an interest in real estate!

At a recent trial of bicycle velocipedes in London, one of the riders made two miles in less than seven minutes, and another four miles in seventeen minutes and twenty-one seconds.

The late Emperor of Austria, when Liszt had played before him, went up to compliment him: "I have heard Haltz, and Thalberg, and Chopin," he said gravely; "but I have never seen any one perspire like you."

They have queer converts at Waterbury, Connecticut. The American gravely gets off the following in a late issue: "Of the five young lady converts baptized by Rev. Mr. Bailey on Sunday, three were gentlemen."

Three hundred and fifty murders last year, and but one man suffering the extreme penalty of the law. He, poor Jack Reynolds, half-witted, without money or friends, was hung as an awful example. Who wonders that crime holds high carnival in our midst?—New York Citizen.

Special agent Abbott in his last report to the secretary of the Treasury gives the most deplorable account of the condition of affairs along the Rio Grande. Business is at a stand-still, anarchy prevails, and the predatory bands of Apaches and Cochise Indians have made a reign of terror.—Washington Star.

There is a certain Methodist church which stands on the boundary line between Ohio and Pennsylvania, in such a way that the pulpit is in the former State and the pews in the latter. A Pennsylvania paper thereupon takes occasion to state that while the hearers are in one State the preacher is in another State discoursing on the future state.

The deficiency bill having passed Congress and been approved by the President, the Department of Justice is engaged in supplying United States marshals throughout the country with funds to defray the expenses of United States courts. Several of the courts have been suspended for several months past, owing to the failure of previous appropriations.—Washington Star.

"There's no use talking, I'm going to get married," said a bachelor acquaintance, the other day, while busily engaged in sewing. "Here I have worked just twenty minutes by the watch trying to get this needle threaded, and then just as I succeeded I pulled the thread out. Finally I got it threaded again, and now, after sewing this button on good and strong, I find I've got it on the wrong side, and now I have my work all to do over again."

"Now, children," said a Sunday School Superintendent, who had been talking to his scholars about good people and bad people—"Now, children, when I'm walking in the street I speak to some people I meet and I don't speak to others, and what's the reason?" He expected the reply would be, "Because some are good and others bad;" but to his discomfiture the general shout was, "Because some are rich and others are poor."

CONGRESSIONAL.

HOUSE.

The concurrent resolution, extending the session until Monday, June 3rd, was adopted, on motion of Dawes, by 138 to 24. The bill revising the mint and coinage laws passed. The conference report on the post office appropriation bill was presented again and agreed to.

EASTERN DISPATCHES.

BOSTON, 27.—Dr. A. J. Lynn is held in $10,000 bonds, on the charge of procuring an abortion resulting in the death of a young woman.

WASHINGTON, 27.—The Sioux Indian delegates, headed by Red Cloud, interviewed Secretary Delano to-day, and the usual talk ensued. The Indians were very peaceful, but wanted ammunition, horses, etc., and better facilities for receiving supplies. Delano promised them some horses and more ammunition if the agents would so advise; with some guns for the chiefs.

The department will be closed on the 30th inst., being Decoration day.

The committee appointed by the citizens of San Francisco, to visit Washington on the subject of the Goat Island bill, have ascertained that owing to the pressure of business the bill will not be taken up by the Senate during the present session. The committee have had an interview with the President, which they say was satisfactory.

It is reliably ascertained that the vote of the Senate on the additional article was 43 to 8. There is no official reply yet received from England, but private advices from distinguished parties say there is no reason to doubt that the British government will assent to the modified article.

NEW YORK, 27.—Six lives were lost by the explosion on the tug Epitilon, the captain, engineer, firemen and two deck hands. The pilot had both legs fractured; John Bishop, mate of the ship Seminole, had an arm fractured, and four others were injured. The boat was blown to splinters above the water and the hull sunk.

The eight hour league has sent emissaries to Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities, to induce co-operation in the strike which in the meantime is extending here to all classes of workmen.

Captain Allster, of the steamer Retriever, lost during the terrible storms which prevailed on the coast of Newfoundland this spring, reports the total wreck of forty-two vessels, including several steamships; and the number of lives imperilled by these disasters amounts to nearly four thousand, of which very few are yet accounted for.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., 27.—A freight train at Alexandria, on the Manassas R. R. was thrown from the track this morning, killed two brakemen, and seriously injured the fireman.

WESTERN DISPATCHES.

SAN FRANCISCO, 27.—A letter to Mayor Atwood, from the railroad commissioners at St. Louis, gives encouraging news of progress and prospects. The committee of one hundred, request the board of supervisors to suspend action on the Mission Bay grants.

SPASTA CALA, 27.—The prisoners in the county jail made a well organized effort to escape yesterday. They were discovered by the sheriff. Several had their shackles off. A number of Hoodlums passed up to-day on the way to Weaver Hill with arms. They will soon come to grief.

EUROPEAN.

LONDON, 27.—William Russell, Duke of Bedford, and nephew to Earl Russell, died to-day in his 74th year.

Baron Bollings Bulwer, better known as Sir Henry Lytton, and brother to Lord Lytton, died last night, aged 68.

In the commons this evening, Stafford Northcote in explanation said his speech at Exeter, in which he referred to the treaty at Washington, was correctly reported in the London journals. He repeated the statement then made, that he understood, when at Washington, that indirect claims were not to be presented.

Jenkinson asked if it was true that the remaining Fenian prisoners had been released as reported; Gladstone answered "No," followed by laughter.

In reply to inquiries by Disraeli, Gladstone expressed regret at the premature publication of the supplemental article, intimating that the Americans were to blame in the matter. He also said the British government were officially informed that the Senate had agreed to the new article with amendments thereto, which had just been received and were now under consideration by the Cabinet; and no time would be lost in settling the matter.

PARIS, 27.—The Assembly this afternoon debated the army bill. Trochu boldly charged the Bonaparts with the corruption of the army, and was loudly applauded in all parts of the chamber.

BEHIND THE AGE.—Mr. James Mace and Mr. Ned O'Baldwin have been vaporing through the papers lately, on the subject of a fight in which they are anxious to indulge. In order to make the affair more interesting, a sum of money is to be staked on the event, to be given to that party who succeeds in pounding the other into insensibility before the other can reduce him into that same enviable condition. The man whose consciousness is first pounded out of him gets nothing of the money for which he has been thumped and thrown and battered into a jelly. There is no temper in the matter. It is a business affair, and conducted on strictly business principles. To witness this fight, if the noble ambition of both ruffians is gratified and the meeting comes off, all of the thieves, gamblers, swindlers and scum of society will gather at the ring-side. Cheers will go up from the partisans of the favorite when his brutal fist pushes against the white flesh of his opponent, and leaves ugly gashes. A broken nose, a mouthful of shattered teeth spat out on the ground, a terrific thud that will close an eye or split a lip, or a crushing blow, that will knock a face out of all resemblance as that of a human being, will cause shouts of delight to rise from the assembled demons gathered to witness the cruel sport. What shall we say to a civilization that permits this thing? We believe that much of the vitality that still clings to these species of brutality is owing to the publicity that is given to it by the press. We trust, if the fight should come off, that its disgusting details will find no place in our papers, and that the heroes will be defrauded of the miserable fame they look to acquire through this medium.—Boston Globe.

A Dyspepsia Factory.

I suppose if Mr. Snooks found a lead mine on his premises, and put up a mill, and began to grind out small change, the entire force of New England justice would be brought to bear on him—he'd be properly hauled over for counterfeiting. But what should be done in the case I am about to ventilate? In a quiet, pretty road that adjoins a populous town in Massachusetts, I was jogging along in a "rockaway," when I heard the whirring of a water wheel, betokening the nearness of some mill. The road had been for some distance covered with a milk-white deposit, and the stones in the neighborhood had a chalky appearance. A few seconds more and the dreary whirr of the distant wheel changed for the clang of machinery, and I stood in front of a large building, about which were piled heaps of these chalky stones. The air was thick with the flying powder, and between the ponderous crunching jaws of the mill-stones the big stones were disappearing with tremendous rapidity. And what do you suppose these hardy, industrious sons of Puritans were smashing up rocks and powdering those big white stones for? It was not possible for me a Yankee, used to guessing and to such sharp practice as making oats out of shoe-pegs—to begin to imagine; I don't expect you to; but there hid away in the hills, and far from the demoralizing influence of New York, where no vile theaters injured man's native innocence, with solemn Sabbath bells a stone's throw away, and with fifteen evangelical teachers in as many tabernacles, with blessings asked at each meal, with family prayers and much snuffling cant, two blamed old Yankee deacons run this mill night and day (sometimes) and turn out thousands of barrels a week of this vile, chawed-up plaster for the adulteration of flour.—Correspondence St. Louis Republican.

Our nation is twenty thousand years old; yours not one hundred. This speaks very well for our form of government and system of religion. When the United States has seen its thousandth birthday it may begin to think of sending missionaries to convert the heathen Chinee. Until that time all efforts in that direction will be considered by my people exceedingly impertinent and insulting. Very respectfully.—Heathen Chinee in New York Herald.
