Escape of Prisoners.

PLEASANT GROVE, June 30, 1881.

Editor Deseret News:

Lost evening about 6 o'clock, John Pierce and a young man by the name of Brown, convicts, escaped from Mr. Thurman, at Provo, while they were coming from the field with a load of hay, they wished to walk, got a little behind and skedadled. Guards were placed at the principal roads leading out of town; they managed to escape, came here in the night, broke into the Co-op. Store, helped themselves to hats, overalls, etc., then came to my store, broke the window and were about to enter, when the nightwatch of the store caught one by the hand, but he pulled loose and they scampered off at a lively pace, leaving the old hats and a pair of new overalls. Mr. Thurman was here early this morning in pursuit, and identified the hats as those worn by the runaways. They also took a horse belonging to Mrs. Pierce, and took to the hills. News has just been received that Sheriff Turner has found Brown in the hills east of here, he had with him a new satchel taken from the Co-op. Pierce was sentenced a month ago, with three others of this place, for petty larceny. Brown was in for stealing a mule. They are about 17 and 20 years of age. A Danish boy 12 years old, one of the four, was liberated, yesterday, to come home, but his parents have not seen him since, they fear he is with Pierce.

Yours truly,

F. BEERS.

"Joe."

"Hadn't you heard de news? Why, sah, he's done gone dead! Yes, sah—been dead an' burled for a hull week. Dat's de reason he didn't come aroun' any more wid his apples an' pop corn."

"What, your little Joe dead?"

"Dat's de truf, sah. Come home one day all stuffed up wid a cold, an' in twenty-four hours we laid him in his shroud. It was awful sudden an' I can't realize dat he's gone. Las' night we foun' ourselves waitin' supper fur him, an' in de middle of de night we wake up an' find ourselves callin' his name. It comes powerful hard on us, it does, an' we can't speak of it widout our hearts swellin' up big 'nuff to bust. He was de only chile, you know, an' we had built up some powerful hopes on him."

"Joe was a good boy."

"Deed he was." He nebber gin us one hour's trouble, an' dar wasn't a bad har on his head."

There came a pause, and the old man seemed nervous and uneasy. He started to go, hesitated, and finally said:

"You don't know nuffin' 'bout Heaben for suah, do you?"

"No."

"Well, has you got any ideas?"

"Yes, a few."

"You see, all de wimin has come in to console my ole woman, an' one of 'em says dat de big grown-up folks go to one part of heaben an' de chil'en to annoder part. If dat's true, den we can't jine little Joe when we git up dar; maybe we can't eben see him. Dat's what makes his mudder take on so. We's got purty old now, an' we'll soon get de summons to go, but if de hope an' 'spectashun of meetin' dat boy up in heaben am taken away from us, we might as well hang our-selves in de woodshed."

"You need have no fears. Heavun is not fenced off to separate the young from the old."

"All piled in togeder."

"Yes, and plenty of room for all."

"Will we know our Joe when we git in dar?"

"Yes."

"An' he'll know us?"

"Yes."

"Dat's de way I hold, but de ole woman she's kinder fraid dat I doan' know fur suar. Say, boss?"

"Yes,"

"Please do de ole man a favor. take your pen an' write down dat heaben am not fenced off, and dat we shall fin' our little Joe clus by de pearly gates waitin' an' watchin' to welcome us as we march in wid de purceshun. It will make de ole woman feel a heap easier an' help her to b'ar up under dis 'fliction."

The "certificate" was written and handed to him, and he carefully put it away and said, as he was ready to go:

"I'm a fousan times obleeged, an' de swellin' in my heart has gone down ober half. It wrung us powerful hard to see dat boy on his dyin' bed, but when we war told dat we shouldn't be able to git to him up in Heaben we was clean dun fur. Day to you, boss. Ize gwine right off home an' chirk up de ole woman wid de blessed news."—Detroit Free Press.

The Humor of Small-Pox.

Generally speaking, there is nothing excruciatingly funny about the small-pox, but the doctors who are called to prescribe for patients occasionally run on something that tickles them. Not many years ago a doctor here was called to see a man at one of the hotels, who lived in Iowa. The man was sick as a horse, and the doctor had his suspicions about what ailed him, but couldn't tell exactly, so he gave him something to quiet him, and told the friend who was with him that he would call in the morning. The friend said he thought as much of the sick man as he could of a brother. The next morning the doctor called and the sick man was alone. He examined him and found that he had the small-pox. While he was dealing out some medicine the friend came in. Said he; "Doc, that medicine ain't worth a continental. This man is very sick." The doctor said he had come to that conclusion himself. "Why," said the friend. "I rubbed him all night. I think he would have died if I had not rubbed his head. When a man is my friend he can draw on me for all that is out, and don't you forget it." The doctor said he was glad to hear it. He said there was nothing more touching to him than pure friendship between men, and he was glad the sick man had a friend that would stick to him. "You bet your life," says the friend. And then he almost intimated that the doctor did not understand his business, and said something had got to be done, if there were any doctors in Milwaukee who could handle the case. The doctor was a little hot, and when a friend asked, "Do you know what ails him!" the doctor said he thought he did. Then he pulled down the bed clothes and pointed to a little swelling near the little toe, and asked the friend if he could see it. "I see it! Of course I can. It's only a little pimple." The doctor said there was only one disease that showed that kind of pimples. "What is that?" asked the friend, impatiently. "Small-pox!" said the doctor in the most aggravating way. "Suffering Moses, let me out of that door!" shouted the friend, and the doctor said you could have played marbles on his coat tail. The doctor fixed up the patient, and when he went out in the hall the friend was leaning against a trunk, white as a sheet and weak as a cat. "Doc," says he, in a quivering voice, "that man in there is nothing to me. I wouldn't go in that room for a thousand dollars. Is there no way to fumigate me? Say, Doc, I want to be vaccinated. Put a pint of virus in me. Shoot it in with a gun. Hanged if I ever go near a sick man again." The doctor says, "such is life."—Peck's Sun.

Why He Quit Drinking.

"No, gentlemen," said Senator Garland, when he declined an invitation to drink at the cloak room at the last session, "there's nothing the matter with me, but I've stopped. You know we had a pretty hot canvass in Arkansas this summer, and I went all over the State stumping. Well, I saw the graves of a good many good fellows, who began with me and who are now in the dark valley or the light one, whichever it may be. I saw the wreck of other men who started with me to be jolly good fellows. The graves and the wrecks set me thinking. From thinking I began to calculate. Well, on a rough calculation, I found that I had already drank about a barrel and a half of whisky more than I was entitled to. Then I said to myself that if I drank any more, I should be drinking some other fellows' whisky, and as I didn't want to do that, I stopped. There, you have the whole story."

PREVENT FIRES!!!

IN VIEW OF THE NEAR APproach of the "Fourth of July," and the probable discharge of firecrackers and other fireworks in the thickly populated parts of the city, thereby exposing property to destruction by fire, the attention of the inhabitants is called to the following extract from an ordinance of Salt Lake City.
