

So Declared Elder Joseph W. Mc-Murrin at the Tabernacle Yesterday Afternoon.

MERE BELIEF NOT ENOUGH.

christ Is the Author of Salvation And the Way of Life.

Despite the rainstorm that prevailed yesterday afternoon, there was a large congregation in attendance at the tabernacle services. The speaker of the occasion was Elder Joseph W. McMurrin of the First Council of seventy, who preached a doctrinal discourse.

The services were in charge of President John R. Winter, Elders John M. Knight and Heber J. Grant offered the Anight and Hever J. Grant offered the opening and closing prayers, respect-ively. The selections rendered by the choir were "High on the Mountain Tops," "Author of Faith, Eternal Word," and "From Afar, Gracious 1 and " Lord.'

ELDER JOSEPH W. MCMURRIN.

Following is a brief synopsis of El-der McMurrin's remarks: There are many beautiful discourses in the hymns of the Latter-day Saints. In one just rendered by the choir,

"High on the mountain ton. A banner is unfurled," the spirit of inspiration is plainly manifest. The present age is a mo-mentuous one, and in it it has pleased the Lord to flood the world with more light and knowledge than in any previous era. This statement is truc. OS. pecially of matters material. Men have achieved much along the lines of scientitle research and invention. The pos sibilities of steam, electricity and kin-dred forces are truly marvelous, and verge on the miraculous. What the future may develop none can tell, and even the most incredulous are slow to predict failure along lines of study and research. One of old predicted that the day would come when the mighty wonders wrought in the deliverance of ancient Israel would be forgotten in the great complishment of the deliverance and gathering of latter-day Israel.

HUNTERS OF MEN

Preparatory to the consummation of work of the last dispensation, hunters and fishers have been sent out and are yet going forth to seek the people in whose veins flows Israelitish blood. Preceding the dawn of the great progress of the world during the last three quarters of the Ninetenth cen-tury the Gospel of Jesus Christ was restored, flooding the earth with splrit-ual light as it was intended to be delwith the lilght of scientific knowledge and inventive genius.

TO BE TAKEN LITERALLY.

No portion of the holy scripture is of private interpretation. The word of the Lord is intended to be plain to the understanding of the common peo-ple, and was intended also to mean dust what it care ple, and was inter just what it says,

GOSPEL OF DOING.

Mormonism stands for the gospel of doing, and not merely a tacit belief that certain things should be done. The Latter-day Saints are not lacking in reverance in taking this stand. There is no name under heaven where-There is no name under neaven where-on salvation hangs except the name of Jesus Christ. His redeeming blood reaches to the worst sinner, providing the wrong doer will acept of the sal-vation made possible by the life and death of the Son of God. Mormonism is this, and nothing more. The hopes of salvation of this neone are centered is this, and nothing more. The hopes of salvation of this people are centered it: Jesus Christ, and nowhere eise. They say with all reverence that a mere profession of faith cannot bring sal-vation, independent of doing the will of God. Only by obedience can any one enter into the kingdom of God, just as men must be subject to the laws and regulations of earthly gov-comments and kingdoms in order that they may become partakers of all the comments and kingdoms in order that they may become partakers of all the rights and privileges of etizenship. Jesus pointed out the way of salvation and made it possible for mortals to walk therein, but the requirement is that they shall actually follow his pre-cepts and examples, not contenting themselves with expressing a belief in ord on admiration for the plan of saland an admiration for the plan of sal-vation.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Hartmann Concert - Arthur Hartmann is one of the greatest of vio-linists. In the lyric school it is easy to believe he stands at the head. Where the character of the score calls for it. as in the Mendelssohn concerto, he rises to the highest levels of dramatic rises to the inglest levels of dramatic expression, while he is equally schooled in the other phases of expressive art. Hartmann held captive, Saturday eve-ning, one of the most intelligent and representative concert audiences ever gathered in this city. The program was of moderate length, but it was too brief for the audience that filled the Metho for the audience that filled the Metholist church. During the two years of his absence from Salt Lake, Hartmann has broad-ened, made more academic his nat-urally masterful style, while his powers of interpretation seem to have reached the highest ranges of musical scholarship. As to technical accom-plishment, he acquired all there was to be learned of that years ago. So the most difficult performance comes to him now with unconscious effort, leaving his faculties free for interpretive effort. This was very evident in the Bach "Chacone," which he played here before to the delight of his hearers. On arriving in Salt Lake Saturday afternoon, the artist found so many requests awaiting him for a repetition of the "Chacone," that he substituted it for the "Faust Fantase" of Wieniawski, which was on the program. The work is a massive, most harmonically elaborate affair, demanding the highest degree of virtuosity and musical schol-arship; and he played it in a way that held his audience silent at his feet.

DISASTER IN A BINGHAM MINE Fatal Gas Takes Lives of Four-

> Three of Whom Tried Rescue.

SOMEONE'S FATAL BLUNDER.

Men Were Not Supposed to be at Work in Six Level Whose Danger Was Well Known.

Because someone blundered, or was careless, four men gave up their lives in the Utah Copper mine at Bingham Saturday evening. That much is now known of the fatal accident which cost the lives of Asst. Supt. Kent Smith, Steam Shovelman Hugh Burns, George Wilson, steam shovelman, and Dominic Spiadero, an Italian laborer. Shortly before 7 o'clock Sunday evening, at which hour the shift at the mine changes, Dominic Spiadero, accompanied by two fellow laborers, entered the mine, and went into what has been known as six level. When the two men went who accompanied him is so far unknown, as aside from the fact that they did not enter that level, which is said to have been the object of warning, because it was known to be a dangerous place. When the shift changed, at 7 o'clock, the body of Spiadero was found hanging across the ladder half way between the sixth and seventh levels. Spladero had probably been dead some little time when his body was discovered, but because he was known to have been working with one or two other men, it was believed certain that these others were in the small working known as six, and a rescue party, consisting of Asst. Supt. Smith, Hugh Burns and George Wilson, steam shovelmen, and Brakemen Oscar Mann and Ruby, was found. Smith, Burns and Wilson were lowered into the death hole by a windlass manned by the other two members of the rescue party, and as they disap-peared from the sight of their companions at the windlass it was the last

The circumstances point to the fact that the rescue party of three left the rope at the foot of the short shaft lead-ing from seven level to that of six, in their search for the supposed missing companions of the dead man, and that they were soon afterwards overcome by the deadly gas and were unable to again reach the rope, their only road to safety.

So deadly were the gas fumes arising from the mouth of the shaft that the two waiting members of the rescue party, who manned the windlass, were overcome and had to be removed to the air, where they later revived. The bodies of Smith, Burns and Wilson were not recovered till 11 o'clock that night, when a hose line was run into the level from the compressor and into the level from the compressor and the deadly gas forced out. Many and unceasing efforts were made to rescue the men who had so fearlessly risked their lives in an effort to save those of the men who were thought to have been with Spiadero, and about 50 men, who were among those summoned from every available quarter to assist in the work of rescue, were overcome by the gas before the quarter to assist in the work of rescue, were overcome by the gas before the level was sufficiently clear of gas to make an entrance safe. Many of these are still suffering from the effects of the experience but all will the experience, but all will recover. What led, or made the accident possi-ble is not yet known, and cannot be definitely ascertained earlier than late this afternoon or tomorrow, when the investigation by the mine management is complete, but it is now certain that the ill-fated Spiadero was working alone, or that at least he entered the

A scene ensued which will long live in the minds of those who witnessed it.

The bereaved woman worth nearly frantic with grief over her terrible loss. Kent Smith was the son of Dr. A. K. Smith of this city, and a brother of Justice Dana T. Smith. He was known as a faithful and careful miner, one who was ever careful of the lives of the men under him, and always the first to respond when rescue became necessary. The other men who gave up their lives in the effort to save others, have been in the employ of the company some time, and are well known and much respected at Bingham. The rev-erence for the heroic dead, felt by the miners there was plainly manifested by the steady stream of mourners who filed through the little undertaking par-lors during the day vesterday, paying lors during the day yesterday, paying respectful tribute to the men who had gone beyond. The body of Kent Smith has been brought here for burial, and those of his companions are being held at Bingpending instructions from their families.

REDUCTION IS OPPOSED Commercial Club Goes on Record

Regarding Tariff on Lead And Lead Ores.

The Salt Lake Commercial club is now on record against a reduction in the tariff on lead. The action was taken in response to a request from Utah's mining men for an expression of opinion on the matter, and the club in re-sponse has directed a communication to the chairman of the committee on ways and means of the house of representatives. It calls attention to the disaster that would come to an impor-tant western industry if the tariff on lead was reduced, and is as follows:

amounted to 60,000 tons, valued at $76,-000,000. That Utah ranks third in the production of lead in the United States. the total production of which is val-ued at $38,000,000 for the year 1907. That the industry has been made possible by the tariff on the metal lead and that an industry made possible by protection is as worthy of preservation as it was of creation. That the pros-perity of the entire United States is dependent in a marked way on the welfare of the mining industry. Therefore, be it "Resolved, That the Commercial club of Salt Lake City, Utah, by its board of governors, earnestly petition your the present lead tariff schedule, and pray that the integrity of so vital an industry be preserved to the citizens of the state of Utah.

CHRIST'S THE ONLY NAME.

It is often declared that the Latter-day Saints set up Joseph Smith in the place of Jesus Christ, ignoring the great redemptive works of the Mes-siah. This statement is made in the face of the fact that this Church is the only one to be distinctively is the only one to be distinctively known as the Church of Jesus Christ.

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

A bellef in the Book of Moromon is not inconsistent with a bellef in the Bible. The Savior himself declared that He had other sheep not of the fold to which belonged the disciples of the Holy Land, and that all should be brought to one fold. The Latter-day Saints believe that the people indi-cated by the Son of God lived upon this, the American continent, and that to them the same gospel was preached as was taught upon the eastern con-tinent.

Mormonism's message to the world is that the primitive Christian religion has been restored to earth and the Church of Christ re-established, with the same organization, the same doc-

Three lovely lyrics were given in Hartmann's third number, "A Thought," by Nevin, MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," and Sauret's "Farfalla;" the "Wild Rose" being specially ar-rauged for the violin by the performer.

It was here that the artist displayed his wonderful lyric powers in sweet, clear, singing, ringing tones from the "Stradi-varius," with delicacy of expression and phrasing generally, refinement of exe-cution, and a lofty conception of the spirit of those dainty little morceaux. It was tone poetry, the poetry of music in a most inspiring form. The audience was delighted. The final number was one of Hart-mann's new creations, the "Grand American Fantasle—in the South," an arrangement of familiar plantation melodies enwreathed in a harmonic elaboration, the plano, as well as the violin score being Hartmann's. "It took" very well, and is a unique composition.

Hartmann has an able accompanist in Alfred Calzin, whose to hnical conquest of the plano was manifest long before the recital closed. The violinist left on the midnight train for Los Angeles, where he has a week's engagement. He was much fa-tigued by a very strenuous trip from New York, jumping from steamer to New York, jumping from steamer to concert room, from there to the train with a sandwich to stay "the inner man," and then jumping here, there and everywhere along the road, cating and sleeping on the "catch as catch can" plan. However, he will rest in California. Hartmann returns to litab California. Hartmann returns to Utah January to play in Ogden.

The death of Kent Smith is one of the most pathetic, under the circumstances, which have ever been chronicled in the mining history of the state. At the time of his death he had been in the employ of the mine company almost continually since that company in-stalled its Bingham plant, and was one of the best known mine and mill men n the state.
